

Home owners facing huge tax bite

By NOEL SWANN
From Our L.A. Bureau

Los Angeles County property owners may be facing a 12.25 per cent hike in this year's assessments making it the biggest increase in almost 20 years.

County Assessor Philip Watson said Friday he would not have exact figures on the size of the assessment roll increase until July 12, but said he has told various taxing agencies there would be "a huge increase" in 1976-77.

Watson said the assessment hikes would be especially high for single-family homes because sales prices have been soaring as a result of increases in construction and land development costs.

Additionally, he said, his office has reevaluated more property than usual this year because of a computerized data system.

In previous years only one-fifth of all property in the county was reassessed each year. This year, Watson said, his office reappraised one million of the 1.88 million taxable parcels in the county.

Generally speaking the higher than usual assessments increase percentage bodes well for various taxing agencies such as cities and school districts because the jump means increased revenue for them. This in turn gives them more elasticity in fashioning their budgets.

However, although the increased revenue might allow some taxing agencies to cut their tax rates slightly, property owners still would be faced with higher bills because of the higher assessments.

In the case of Long Beach, there appeared to be some confusion over the figures given to newsmen Friday.

While newsmen were told preliminary estimates show the Long Beach city assessment rolls would increase by only 3.5 per cent, City Manager John Mansell said estimates given his office by the assessor in mid-May predicted a seven per cent hike.

Mansell said his staff tried to check with the assessor's office Friday, but was unable to get clarification. The assessor's staff said they would look into the matter and get back to Mansell with the answer Tuesday after the holiday weekend.

Both Mansell and other officials indicated the difference in percentage increase may have something to do with the mystery ship Glomar Explorer, which had been on the tax rolls last year.

A court, however, ruled that the ship, which was used to raise part of a Russian submarine, was not taxable in Los Angeles County.

Although the Glomar had been on the assessment rolls, actual taxes were not included.

A spokesman for Mansell said his office had never taken the Glomar's valuation into account. However, it was not clear Friday whether the seven per cent figure given Mansell's office included the Glomar or not.

The city's preliminary budget for tax supported funding amounted to $107.7 million, based on a six per

No money to pay faculty

N.Y. university closed

NEW YORK (AP) — City University of New York, the nation's third largest university system, was ordered closed after defaulting on its faculty payroll Friday, shutting out some 250,000 students at the climax of their school year.

Some of the university's 20 colleges were in the midst of final examinations. Others had completed exams but had not issued grades. CUNY officials said 30,000 to 40,000 seniors had been due to graduate at commencement ceremonies between June 3 and June 16.

"They are not in jeopardy of not graduating eventually," Chancellor Robert Kibbee told a news conference Friday in announcing the midnight shutdown. But, he said,

"this act has to injure the university's reputation. It will also impress on our very fine faculty that they'd be better off and more secure and safer at some other institution."

About 16,000 faculty members and 11,000 other employees were thrown out of work by the closing of CUNY. The system is third in size only to state systems in New York, with 350,000 students, and California, with 334,000, according to the National Education Association.

CUNY, which has been tuition-free for 125 years and has some of the highest paid teachers in the nation, overspent its May budget by $15 million, according to City Hall sources, and had expected the city to bail it out.

"We do not have the money," declared Deputy Mayor John Zuccotti, who said the only way to meet the current $14.9 million payroll was with state funds.

Irving Polishook, president of the Professional Staff Congress, CUNY's faculty union, had ordered his members to stay away from classrooms at the

Moynihan claims U.N. bribe votes

NEW YORK (AP) — Votes at the United Nations have been influenced by bribes, in one case as little as $600, according to Daniel Patrick Moynihan, America's former U.N. ambassador.

"I have never seen money change hands, but I know that money does change hands," Moynihan said Friday in an excerpt from a taped interview with CBS News Correspondent Eric Sevareid.

The excerpt was shown on the "CBS Evening News" on Friday. At that time, CBS also reported it had been told that on two occasions last fall representatives from North Korea offered money to U.N. delegates from other nations.

A spokesman for the North Korean observer mission at the U.N. denied the allegation.

Sevareid's full interview with Moynihan will not be aired until Sunday. In the portion shown Friday, the former ambassador said:

"I can tell you. Dare I tell you in public because things are bad enough, but last fall a vote changed hands for $2,000?"

Moynihan refused to identify the parties involved in the exchange.

He said, "$2,000 will usually get you ... There are the block of votes which are ... for which money changes hands, and it's in that range."

"And will you mind my saying that I'm not very shocked by it? Governments maximize their interests. I don't know that charging cash or charging wheat loans is such a different thing."

OPEC's oil price holds—for a while

BALI, Indonesia (AP) — Ministers of the world oil cartel decided Friday to hold the price line until a later meeting.

Just how long this meant the price would continue at its current level of $11.51 per barrel of standard-grade oil was not immediately clear.

The next ordinary meeting of leaders of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries was scheduled for Dec. 15 at Doha, Qatar. Oil prices would remain unchanged through the end of the year if further action is held off until that meeting.

At a news conference, however, OPEC Secretary General M.O. Feyide of Nigeria said he did not rule out the possibility of an extraordinary meeting before December.

Valentine Hernandez Acosta, spokesman for the Venezuelan delegation, told reporters, "Some countries would like another meeting in two months, others in September."

OPEC last raised prices by 10 per cent on Oct. 1 and froze them at that level through the end of June.

Some OPEC members, notably Iran and Iraq, came to Bali talking of 10 to 15 per cent increases, while Saudi Arabia, the world's largest producer, said it was opposed to any increase.

In a White House statement, President Ford said he was "encouraged by OPEC's decision." He noted that the world's economy is recovering from recession and adjusting to existing oil prices.

"In today's interdependent world, a stable and growing world economy is in every country's interest, and the United States looks toward to further improvements in the relationships between oil-producing and consuming countries," he declared.

However, Ford emphasized that "this decision should not lead us to lessen our drive toward energy independence" and urged Congress again to pass his energy-legislation proposals.

Conference sources said the continuing of present prices reflected indecision on changing the entire pricing structure for oil rather than any defeat for those who want to raise prices.

Utility battles limits on nuclear-power plants

From Our State Bureau
SACRAMENTO — Efforts to present California's voters with a legislative alternative to Proposition 13, the Nuclear Power Plants Initiative, collided head-on Friday with the Los Angeles Dept. of Water and Power's efforts to block any state regulation of the nuclear industry.

The result was two parliamentary setbacks for the three-bill package and one setback for the giant utility, which would like to build what would be the world's largest nuclear-powered electricity generating plant in Kern County.

The battle will be resumed, for what is expected to be the last time, Tuesday on the Senate floor.

ONE WEEK later, voters will cast ballots on the initiative which critics contend will impose a total moratorium on construction of new nuclear plants in California and force a phase-out of existing ones.

If the three bills are approved by the Senate Tuesday and subsequently signed into law, they will be held out to voters as a milder form of the stated intent of the initiative, which is to protect the public by imposing certain restrictions on the nuclear industry.

They will go into effect next Jan. 1 if Proposition

15 is defeated. If the initiative is approved by voters, however, the three bills become null and void.

IF THE Senate declines to approve the bills Tuesday, they will probably be scrapped. Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, the upper house sponsor of the legislation, said flatly Friday he would not vote for them if Proposition 15 is defeated.

Alquist Friday offered an amendment exempting from the provisions of one of the bills the proposed Sun Desert nuclear plant being planned by the San Diego Gas and Electric Co. The amendment, ne-

Few real curbs seen in test pact

BERNARD GWERTZMAN
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The United States and the Soviet Union underscored again Friday the ambiguity that has marked their relations since the end of World War II.

President Ford and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev signed a treaty designed to put modest limits on underground nuclear explosions at a time when distrust runs high between the two countries and each side is spending record amounts for defense budgets aimed at deterring the other.

The cordial White House

and Kremlin signing ceremonies came against a background of sharpened attacks on the Soviet Union in the American presidential campaign, a decision by Ford to drop "detente" from his vocabulary, and a nasty increase in tension between the two sides, caused in part by Angola, and the failure to achieve a breakthrough in the deadlocked strategic arms limitation negotiations.

This duality was noticeable in the five-year treaty itself, which limits nuclear explosions for "peaceful" purposes to 150 kilotons, the equivalent of 150,000 tons of TNT, and allows on-site inspections in certain circumstances to ensure that the accords are carried out. Depending on the size of the explosion, from six to 22 observers will be permitted at test sites.

But as liberal critics already have pointed out, the 150-kiloton limit is virtually no limit at all. It is of such a magnitude — about 10 times the force of the Hiroshima bomb — that it in effect does not put any meaningful curbs on military tests for newer weapons.

And the "on-site inspection" provision, which has been widely hailed by administration officials as a breakthrough, is so restrictive as to make it possible that it will never be used.

The restrictions, in fact, reveal clearly how distrustful the Russians are of having Americans prowling around a nuclear site.

The "on-site inspection" only becomes obligatory on the Russians if they plan a "peaceful" test of more than 150 kilotons — that is a series of explosions amounting to a force of more than 150,000 tons of TNT. In recent years, neither side has tested a device of such magnitude and the United Service has no plans to do so.

The Russians may explode a large device if they carry out a project of using nuclear explosions to divert fresh water to the Caspian Sea. But even that is not certain.

So for the moment, despite the wide publicity given the Soviet willingness to allow inspectors, there is a strong chance they will never see a Soviet site.

American officials, however, claim that what is important is the principle established. Even if in-

Gov. Brown talked about busing Friday — he's against it in principle — and his Republican predecessor, Ronald Reagan, talked about selling arms to mainland China — he's for it in principle.

But both men drew distinctions about how principle could be turned into practical politics as they and other Democratic and Republican contenders readied for more presidential primaries Tuesday and the following week.

During a brief appearance in the Port of Long Beach Friday, Reagan questioned the federal government's price controls on low-gravity crude oil produced in California.

"This is something that's been of concern to the State of California and the City of Long Beach for quite a long time," Reagan said near a group of Wilmington Oil Field wells at Pier D.

"I'd like to hear if there is an explanation from the government for this unequal pricing," Reagan said. The

Violence wins top prizes at Cannes despite protest

Combined News Services
CANNES, France — Films with violent themes got many of the prizes at the Cannes Film Festival on Friday, despite a condemnation from American playwright Tennessee Williams, president of the jury.
"Taxi Driver," an American production directed by Martin Scorsese, was chosen best film of the festival. In the film, a psychopathic cab driver plots the assassination of a presidential candidate and commits murder to free a 12-year-old prostitute from her pimp.
"Watching violence on the screen is a brutalizing experience for the spectator," Williams told a news conference. "Films should not take a voluptuous pleasure in spilling blood and in lingering on terrible cruelties as though one were at a Roman circus."
"Violence is an element of human character and should not be ignored, but in the future I hope the cinema will dwell less constantly on offensive values without sacrificing truth," he said.
The jury for the ecumenical prize did not make an award, saying, "The 1976 festival was marked by grave and desperate films, some of which reflect a rare violence. We fear that violence will answer violence and that instead of denouncing it, these scenes will lead our society to a new escalation."
The prize for best male acting went to Jose-Luis Gomez for his role in the Spanish film "Pascual Duarte," in which a dog is shot and a mule butchered. At a news conference, director, Ricardo Franco Rubio said the scenes had not been faked.

3 resign over political fund

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. — Three high-ranking executives at R.J. Reynolds Industries have resigned their offices but remain with the company in the wake of a probe of a secret political fund that may have totaled $90,000, company officials said Friday. The investigation revealed that corporate funds were used for domestic political contributions from January 1968 to early 1973, according to a statement released by Board Chairman Colin Stokes and President J. Paul Sticht. A company spokesman said the three men are still on the payroll but their salaries "will be reduced to a level commensurate with their new assignments, if any."
The company identified the three officials as David Peoples, chairman of the executive committee and vice chairman of the board; William Smith, a vice chairman of the board, and Charles Wade Jr., senior vice president.

U.N. extends Golan force

UNITED NATIONS — The Security Council voted Friday to extend for six months the presence of an international peacekeeping force between Israeli and Syrian armies on the Golan Heights. Israel and Syria had agreed earlier to continue the mandate for the U.N. force, which would have expired Monday. The council vote was 13-0, with China and Libya not participating in the vote although their representatives were present. A resolution adopted by the council called on all parties concerned in the Middle East to resume negotiations under "appropriate auspices aimed at establishing a just and durable peace." The 1,194-man U.N. Disengagement Observer Force has manned the buffer zone since Secretary of State Henry Kissinger negotiated a 1974 agreement between Israel and Syria. Another U.N. contingent of 4,000 men is stationed between Egyptian and Israeli lines in the Sinai desert. Its current authorization runs until October.

Women are expressing overwhelming support of Rep. Romano Mazzoli's demand that Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, resign and that Congress as a whole purge itself of sex-scandal taints, Mazzoli said Friday in Washington.
Mazzoli, a third-term Kentucky Democrat, said in a House speech Thursday that only a dramatic move could help restore Congress' prestige, sinking further under allegations that Hays put Elizabeth Ray on a committee payroll to act as his mistress but not to work. Mazzoli said Hays should resign his chairmanships and his House seat.
Hays, who has admitted a past liaison with Miss Ray but insisted that she was employed for her office skills, said he will not resign and will fight to vindicate himself.
"We have had (women) staffers from all over Hell's Half Acre coming into the office and telephoning to encourage us," Mazzoli said.
Sarah Luna, an aide to Mazzoli, said his Louisville office had received about 30 telephone calls and other communications, "mostly from women" and his Washington office received about 50, "largely from women," cheering him on.

Nuclear withdrawal

WASHINGTON — South African utility officials say they expect to withdraw from negotiations on a $1.6-billion purchase of nuclear reactors from a consortium that includes General Electric Co. Officials of the South African Electricity Supply Commission told the U.S. Export-Import Bank, which was preparing to underwrite the General Electric portion of the deal with a loan guarantee of $256.5 million, that they will withdraw from the negotiations next week. The decision to withdraw was attributed by other officials to mounting criticism in Congress and the Netherlands against the proposed deal.

4 die as plane crashes near UCI

A light plane narrowly missed a cluster of two-story apartments for married students when it lost a wing and crashed on the University of California's Irvine campus Friday, killing its four occupants.

"It was very lucky" that the plane missed the Verano Apartments 300 yards from the crash site, a police spokesman said.

The spokesman said the rented Beechcraft Bonanza slammed into a field about 7:40 a.m., shortly after takeoff from nearby Orange County Airport.

Killed instantly were the pilot, Dr. Roger L. Jensen, 38; his wife, Mariys, 39; Peter C. Pardon, 29, and his wife, Deborah, 28, all of San Clemente.

Federal Aviation Administration authorities said no flight plan had been filed but they believed the plane was headed for Mexico.

Sleeping bags, snorkels, wet suits and camping gear were scattered in the wreckage, which was strewn over a quarter of a mile.

There was no fire.

"We saw it come spiraling down, nose first, out of the clouds. One of the wings was missing," said Eric MacDonald, 31, UCI librarian. He did not see the plane hit the ground because of trees and buildings.

Dr. William Yarwood, a pilot who lives nearby, was driving by while the craft was still aloft.

"I heard the plane engine sputter, and then here was a surge of power, apparently, as the pilot tried to clear the carburetor," he said. "I could tell that he'd had it. The crash followed by seconds."

Nancy Wilcox, 30, who lives in the Verano housing complex, said she had just put her two children on a school bus when she saw the plane flying low.

"Its engine cut out. Suddenly there was like an explosion and a wing fell off," she recalled.

Investigators said the plane was owned by Harold Hayes of Mission Viejo and had been leased to Newport Air Associates, a chartering firm at Orange County Airport.

The wreckage was scattered between the Irvine City Hall and the police station, near Campus Drive and California Avenue at the edge of the campus.

Authorities said the plane apparently was flying low when the left wing separated from the fuselage.

'Mastermind' in vault-theft plot gets 10-year sentence

Associated Press

Ronald Noday, the alleged mastermind of a scheme to loot $10 million from a downtown vault, was sentenced Friday in Los Angeles in U.S. District Court to 10 years in federal prison.

Noday, 31, of Palos Verdes Estates, pleaded guilty earlier this month to one count of interstate transportation of stolen property.

Noday's codefendant,

Steven Duane Jones of Redondo Beach, also was sentenced by Real Jones, who pleaded guilty to one count of conspiracy to loot the safe deposit boxes in the Van Nuys Building, was sentenced to six months in jail, fined $3,000 and placed on probation for five years.

The defendants originally were indicted on charges that they plotted to loot values from safe deposit boxes stored in the basement of the building.

A subsequent indictment was returned when authorities discovered that more than $485,000 in mint-condition gold coins had been stolen. Until that time, authorities thought nothing had been taken.

Authorities said Noday and Jones admitted they obtained a lease for the building's vault area last March 23 in the name of First Safe Deposit Box Co.

Woman given 10-to-life

Associated Press

Maria Messenger, 50, was sentenced to 10 years to life in prison Friday in connection with what authorities said was one of the largest heroin seizures in local history.

Los Angeles Superior Court Judge E. Talbot Callister imposed consecutive sentences of five years to life for charges of conspiracy to sell heroin and heroin possession.

Mrs. Messenger was convicted April 16, at which time she was acquitted of a charge of selling heroin.

She and three other persons, including her husband, were arrested last Nov. 5 as police seized 27½ pounds of heroin with an estimated street value of $8 million.

Her husband, Penfilo Salinas Espinoza, 40, is awaiting a pretrial hearing June 11.

Two others also were implicated. Humberto Marquez Reynoso, 24, was sentenced to prison for five years to life. Rolando Martinez, 21, is serving a six-month sentence.

Suspect of rape to be arraigned

One of three college students accused of raping a young woman in a Long Beach fraternity house three weeks ago will be arraigned June 3, police said Friday.

David Alan Foy, 21, who gave his address as the Sigma Pi fraternity house, 4121 E. Fourth Street, is free meanwhile on $5,000 bail.

The two others arrested with Foy, Glenn Alan Nesbit, 25, who lives at the same fraternity house, and Robert Gregory Richards, 21, 851 E. Palm Drive, are still in custody.

Police said the three were arrested at noon Thursday in a parking lot at Long Beach State University.

6 Hughes cousins file suit

Associated Press

Six cousins of Howard Hughes — three from each side of his family — filed suit Friday in Los Angeles Superior Court, contesting Hughes' purported will that names Noah Dietrich executor.

The three paternal cousins of Hughes, who filed papers first, are Barbara Cameron of Los Angeles, and Agnes Roberts and Elspeth dePoult, both of Cleveland. They allege that the purported will found last April 29 in Salt Lake City was not written by Hughes.

The three, grandchildren of Hughes' paternal uncle, Rupert Hughes, said they believe several other wills, with later dates, will be found.

AN ATTORNEY representing Hughes' first cousins on his mother's side — Allene Lummis Russell, Anette Gano Neff and Frederick Rice Lummis Jr. — filed suit alleging that the will, on file in Las Vegas, Nev., is a fraud.

Both suits, as well as other matters including the admittance of the so-called Dietrich will, are scheduled to be discussed at a hearing before Superior Court Judge Neil Lake.

However, the massive probate battle over all the purported wills so far discovered is scheduled for a July 30 hearing in Las Vegas, and that led to speculation that next Tuesday's hearing over the cousins' suits may be postponed.

New deed

I've lost the deed to my house, which I've owned free of debt since 1944. How can I get a new deed? Mrs. C.H., Long Beach.

You can get a certified copy of the deed to your property from the Los Angeles County Recorder, 227 N. Broadway, Room 5, Los Angeles, Calif. 90012. But you don't need to have such a document in your possession. The ownership of property is determined by the records on file with the county recorder, not by who processes the grant deed document. You can request a copy of the deed by mail or in person. You must supply the county recorder with your full name, the year that the deed was recorded, the address of the house and if possible, the legal description of the property. The cost for the copy is $2 for the first page of the document and 50 cents for each additional page. A spokesman for the recorder's office suggested that you send in a blank, signed check with the words "not valid over $5" at the bottom. The recorder's staff will fill in the amount once they have determined how many pages must be copied.

Rates

On a recent television news program, Gov. Brown listed a change in the utility rate structure as one of the accomplishments of his administration. He claims that the rates for the big users of energy have gone up and the rates for the customers who use less power have decreased. Since the utility rates have increased greatly during the past couple of years, I'd like to know when this rate change took place and for which utilities. D.D., Long Beach.

The rates for low usage levels have been frozen at present levels in certain communities, but they haven't gone down. Under legislation signed by Brown, the California Public Utilities Commission has ordered the Pacific Gas & Electric Co. to freeze the rates for customers using fewer than 300 or 500 (depending on the area) kilowatt hours of electricity or 7,500 cubic feet of gas per month until all of the company's other rate levels have been increased by 25 per cent. A similar order is pending for the Southern California Edison Co. and the Southern California Gas Co. Within the next several months, the PUC probably will have ordered virtually all of the private utility companies in the state to freeze the rates for low usage levels. The PUC does not regulate municipal utility firms, such as the Long Beach Gas Department, but legislation requiring such companies to adopt a similar rate system has been introduced. The utility companies traditionally have charged; higher unit rates for low usage levels, and critics have charged that this system discourages conservation of energy and favors commercial customers over individual consumers.

Airport parking

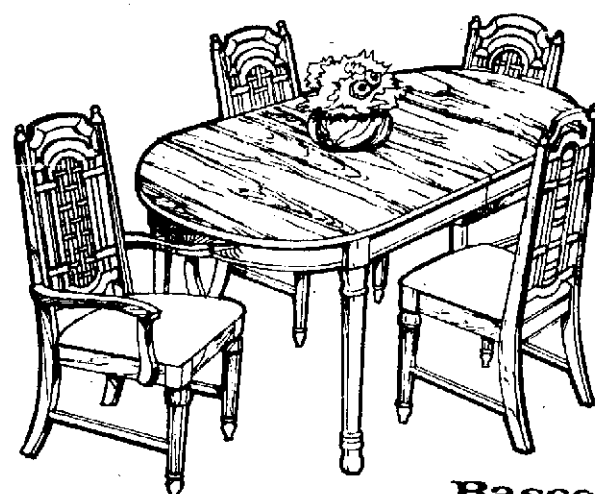

We are planning to take a flight out of Los Angeles International Airport on our vacation and we'd like to know how long we can leave our car parked at the airport. How much does it cost to park there and is any security provided? J.M., Long Beach.

You can park your car at the airport for as long as you want, but it's expensive. The cheapest rates are at the VSP lot near the intersection of 111th Street and Aviation Boulevard: 50 cents for the first six hours, 25 cents for each additional three hours or $1.50 for each 24-hour period. The parking fees at Lot A at East Way and 96th Street are 50 cents for the first three hours, 25 cents for each additional three hours, or $2 for 24 hours or $12 a week. You can park in Lot C, which is near Sepulveda Boulevard and 96th Street, for 50 cents for each three hours or $2 per 24 hours. Tram service is available from these lots to each of the airline terminals. The rates at the central parking lots near the terminals are 50 cents for each two hours or $5 a day. A spokeswoman for the Los Angeles Department of Airports said the parking lots are patrolled regularly by airport security personnel.

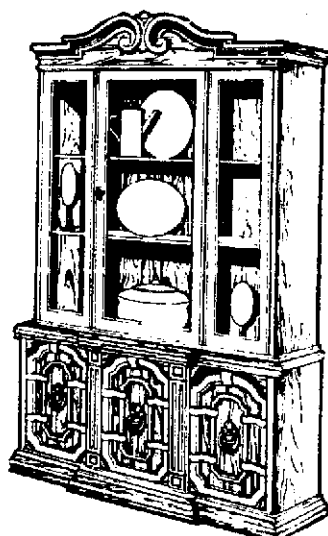

SOUND OFF!

I wish to pass along my congratulations to the contractors and subcontractors who have been rebuilding East Spring Street from Studebaker Road to Bellflower Boulevard. Working against odds and heavy traffic, they have done a good job. Now that the end appears near, I think someone should thank them for such a fine and fast job. J.S., Long Beach.

Gun buffs lose again

SACRAMENTO (AP) — An attempt to put a right-to-bear-arms amendment into the California constitution was killed Friday by the Senate, after critics said it would "proliferate the domestic arms race."

The amendment by Sen. H.L. Richardson, R-Arcadia, died on a 17-9 roll call with several senators not voting. At least 27 aye votes were needed to send the measure to the Assembly.

The upper house's action was the second defeat gun advocates have suffered in the last two days. Thursday the Assembly refused to revive an identical measure that was killed in committee.

Richardson, a director of the National Rifle Association, said he expected the Legislature's action to spark a drive to put an initiative on the ballot in 1978.

"NO QUESTION about it — there will be an initiative," he said after the vote. He said Friday's vote was to "get people on the record."

The amendment, if approved by the Legislature and voters, would prevent the Legislature from enacting more stringent gun control legislation than that already in effect, unless it was approved by voters as another constitutional revision.

Richardson said the amendment was needed to protect law-abiding citizens' right to keep guns. But Sen. David Roberti, D-Los Angeles, said it would prevent the state from stopping gun sales in the event of widespread civil strife.

"WHAT WOULD happen if we had a situation where opposing groups were arming themselves and the state had to take action?" he asked. "We are told in this amendment that we could not do anything."

"This bill does not go to the issue of gun control or registration. This is a constitutional amendment which prevents society from protecting itself."

Richardson read a letter from a Santa Barbara woman who said a babysitter had been hacked to death in her home. She said she now had a gun and a dog for peace of mind.

But Sen. Nicholas Petris, D-Oakland, said the increase in gun ownership has resulted in more slayings involving friends, relatives or acquaintances in a moment of anger.

HE READ three or four examples of such killings that he found in newspapers over a two-day period.

Chavez initiative OKd for ballot

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A farm labor relations initiative sponsored by Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers qualified for the Nov. 2 general election ballot Friday, Secretary of State March Fong Eu announced.

An initiative to permit parimutuel wagering on greyhound dog races also qualified, Ms. Eu said.

More than 515,000 valid signatures were submitted with the farm labor proposal, while the dog-racing initiative had more than 400,000. Only 312,404 were needed.

THE CHAVEZ initiative would replace the Farm Labor Act passed by the Legislature in 1975 with the backing of Gov. Brown. Chavez' union won most of the secret-ballot representation elections conducted under the new law, but it has been inoperative since February, when the board administering it ran out of funds.

Growers charged that the Agricultural Labor Relations Board (ALRB) had been biased in favor of Chavez' union, and have been able to block further funds.

THE LEGISLATIVE fight over funds for the board has continued into the battle over the state budget for next year. The Assembly deleted the board funds, but the Senate included them. The issue will be settled in a two-house conference committee.

The Chavez proposal would require growers to give union organizers access to their property, require a minimum of 50 per cent of employees to petition for decertification of a union, would permit the ALRB to assess treble damages for unfair labor practices, and direct the legislature to provide the funds necessary to carry out the act.

THE DOG RACING initiative, sponsored by George Hardie of Los Angeles, would give voters the option of establishing a state Greyhound Racing Commission to license and regulate races. A portion of parimutuel wagering would go to the state.

Gets Assembly OK Fattened budget gains

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A $13-billion state budget, praised by one Republican as a "humanitarian" alternative to Gov. Brown's $12.6-billion proposal, won Assembly approval Friday.

"The skeleton budget we had (from Brown) didn't have any meat on it... We had to move out of sheer humanitarian concern for people in need," said Assemblyman Frank Lanterman, R-La Canada, ranking GOP member of the Ways and Means Committee.

He was referring to welfare and other program increases that made up about two-thirds of the difference between the bill and Brown's proposed 1977 budget.

The Assembly version of the budget would cut by about half the $30-million surplus in Brown's budget.

Increases proposed by the Assembly include $62 million for the aged, blind and disabled, $33 million for food stamps for the elderly, $17 million for the retarded, and $93 million for Medi-Cal fee increases for doctors. The Assembly budget contains no money for the bankrupt state farm labor board, whose funding has been cut off by rural legislators accusing the board of bias in favor of Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers.

But Assemblyman Dan Boatwright, D-Concord, the Ways and Means Committee chairman who carried the budget bill, said the Senate would approve $6.8 million for the board in its version of the budget, sending the issue to a two-house conference committee that will resolve differences between the two budgets.

"We still have hope, though it's getting fainter every day, that the governor will... make appointments" to three vacant positions on the five-member board, Boatwright said.

Some opponents of the board have indicated they are willing to fund it if the new appointees satisfy them. But Brown says he doesn't know if he can appoint anyone before the board is funded.

Another issue headed for the conference committee is Brown's proposal for a $70-month increase for most state employees. The Senate budget is expected to contain the proposal, but the Assembly instead added $90 million for the traditional percentage raises averaging 9.7 per cent.

The Assembly vote was 54-17, with six Republicans breaking ranks to give the bill the bare two-thirds majority it needed. Two Democrats, Tom Suitt of Indian Wells and Richard Robinson of Santa Ana, voted against it.

The Senate has yet to vote on its own $12.8-billion budget proposal. The final legislative budget, drafted by the conference committee and approved by both houses, is to be on Brown's desk by the end of June.

Judges' retiring bill killed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A constitutional amendment that would force judges to retire by age 70 was killed Friday by the Senate.

The measure by Sen. Alfred Song, D-Monterey Park, went down to defeat 15-18.

Song and other supporters said judges should be required to retire at 70 because by that age most of them have lost some of the mental alertness needed for the job.

They said retired judges who were still qualified could be called in when needed to provide temporary relief for their fulltime colleagues.

Critics said the bill would force many qualified judges to leave the bench while they were still able to perform useful service.

"Some of the greatest leaders in history were over 70," said Sen. David Roberti, D-Los Angeles.

There is currently no fixed age at which judges must retire, but they begin to lose retirement benefits if they remain in office after age 70.

Abortion bill will get a second look

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Assembly decided Friday to reconsider passage of a bill aimed against a health plan that provides abortion insurance for Stanford University coeds.

The measure that would require insurance policies that cover abortions to provide at least equal maternity benefits won Assembly approval by a 41-33 vote last week.

Blue Cross officials have said that 42 women at Stanford have had abortions covered by the policies since the plan began at student request in 1972. The policies do not cover maternity.

ASSEMBLYMAN Ken

Meade, D-Berkeley, asked for reconsideration and, after several hours of maneuvering, won a 41-27 vote to bring the bill back up next week.

"The bill raises serious implications about our attitude toward abortion and about free choice in the insurance field," Meade said. "It requires people to purchase coverage they may not want. Freedom of choice ought not to be intruded upon."

State Senate OKs doctors' own malpractice insurance

From Our State Bureau
SACRAMENTO — Legislation authorizing physicians to form their own malpractice insurance cooperatives, was approved Friday by the Senate, 29-1.

The legislation by Assemblyman Fred Chel, D-Long Beach, will be returned to the Assembly, for Senate amendments to be considered. The measure was approved by the lower house, 70-3 on March 25.

Chel said the proposal will permit a physician or a group of physicians within a professional corporation or partnership to join with other physicians or other groups in an insurance cooperative. Present law prohibits doctors with no business relationships from forming cooperatives, he said.

"We've seen clearly in the past year that traditional methods of insuring doctors against malpractice have resulted in skyrocketing premiums — which are ultimately passed to patients in the form of higher bills," Chel said.

"My legislation gives doctors another alternative. It allows them to band together for the purpose of defending each other, should a malpractice complaint be filed against one of them. Each would have to share the legal defense expenses as well as the judgment costs, if any."

"The advantages of this type of arrangement are threefold," he said. "First, doctors would have a vested interest in weeding out incompetent physicians within their ranks, lessening the possibility of a patient receiving harmful care.

"Second, nuisance claims will be vigorously defended instead of simply paid, effectively keeping the cost of insurance down while protecting the reputations of competent doctors."

"Third, a patient's bills will not be as apt to rise just to pay for a doctor's malpractice insurance."

Chel's bill was carried on the Senate floor by George Zenovich, D-Fresno. It has the support of the California Medical Assn. and the Los Angeles County Medical Assn.

Half-clad body of woman found

APTOS (AP) — The body of a young woman, clad only in a pair of jeans, was found Friday in a ravine near Nicene Marks State Park in this community five miles east of Santa Cruz, sheriff's deputies said.

Santa Cruz County sheriff's investigators said the cause of death was under investigation but that it appeared the woman, whose identity was unknown, had been stabbed several times.

Panama frees ship after bill 'settled'

WASHINGTON (AP) — An American yacht whose seizure by Panamanian national guardsmen prompted State Department protests, was released Friday after settlement of a court case, White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said.

Nessen said the U.S. Embassy in Panama City reported that the Sea Wolf was freed after its owner, General Electric Credit Corp., a financing arm of the General Electric Co., posted a bond covering a disputed repair bill.

The vessel had been boarded and seized Sunday, reportedly within the U.S.-run Panama Canal, under an order issued by a Panamanian court, said State Department press officer John Ordway.

Such seizures are not legally permitted within the canal.

Ordway said Panamanian authorities contended that the seizure took place outside the canal.

Disclosure of the incident came in a speech on the Senate floor Friday by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., a critic of the administration's move to renegotiate the 1903 treaty which gave the United States sovereignty over the Canal Zone.

Helms contended that the State Department has been "shockingly negligent" in handling what "can properly be described as an act of piracy."

"The U.S. State Department is implicated in this act of piracy by failing to make a public announcement of the act, and by thus appearing to tolerate this trespass upon our sovereignty," Helms added.

Helms is a supporter of Ronald Reagan, President Ford's challenger for the Republican presidential nomination, who has made the U.S. position in Panama a major campaign issue.

Helms said the Panamanian troops fired upon the vessel with large-caliber automatic weapons and carbines from a gunboat before the seizure.

Ordway said the State Department's position on the Sea Wolf's location when seized was based mainly on a statement by the boat's captain but that the embassy is investigating further.

An American-owned firm, Helicopters de Panama, had obtained a court order for the seizure, contending that General Electric Credit owed more than $50,000 for repairs made to the $650,000 yacht.

In Panama, a national guard report said the gunboat Anayansi opened fire after giving two warning bursts with its machine guns. It said the yacht stopped and was boarded by national guardsmen, who turned the vessel over to the custody of the court.

Helms said his staff was told by an official of the U.S. marshal's office in the Canal Zone that the repairs took place while the yacht was under impoundment by the U.S. District Court during an ownership dispute last year.

General Electric Credit, which held the mortgage on the Sea Wolf, purchased the vessel at a court-ordered auction May 5.

Lockheed aides face court rule

Associated Press

Three subpoenas were issued Friday in Los Angeles for depositions from Lockheed Aircraft Corp. executives allegedly involved in the firm's multimillion-dollar payoffs in Japan.

The subpoenas were signed by Chief U.S. District Judge Albert Lee Stephens on a request from the Justice Department. The Japanese government, in a highly unusual move, previously had asked the U.S. government for cooperation in obtaining information on the payoffs and the request was turned over to the Justice Department.

Stephens did not name the Lockheed officials involved.

The judge set up a special panel to preside over the taking of the depositions. Retired Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Kenneth Chantry was named to head the panel, with Justice Department Special Attorney Robert Clark and Asst. U.S. Atty. Carolyn Reynolds serving as co-commissioners.

Castro retaliation studied

Knight News Service

WASHINGTON — Senate Intelligence Committee investigators have come across documents showing that shortly before the assassination of President Kennedy, U.S. officials secretly studied the possibility that Fidel Castro might retaliate against American leaders for their attacks on Cuba.

According to informed sources, the existence of this study was kept secret from the Warren Commission which investigated the possibility of a Cuban connection in the Kennedy slaying, and, until recently, from the Senate Intelligence panel.

Committee investigators came across documents relating to the study in the course of their probe into the performance of the CIA and the FBI before and after the Nov. 22, 1963, assassination, these sources said. The committee's findings are to be made public in the next two weeks.

In an article in the current issue, The New Republic magazine says the team that performed the study was set up by former Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy and it was known as the "Cuban Coordinating Committee."

One member of the Cuban panel was the late Desmond Fitzgerald, a top CIA officer who was involved in a plot to kill Castro that was in progress on the day JFK was shot.

All members of the group, which included representatives of the FBI, CIA, State and Defense departments, were aware of the U.S.-sponsored commands raids on Cuba by anti-Castro Cubans, but apparently only Fitzgerald knew about the assassination plot against Castro.

Motorists took to the highways Friday for Memorial Day weekend travel that the National Safety Council estimated may result in 340 to 400 traffic deaths. The traffic fatality count started at 6 p.m. local time Friday and will end at midnight Monday.

Last year, during the same three-day holiday, 425 persons were killed in traffic accidents.

VW chooses site in Pennsylvania

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Volkswagen has settled on a partially finished Chrysler Corp. plant near Pittsburgh as the preferred site for its first assembly plant in the United States, Pennsylvania and Ohio officials said Friday.

The decision, announced in letters to the governors of the two states, ended a sharp bidding contest between them for the plant, its 5,550 new jobs and multimillion-dollar-a-year payroll.

Volkswagen selected a site owned by Chrysler in New Stanton, a town of 3,500 near the Pennsylvania Turnpike. From that location it hopes to rebuild its position in the U.S. auto market.

A Chrysler spokesman in Detroit said the firm is "pleased with Volkswagen's selection of the New Stanton plant."

The spokesman said Chrysler is not negotiating the sale of the plant directly with Volkswagen but rather through Pennsylvania officials.

David Brown, special assistant to Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp, said the West German automaker's board of management indicated its intentions in letters to Shapp and Gov. James A. Rhodes of Ohio.

"We will be negotiating with Volkswagen over the next several weeks. We hope to reach a final agreement in late June," Brown said.

He said Volkswagen listed several requirements Pennsylvania would have to meet before final agreement but declined to elaborate.

The 1,466-acre plant site consists of an exterior shell that Chrysler built in the late 1960s for about $35 million. Chrysler dropped plans to install $100 million worth of assembly machinery when the company nosedived financially.

In Ohio, Rhodes said Volkswagen had informed him that the automaker's second choice was a former tank plant in Brook Park, a Cleveland suburb. Columbus, the state capital, had been ruled out.

New ventures keep economy growing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Commerce Department economists peered into the government's economic crystal ball Friday and predicted increased business activity in the coming months.

But the economic seers reported a slight bit of haze clouded the crystal, a sign of possible economic trouble.

Nevertheless, said Maynard S. Comiez, Commerce's acting chief economist, the statistics continue "to show the economy is moving in the direction of expansion, although not as strongly."

Comiez based his analysis on the index of future activity. It consists of a dozen components and is designed to forecast economic trends.

The index climbed 1.1 per cent in April. Under normal circumstances, this would be regarded as a good portent. But the index failed to include the so-called "work week indicator," which measures the hours worked by production workers.

If the work week indicator is included in the overall index, the index would have risen only one-tenth of one per cent.

Officials explained the omission by saying the work week statistic was taken during a week that included both Passover and Easter, a time when many production workers took time off from their jobs. Thus, it was not representative of the entire month, they said.

"This is part of our attempt to make this index more representative of what's going on in the economy," said Beatrice N. Vaccara, associate director for national analysis and projection in the Commerce agency that prepares the leading indicators.

Comiez stood by his earlier forecast of a 7 per cent growth in the economy for the entire year, citing the index of future activity and April's Gross National Product.

The Gross National Product figures for April, released earlier this week, expanded at an annual rate of 8.5 per cent. The Gross National Product includes all goods and services.

The growth in the money supply was the biggest factor in boosting the index of future activity, Commerce officials said. Other positive influences cited were an increase in the number of new businesses formed, higher stock prices, price hikes for key commodities and slower deliveries by suppliers. The latter is interpreted as a signal of increased demand. Downward influences included an increasing number of persons laid off in manufacturing, a smaller volume of new orders for consumer products and a drop in the number of building permits issued.

FCC studies CB problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission announced Friday it has formed a planning group to look into the future of personal radio services, such as the popular citizens band radio.

The Personal Radio Planning Group, composed of FCC staff personnel, will suggest possible modifications to existing radio services or possibly the creation of an alternative personal radio service.

Fido getting more dry meal

Pets feeling economical pinch

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press

Consumers trying to save money by cutting food budgets are extending the thrift to family pets. While the family is eating fewer steaks and more hamburger, Fido is nibbling less canned meat and more dry meal.

Americans still are spending more than $2 billion to buy over 7 billion pounds of dog and cat food annually. But the rate of increase from 1974 to 1975 was smaller than in the previous year and there were indications that people were switching from canned foods to cheaper, dry varieties.

"With the canned-food units down and the dry units up, the trend seems to suggest a consumer compromise for the higher prices of all pet foods," said John C. Maxwell Jr. of Maxwell Associates, Wheat First Securities, Richmond Va.

Writing in the trade publication, Advertising Age, Maxwell said that dog and cat food sales totaled just under $2.7 billion in 1975. That was an increase of 8.2 per cent from 1974, compared to a rise of almost 24 per cent in the previous year.

There are three basic kinds of pet food: canned, moist and dry. The major difference is in the amount of water each kind contains, rather than in nutritional value.

Maxwell said sales of dry dog foods were up 7 per cent by volume from 1974 to 1975. Canned dog-food sales dropped 10 per cent in the same period and sales of moist dog foods dropped 3 per cent. Dry cat food was up 12 per cent, moist cat food was up 10 per cent and canned cat food was down 3 per cent.

The Pet Food Institute says most pet food is composed of meat, poultry or fish and their by-products and grains. In 1974, the latest year for which statistics are available, the pet food industry used 2.2 billion pounds of meat, poultry, fish and their by-products; 2.5 billion pounds of feed grains and by-products; and 901 million pounds of soybean meal.

The Food and Drug Administration has certain standards for pet food labels, just as it does for the labels on products for humans. Manufacturers must list ingredients in decreasing order of prominence although they do not have to list exact amounts.

"The wholesome nutritious ingredients should appear at the top of the list," said Ben E. Sheffy, a professor of nutrition at the Veterinary Virus Research Institute of Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y. "Anything that appears after the first few ingredients is likely to be present in very small quantities."

One exception is water. Some manufacturers simply use the statement, "water sufficient for processing," and put it at the end of the ingredient list. The FDA has now ruled that water used for processing must be listed in its proper order and has given manufacturers until Oct. 12 to comply with the new standard or face regulatory action.

Figuring out what to feed your dog or cat isn't always easy. The National Research Council of the National Academy of Sciences makes periodic studies and issues recommended daily allowances of different nutrients, but the specifics can get complex. One veterinary expert, who declined to be quoted by name, said most of the commercial pet foods do provide a balanced diet.

In an article on the nutritional needs of dogs, Sheffy said that deciding whether to use canned, dry or moist food "is not so much a matter of nutrition, but one of palatability, convenience, economics and the preferred type of feeding plan."

Ford fights blocking of food stamp cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is to seek a reversal of a federal court's temporary suspension of new regulations that would take food stamps away from more than 1.66 million families. Ford ordered the cutbacks Feb. 19.

Meanwhile, for the 5.88 million families now receiving stamps, and any seeking them next month, the decision "means everything's the same as it is now until June 15," Deputy Asst. Agriculture Secretary John A. Damgard said.

Telegrams were dispatched to the states after the judge's ruling Friday, to tell them not to put the rules into effect Tuesday as scheduled.

Doctors tell how to avoid doctors

WASHINGTON—James M. Vickery and Donald M. Fries are two young doctors worried by the fact that many of their fellow physicians are so busy taking care of patients who do not need their skills that they cannot give adequate attention to those who are seriously ill.

Vickery, of the Georgetown University Medical School faculty, and Fries, at Stanford Medical School, say unnecessary trips to physicians are a major reason why the cost of health care and insurance continue to rise faster than almost anything else consumers buy.

WITH the average American family of four now seeing a doctor four times a year, they said, it could hardly be otherwise. According to their estimates, based on 1973 government studies, that average family's annual medical bill is now $400, of which as much as $300 is needless expenditure.

To meet these problems, Vickery and Fries have written "Take Care of Yourself" (Addison-Wesley Publishers, $5.95), which not only discusses most common illnesses and symptoms but also contains read-at-a-glance charts that tell the reader when his complaint warrants seeing a physician and when he would do just as well to apply home remedies.

Suppose, to take just the simplest example, you or someone in your family is troubled by what you think is athlete's foot. The chart for this chapter asks a number of questions and, depending on your answers, then advises either making a doctor's appointment or undertaking the step-by-step home treatment that is described on the opposite page.

SHOULD the advice be to see a physician, the same chapter discusses what you should expect at the doctor's office in the way of diagnostic measures, prescriptions and other therapy.

Ellis isle revisited by 'aliens'

By MURRAY SCHUMACH
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — "We were so afraid we would not pass the health examination and would be sent back to Italy."

The recollection was still vivid to Anthony De Gennaro, 64 years after he first came to Ellis Island.

Charles Angoff, who came to the island from Russia in 1908, said: "It feels wonderful to be here. I came here with a dream and I discovered the dream was true."

Bernard Richland, who was kept on Ellis Island for two days after he arrived from Liverpool in 1925, said:

"IT WAS an administrative error. But it brought me an adventure."

The three men were among the hundreds who had invitations to the island for its official reopening Friday prior to its opening to the public Saturday.

While Sen. James L. Buckley and Reps. Bella S. Abzug, Elizabeth Holtzman and John Murphy delivered speeches under a huge American flag about the symbolism of the building in democracy, the three men sat on wooden benches in the main hall, perhaps the same one they had been on as immigrants.

They looked at the pale tiles of the arched ceiling and at the red-tiled floor, and remembered when the peeling walls were smooth and when Ellis Island was known as "the Isle of Tears."

THE official speakers used literary quotations as they compared the building to the Statue of Liberty on nearby Liberty Island, and they talked of the role of immigrants in the nation's history.

The three men reflected on the years since they had come to Ellis Island so many years ago.

De Gennaro, whose father became a longshoreman in Hoboken, N.J. and then bought a grocery store, won a scholarship to the Stevens Institute of Engineering, became a mechanical engineer and after 38 years with the American Can Company, retired as administrative assistant to a vice president.

ANGOFF, whose family moved to Boston, won a scholarship to Harvard, became managing editor of H. L. Mencken's American Mercury magazine during the 1920s and has written 40 books. He is a professor of English at Fairleigh Dickinson University and Yeshiva University.

Richland is the Corporation Counsel of New York City.

Panel chosen

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford announced Friday he plans to name 10 board members for the new National Center for Productivity and Quality, which was set up by Congress last November to advise on issues that affect productivity and the quality of working life.

People and ideas A variety of topics

RELIGION AND POLITICS

"One should never discuss religion or politics," some unsophisticated Americans still say.

A few of the more puritanical would add, "Or sex."

But what else is there to talk about except the weather. And even weather can have religious, political and even sexual connotations.

Certainly the religion of a politician is of utmost importance. The influence of that hard atheist, Lenin; that ultra-Catholic, Franco; that ultra-liberal Anglican, Churchill; that phony Siegfried, Hitler, changed world history.

"As a man thinketh in his heart —" Everyone should try to understand the religion of politicians. And be very cynical. Some of them can lie like truth. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

But there is also a politics of religion. How far should the church intrude into Caesar's domain? The answers are unclear and often tragic. In our Civil War — the worst and best of our wars — some Yankees called for the total abolition of slavery. But some learned Southern gentlemen argued that slavery was instituted by God. Many fall lads died.

In our time, what about those who refused to serve in a war they didn't like? Should they be forgiven? Or is the law the law?

It is impossible to separate politics and religion. And it is totally ignorant not to think about them.

And sex? Well, that is a hot potato for both religion and politics.

FREEWAYS VS. FARMLANDS

"If Interstate 80 were to be built across Iowa today, it might be located 70 miles further south, because the Bible says so," says a report of the American Lutheran Church.

The reason is that the land 70 miles south is less productive.

The Lutherans aren't being radical. The Farm Bureau has been preaching this for 20 years.

The tillable land taken out of production by super-highways is a problem in a world stricken by hunger. It is even becoming an American problem.

Freeways are, of course, necessary. But shouldn't the question be raised as to whether we can sacrifice corn and beans and potatoes simply for another convenience to motorists?

'THE HEART THAT CONDEMNS'

"Some people seem to move through life with little or no trouble. They have few serious health problems or financial crises. They appear to maintain and enjoy rewarding relationships. They seem to cope successfully with the challenges of life," says a publication of the Episcopal Foundation of Chicago.

"Most of us, on the other hand, are not so lucky. Even though we may enjoy a measure of fulfillment in certain areas of life, there are times when we know in our hearts that we are really not what we want to be."

But before we get too depressed, let us remember that we often do not know as much as we think about the persons who seem to have few problems... The truth is that none of us can know all the concerns and problems of even our good friends."

The essay then quotes the First Epistle of St. John: "... if our heart condemn us, God is greater than our heart and knoweth all things."

The essay continues, "If 'our heart condemn us,' we may be the luckiest people in the world. God has made another chance possible, and we can respond, no matter what our condition."

Pastor raps TM

Called non-Christian

By DARRELL SIFFORD
Knight Newspapers Writer

The Rev. David H. Paulsen ended the interview by saying:

"As pastor of your church and as a Christian, I must tell you that I believe you did wrong in starting transcendental meditation. You are practicing something that really contradicts Christian belief."

In a nutshell Paulsen is telling me that the contradiction comes because the theory on which transcendental meditation is based holds that man has within himself "divine glory" and that meditation can enable him to tap into this and enjoy the good life. On the other hand, he's saying, Christianity teaches that man experiences fulfillment not by diving into himself but by accepting Jesus Christ.

Paulsen is 35, a one-time college instructor in philosophy, associate pastor of the Lutheran Church, of which I am a member.

I arranged the interview with Paulsen after somebody told me Paulsen had delved into transcendental meditation (TM) and concluded that it is religious in nature and not compatible with Christian doctrine.

I began meditating two years ago and have written several columns about it, saying generally that I've found it works as a way to relax and feel better.

Essentially TM involves the repetition of a sound that seems to have a soothing effect on the nervous system, brings a slowdown in the body's metabolic rate — according to Harvard University studies — that is twice what you experience during deep sleep.

Paulsen said he arrived at his conclusions about TM after attending one lecture and after "reading all the books." TM instructors said he needed to read to understand TM.

Two of the half-dozen books he read, he said, were written by Maharishi Mahesh Yogi, the bearded and robed Hindu guru who is regarded as the primary teacher and chief proponent of TM and the Science of Creative Intelligence, the theory on which TM is based.

On the basis of his reading, Paulsen is saying, he finds the fundamental contradiction with Christianity to be in the theory behind TM — rather than in the practice of TM.

"I have no doubt that TM benefits many people who practice it. The medical documentation about lowering blood pressure and reducing metabolic rate can't be disputed.

"But I don't believe it's possible to separate the practice from the doctrinal beliefs behind the practice. By paying your $125 to take TM you're supporting the spread of its philosophy and this philosophy simply isn't compatible with Christianity."

Question: What are the things that most bother you about TM?

Answer: The initiation ceremony causes me big problems, as a Christian. There are references to a specific Hindu deity. The whole ceremony has Hindu overtones.

Lord, how oft shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? till seven times? Matthew 18:21.

POSITIVE THINKING

by Norman Vincent Peale

How To Handle A Handicap

I receive a great many letters a day and they contain all manner of fascinating human stories. Just recently, however, there came in the mail one of the most interesting I ever had.

"My letter will be a bit different from the ones you usually receive," it read. "I have everything to make life wonderful, good, and beautiful. God and I are very personal friends. I can do all the things I love to do for others because of His blessed help. I have a fine, kind husband, a very beautiful daughter, and I also enjoy a host of wonderful friends. I sing, play the piano, and give talks of a devotional nature. I pray that I am a blessing to those who need a blessing. What more could anyone ask of life than this?"

"Incidentally, I am without sight..."

A very different letter indeed! "Incidentally I am without sight!" Here is a woman who certainly knows how to handle a handicap. She seems actually to disregard it. She hasn't her thoughts fixed on the fact that she is blind. She does not concentrate on her difficulties nor complain about them. She does not dwell on the hazards of life, but rather upon the positive values. She fixes her thoughts on God and the welfare of others, overcomes her handicap, and so lives joyously.

Fortunately, very few of us are born sightless or become blind. But all of us do grow older — and age seems a big handicap to many. Here is another letter from the pile on my desk, a letter showing how one man handles the age and retirement problem, which becomes such a difficult experience for some.

"I reached the retirement age of 65, and against my wishes, was compelled to retire by the bank I had been with for 24 years. I won't go into detail as to how I felt. This happened on a dismal and rainy night — I was walking through Rector Street, and I never felt more depressed or useless in all my life.

"Suddenly, it happened! I had not prayed, but felt I was not alone. A voice within me said over and over again, 'God is good; God is good.' I immediately felt uplifted. Every drop of rain broke the puddles into tinseled lights. It was beautiful! I went home, greatly comforted, and have had the feeling ever since that I am looked after.

"About two weeks later I had a call from another bank asking me to organize a credit department for them... It, too, has the 65 year limit, but they have made an exception of me..."

"I am 69, and in good health. I am young, I know, because I feel the best is still ahead... The good Lord is giving me the opportunity, the strength, and the courage to keep on."

Here is expressed that same dauntless, positive spirit. "I am young... because I feel the best is still ahead!" This man is not handicapped by his 69 years. He has fixed his mind on the Source of eternal youth.

When a person really develops the ability to put his faith in God into actual practice, he can face any handicap at any time of his life and overcome it. I get letter after letter giving specific examples like these and therefore I am sure that such victorious living is possible, not only because I happen to believe in it, but because I can document it with innumerable case histories.

Missionary

Loreene Bell, recently commissioned by First Lutheran Church, leaves tonight for her assignment in Ukarumpa, Papua New Guinea. She will serve in the high school operated by Wycliffe Bible Translators. She has served for years as teacher, vice principal and reading tutor in Long Beach schools. She has visited the Far East on several occasions. She was commissioned last Sunday by Rev. Ronald J. Kusel, pastor, and her former pastor, Rev. E.H. Schroeder. She will participate in translation programs.

GOINGS ON

Kim Wickes, a concert singer, will present a program Sunday, 6:30 p.m., at the First Baptist Church of Lakewood, 5336 Arbor Road. Kim was blinded and almost died in the Korean War. She achieved a master's degree at Indiana University and has sung in many parts of the world. She has sung for Billy Graham. On Sunday, 9 and 10:30 a.m., the church will hear the Grace Generation, a youth choir from Tempe, Ariz.

Branch 43, Fleet Reserve Association, will hold a Memorial Day service at the Navy Family Chapel, 2014 W. Hill St., Monday at 11 a.m. Chaplain Ward D. McCabe (Ret.) will be the principal speaker.

Mrs. Barbara West, a third generation Baha'i whose children and grandchildren are also Baha'is, will speak at the Baha'i Center, 944 E. Broadway, Sunday at 8 p.m.

Four bell choirs and various other instruments will be presented in concert Sunday, 6 p.m., at the Garden Grove Community Church, 12141 Lewis St.

Ben Bibb, a retired naval officer, will tell of his experiences as a healer Sunday, 9:30 a.m., at the North Long Beach United Methodist Church, 5600 Linden Ave. He is teaching classes today through June 11 at the church.

Gary Fredricks, a Campus Crusade for Christ minister in Kenya, will preach Sunday, 9 and 10:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m., at Our Redeemer Lutheran Church, 12301 Magnolia Ave., Garden Grove. Gary, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fredricks, is a graduate of Jordan High, Long Beach City College, and UC Berkeley.

Rev. Kenneth Wells, a Bible scholar, will speak at the Norwalk Nazarene Church, 15000 Studebaker Road, Sunday, 10:45 a.m. and 6 p.m.

"Devil at the Wheel," a film, will be shown at Christian Life Church, Pacific Avenue and Wardlow Road, Sunday, 6 p.m. The event is sponsored by Doxa Unlimited, a group which helps young people with drug and other problems.

"The Joy of Sexuality" will be the topic of Pastor Bill E. Burch Sunday, 9:30 and 11 a.m., at First Nazarene Church, 2280 Clark Ave. It concludes a series called "The Marriage Affair," which Pastor Burch reports is the most successful series ever held in the church.

Father Luke Zimmer, S.S.C.C., will preside at the Catholic Day of Renewal, today, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on board the S.S. Princess Louise, Berth 236, Terminal Island.

"Crime and Punishment" is the topic of a public lecture by Dr. Robert Bonnell, sponsored by the Theosophical Society of Long Beach, Wednesday, 7:45 p.m., at the YMCA, Long Beach Boulevard at Sixth Street.

Parable, a Christian folk-rock group, will give a concert Sunday, 2 p.m., in Recreation Park, Seventh Street and Park Avenue. It is sponsored by the Good News Ministries.

Rev. Ted Hard, a missionary from Korea, will preach Sunday, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., at the First Orthodox Presbyterian Church, 500 E. San Antonio Drive.

Church Women United invites all who wish to know more about CROP to attend the Forum Friday, 9:30 a.m., at Wesley Methodist Church, 1100 Freeman Ave. Rev. Harry W. Hixon, CROP associate director, will be the speaker.

The Christian Singles will hear Madame Bilquis Sheikh next Saturday, 6:30 p.m., at a dinner at St. Timothy's Lutheran Church, 4645 Woodruff Ave.

"How to Lose Weight With the Help of the Lord" will be conducted by Joan Cavanaugh next Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., at Trinity Chapel, 5512 Woodruff Ave., Lakewood. Joan weighed 230 pounds but lost 90 of them.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The "Goings On" column is for the announcement of events of general community interest. We are not interested in strictly intramural activities like church dinners or church elections. The events should be free except for nominal charges for food and for free-will offerings.

LETTERS

Not modern

I don't see how a Christian can condone Capital Punishment when Christ prayed for his executioners. After the death of Christ many Christians were executed in a public and cruel manner, but this did not deter the growth of Christianity.

Where the death penalty is asked many juries will exonerate the guilty because of the small amount of doubt that exists in the back of everyone's mind.

Society must protect itself from the dangerous person. Capital Punishment, barbarous as it is, must be used where there are inadequate jails. In view of the conditions of some jails, Capital Punishment could be considered humane.

Capital Punishment, at best, is nothing more than an instrument of revenge. It belongs to the Middle Ages, not to modern enlightened society.

New revolt?

Well, I guess you might call this a thank-you letter because for a long time I have intended to write and just say "thank you" for the Religion Pages every Saturday. I always look forward to reading them. Enjoy your editorial (or commentary) column and always like to read the opinions of the folks in the community regarding various topics in the letters they write you pro and con various issues.

An idea for a future discussion would be: what would your readers think of the idea of the best way to celebrate our Nation's Bicentennial would be to have a Spiritual and Moral Revolution in this country? Perhaps they don't think one is necessary — or perhaps like myself would not know where to start even if you think this is a good idea. My personal opinion is that our hard fought Revolution 200 years ago — to secure freedom and justice, etc. and which gave birth to a really great country will be for naught if people in all walks of life — all levels — do not make an honest effort to establish integrity in their lives, their businesses — learn to listen to that voice of conscience again. Or is this an out of fashion idea like it sometimes seems patriotism is?

Well, I know I can start with me, but the bigger issues like crime and corruption and the rest are what I feel helpless about. Thanks again for "your" pages and I think you do a good job of dealing with some difficult and controversial topics.

Not Christian?

I am writing concerning the letter of R.W. Bissailon (May 22). I would like to set some basic truths before Jehovah's Witnesses about Christianity and about what the Bible says. He stated that it was "absurd" that the doctrines of the Jehovah's Witnesses differ from basic Christian doctrines. I most strongly disagree.

First of all, the Bible and Christianity claim that Jesus Christ is God come in the flesh. When the angel appeared to Joseph in a dream, he quoted a prophecy from the Old Testament concerning the Christ, "And she will

Greeks seek new format

CHICAGO. (AP) — Archbishop Iakovos, primate of the Greek Orthodox Church in North and South America, has initiated steps here for decentralizing authority in the body of 2 million members.

The plan, already tentatively approved by the Ecumenical Patriarchate of Constantinople under which the church functions, would shift from collective overall direction to provincial administration under eight regional bishops, in accordance with joint guidelines.

A report of the change, expected to be implemented by Jan. 1, 1977, will be made at the church's biennial Clergy-Laity Congress in Philadelphia July 2-9.

Ministry of laity

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The National Federation of Priests' Councils says the Roman Catholic Church must rely "far more on the common responsibility of all the people" in its ministry, and not just on the clergy.

"For too long the Church has given clergy the primary role in ministry," the federation's House of Delegates said in a convention resolution, adding that Jesus's ministry shows it is carried out by all members, at every level.

bear a Son; and you shall call His name Jesus, for it is He who will save His people from their sins." Now all this took place that what was spoken by the Lord through the prophet might be fulfilled, saying, "Behold, the virgin shall be with child, and shall bear a Son, and they shall call His name Immanuel," which translated means, "God with

Ignorance not bliss

NEW YORK (AP) — Some people wrongly think that "the less you know, the easier it will be" to maintain faith in God, says the Rev. William J. O'Malley, a Jesuit high school teacher in Rochester, N.Y.

This attitude equates belief with ignorance, and thereby demeans belief, he writes in a new Paulist Press book, "The Roots of Unbelief." He says modern challenges demand an even more rigorously intellectual approach to faith.

Seminarians are saner

CINCINNATI (AP) — The head of a psychological unit which evaluates applicants for religious orders and the ministry says candidates are healthier and more stable than they were 10 years ago.

William C. Wester, director of the Behavioral Science Center which conducts evaluations for 42 religious groups around the country, says that only about one in 10 applicants is found to be considered unacceptable, although this finding may be disregarded by the group involved.

Problems in Paraguay

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Six Paraguayan staff members of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) have been imprisoned in Paraguay without charges, the church says.

It says reports reaching church headquarters here were that the arrests came in April during a government crack-down on organizations it labeled "subversive." Three other church workers were deported or have sought asylum, the church says.

First Christian fires its elders

By an overwhelming majority the congregation of First Christian Church, 125 E. Fifth St. voted on May 23 to recall the Board of Elders. The vote was 127 to 3.

This unusual action seems to have come from a conflict concerning the right way to be conservative.

"I consider myself very conservative in the tradition of our founder, Alexander Campbell," said the young pastor, Michael E. Dixon, "but I have to live in the modern world.

When I came here I told the board there would be no more 'Episcopalian' music. I think our music should reach people. And I think we should reach out to all kinds of people."

Pastor Dixon has been doing this. In the two years or so he has been here the congregation has more than doubled in size. But some of the newcomers apparently didn't fit the staid format.

The recall, Dixon pointed out, didn't amount to a total censure of the board.

Under the bylaws, the entire board, not just some members, must be recalled. There will be an election of elders.

The Christian Church is democratic and congregational in structure. The people elect three boards — the elders, who are expected to give spiritual guidance; the deacons, who serve in the church's work, and the trustees, who handle the business. The minister is hired by the boards and the congregation.

The bitterness has been rather intense with the elders voting to fire Dixon. That apparently is not what the congregation wanted.

First Christian was during the 1920s, 1930s and 1940s was an extremely dynamic church. It conducted the world's largest men's Bible class. In recent years it has declined.

Pastor Dixon is trying to reverse the trend. With special events he has seen the huge church nearly full on a couple of occasions

Nine priests to be ordained

Nine new priests for the Los Angeles archdiocese will be ordained today at 9:30 a.m. in St. Vibiana's Cathedral by Cardinal Timothy Manning.

All are graduates of St. John's Seminary, the archdiocesan major seminary in Camarillo.

The ordinands are Rev. Alfred S. Burnham of Long Beach; Rev. Michael J. Carcerano, Long Beach; Rev. Gregory A. Cox, Claremont; Rev. Edward J. Dober, Westlake Village; Rev. Thomas Q. Fitzpatrick, Westchester; Rev. Perry D. Leiker, North Hollywood; Rev. Richard A. Loomis; Pacific Palisades; Rev. Mario J. Pacheco, Los Angeles; and Rev. George R. Sullivan, Ventura.

Another member of the St. John's class, Father James M. Farris of Santa Ana, was ordained May 23 in his home parish, St. Barbara's, Santa Ana, by Bishop William R. Johnson, bishop-designate of Orange. He will serve in the new Orange diocese.

Other members of the 1976 St. John's Seminary class include Rev. Charles F. Smith, who was ordained for the Fresno diocese May 15 in his home parish, St. Mary's, Visalia, and Rev. Joseph C. Ladensack, Chandler, Ariz., who will be ordained June 5 in Phoenix for the Phoenix diocese.

Jewish growth
NEW YORK (AP) — An upward trend in Jewish religious affiliation was indicated in 1975 statistics for Reform Judaism, with membership in its 720 congregations growing from 1 to 3 per cent.

Also, 27 new congregations applying for admission is the largest number in more than a decade.

Blessing for thieves

DUNBA, Calif. (AP) — The Gideons have a problem with people stealing Bibles they place on motel, hotel and hospital nightstands all over the world, but it doesn't bother them too much.

"We figure if one is gone, the guy who took it really needed it, so the purpose is served," says Dave Hofer Jr., president of Gideons International. He notes that sometimes persons who take Bibles later send letters to Gideon headquarters in Nashville, with a $5 or $10 donation for it.

The Gideons have distributed 150 million Bibles or New Testaments since the group was founded 77 years ago — about one million copies a month last year.

"About 20 per cent are taken home from motels and hotels each year and about 35 per cent are taken from hospitals," he says. "Local members go around ... to see if they are missing and to replace them."

Ministry for gays

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — A new organization to work with homosexuals, Evangelicals Concerned, was formed at a meeting here of conservative Christians. Its president, Brad Wilson, a "gay" social worker and a minister of the Church of God, Anderson, Ind., says the step opens "a new era in the life of the evangelical church ... We shall seek dialogue between the thousands of gay believers and the historic church."

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time, an Indian has been named to the staff of the United Methodist Commission on Religion and Race in the appointment of the Rev. Kenneth J. Deere of Muskogee, Okla., a Creek, as the agency's associate executive secretary.

Soviet clergy visit U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — A delegation of high-ranking clergymen of the Soviet Union, including Jewish representatives for the first time as well as Christians, has ended a 10-day visit with U.S. religious leaders with mutual expressions of friendship and cooperation.

It "has opened new possibilities for further work together in the future," said Metropolitan Juvenaly of Moscow's Russian Orthodox Patriarchate, chairman of the nine-member delegation. It also included Roman Catholic, Baptist and Lutheran representatives.

Episcopalians set record

NEW YORK (AP) — Episcopalians gave a record amount of $2.7 million in 1975 to their presiding Bishop's Fund for World Relief, the highest in its 35-year history.

A Church report attributed the upsurge to "an awakening consciousness to the urgency of the world hunger problem." In distributing $3 million for such projects — including a carry-over from 1974 — the report said administrative costs were held to only 5 per cent.

'Nothing dull,' pastor says

NASHVILLE (AP) — In the past four years, buildings of the Woodmont Baptist church here have twice been struck by lightning, suffered $400,000 damage in a major fire in 1974, and the choir room was looted during a recent worship service.

"There's nothing dull about being a pastor here," observes the pastor, the Rev. Bill Sherman.

STUMPING

American people are being deprived of up to 60,000 barrels of oil a day," he added, pointing to a group of "shut in" (closed) wells.

"Right over there is a tanker filled with Arab oil that sells for $13 a barrel," Reagan said, motioning toward a huge ship. "It's ridiculous for Americans to buy foreign crude while domestic wells sit idle."

Reagan said he came to Long Beach at the invitation of California Independent Oil Producers, who asked him to "assess the oil situation."

The nonprofit organization, which represents about 170 of the state's 300 active independent oil producers, has been fighting the oil-price ceiling since it was placed on low-gravity crude oil by the Federal Energy Administration three years ago.

The national average selling price for domestic oil is about $6.25 per barrel, but California oil can sell for only $4.21 per barrel because of the federal price ceiling.

A spokesman for the oil producers' association said President Ford had been invited to tour the oil field but declined.

Later Friday, Reagan was feted at a $100-a-plate fund-raising dinner at the Golden Sails Inn. About 400 persons attended.

NEXT TUESDAY'S primaries are in Rhode Island, Montana and South Dakota, but several of the candidates were paying more attention to primaries June 8 in larger states, California, Ohio and New Jersey.

In Los Angeles, Brown was asked during the taping of a television program whether he ruled out mandatory busing.

"If I were asked, I would rule it out," he said. "If the courts want to rule it in, then certainly we're going to follow the rules."

Asked later what he had meant, Brown was quick to add: "It's not given to me to rule it in or out. It's for the courts to deal with."

He also said American society must be integrated racially if it is to survive. "If we don't integrate society, I don't think society over the long run will make it," he said.

Brown said that as president he would not file an antibusing brief with the U.S. Supreme Court in the Boston busing case. Such a brief would be "jumping into troubled waters," he said. He added, "My hunch is that the courts may give a certain amount of latitude to local school districts, which I think would be a very good thing."

Brown said he had "serious questions" about whether busing will improve the equality of education and integration.

REAGAN ALSO WAS in Los Angeles, where he said sale of U.S. arms to mainland China would be "a natural development" in America's developing relationship with China.

"I happen to believe myself that, yes, we should promote relations with mainland China," Reagan said at a news conference.

But he attacked the Ford administration for its foreign diplomacy. "There seems to be a developing pattern of secrecy on the part of the administration with regard to the American people and what they are entitled to know," Reagan said.

Reagan also said he was concerned that the Ford administration might cut off relations with Taiwan after the presidential election in November.

"There are the rumors, the reports (of) the leaks of sacrificing Taiwan, a long-time ally and friend, but we won't do that until after the election," he said.

REAGAN SAID HE based his comment on reports from a congressman and from journalists who took part in an off-the-record background briefing about a month ago with a high State Department official. He said a plan was outlined in the briefing which "if carried out, would mean yielding to their demand that we sacrifice Taiwan."

Reagan said in connection with the possible sale of weapons to mainland China that he hoped "an effort would be made to see that those would not be used aggressively against non-Communist neighbors."

Asked about reports that the administration was close to approving conditional sales of arms to China, Reagan said: "The mutual interest of mainland China and the United States is the Soviet Union. So I accept that (arms sales to China) as a natural development."

Late tally nets Brown two more delegates

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — New figures from News Election Service on Friday gave Gov. Brown of California an additional two Democratic delegates from Oregon's primary election.

The late count of Brown's write-in votes, still not complete, took one delegate away from Jimmy Carter and one from Sen. Frank Church.

The new, unofficial count was Church 14, Carter 11 and Brown 9. NES figured the breakdown on the basis of the statewide vote in Tuesday's election. In fact, however, delegates are allotted by congressional district, so the final count may differ.

The vote percentage also changed. Church and Carter each lost 1 per cent, and Brown gained 2. The new figures were Church 34 per cent, Carter 27 per cent and Brown 25 per cent.

Brown's new vote total was 102,671, the highest ever recorded for a write-in candidate in Oregon.

TAX BITE

cent assessment increase. That would call for a tax rate hike of about nine cents per $100 assessed valuation.

The estimated average countywide assessment increase of 12.25 per cent however could represent a major blessing to county government, which is in the throes of a massive financial crunch.

Chief Administrative Officer Harry Hufford has proposed a $3.2 billion budget which calls for a 41-cent county general fund tax rate increase. If it were to be passed in its present form, 38 cents of the increase would lift the current county tax rate to its legal limit and supervisors would have to vote to raise a further three to four cents as a special override.

Despite the projected 41-cent tax rate increase, Hufford's budget called for numerous service cuts—including a number of health care cutbacks in the Long Beach area.

Hufford's tax rate estimate, however, was based on the countywide tax rolls increasing by only 10 per cent. If the 12.25 per cent increase holds up, it will have the effect of reducing his tax rate hike by about 10 cents.

This means the Board of Supervisors could finance the entire spending package proposed by Hufford with only a 31-cent instead of a 41-cent tax rate increase.

Alternatively the additional assessment hike could provide up to about $15 million in additional revenue, which could be used to leave the tax rate at its legal limit and yet finance those projects which Hufford recommended should be cut.

TEST PACT SIGNED

spectors are not used in this treaty, the door has been opened for the United States to argue in future arms control negotiations — such as the next stage of strategic arms talks — for the right of "on-site inspection."

Up to now, the United States has agreed that through photo satellites in the sky and other intelligence-gathering devices it can adequately verify that the Soviet Union is living up to accords putting limits on strategic weapons.

But if the current deadlock in the strategic arms talks is broken and an accord is reached, the next stage of such negotiations — aimed at reducing each side's levels of missiles — may require on-site inspectors to verify compliance, American officials said Friday.

Thus, the United States might want to check that missiles were not in a depot being stored when they should have been destroyed, an official said. Random checks of missile warheads might be sought to verify multiple warhead limits, he said.

But the Russians, up to now, have resisted any "on-site" inspection of their military hardware. And the care with which the verification procedures, even for the fairly harmless "peaceful" tests, have been drawn, indicates the wariness that still exists between the two sides.

The latest agreement, hailed by Ford as "an historic milestone," will probably be approved without much enthusiasm by the Senate if the White House pushes for it. That remains to be seen, given Ford's own ambiguity on dealing with the Russians.

An investigation into possible corruption in Long Beach city government is continuing, but "it's a little too early to say" if charges will be filed against more municipal officials or civilians, a member of the district attorney's office said Friday.

Bruce Campbell, head of the district attorney's special investigations division, said members of his staff are conducting daily interviews with persons who might provide information about possible illegal activities in the city.

His investigation stems in part from the May 14 arrest of Long Beach Planning Director Ernest Mayer Jr., who has been charged with two counts of solicitation and bribery.

Mayer allegedly was paid more than $50,000 over a four-year period by Long Beach architects James Coppedge and Clafflin A. Ballance in exchange for his help in pushing six multimillion-dollar projects through the city's planning department.

Coppedge and Ballance have been granted immunity from prosecution as a result of their cooperation with the district attorney's office.

Campbell said one of the persons interviewed this week in connection with the case was Long Beach developer William T. Dawson. Dawson was scheduled to talk with representatives from the district attorney's office last week, but changed his plans until his attorney could be present.

He said Friday he was asked to meet with investigators because two of his real estate developments allegedly were pushed through the city planning department by Mayer in exchange for payoffs from Coppedge and Ballance.

Dawson developed Marina Pacifica, and acquired the land for the construction of the Harbor Bank branch at Ocean Boulevard and Alamitos Avenue.

He said he discussed those projects with investigators last Tuesday. He has denied previous knowledge of payoffs to Mayer by the two architects.

Investigators who searched Mayer's penthouse apartment at the International Towers said they found a $20,000 IOU signed by Dawson.

Campbell refused to reveal the content of his conversation with the developer.

Monday, Long Beach City Councilman Wallace Edgerton spoke to district attorney's staff members

in connection with the charges against Mayer.

The content of that conversation was not revealed, either.

Edgerton has called for the retirement of City Manager John Mansell and suggested that all council members take lie-detector tests on questions regarding possible corruption in city government.

The Second District councilman has admitted taking dates to a Marina Pacifica condominium apartment owned by Mayer but said he had no knowledge of the planning director's other affairs.

SCHOOL SHUT

end of the Memorial Day holiday, unless paychecks were issued. But his mandate became academic when Kibbee announced the closing.

"The funds currently available to the university have been exhausted and I am prevented by law from spending money in advance," Kibbee said. "Therefore it is with deep regret and sorrow that I order the closing of the university at midnight."

Kibbee, like city officials, said he had looked to the state legislature for financial assistance to enable CUNY to complete the school year. A bill currently before the legislature would provide $24 million in state funds for the current term and $171 million for future operations.

But Democratic leaders in the State Assembly were unable to marshal enough support Thursday to pass the measure. Said one metropolitan area assemblyman: "Nobody wants to go home and find people saying you voted for tuition."

Although the bill does not mention tuition, behind the funding package is a mandate that CUNY end its free tuition policy.

Democratic Gov. Hugh Carey has urged CUNY to impose the same tuition as the state university system, $750 a year for freshmen and sophomores and $900 a year for juniors and seniors.

Kibbee denied reports that he had been urged to close the university "as an attempt to goad the legislators into appropriating the necessary funds."

Although CUNY's professors are highly paid, they have possibly the heaviest teaching load in the nation, according to a survey by the American Association of University Professors.

Salaries and fringe benefits range from $32,400 to $38,000 for full professors at CUNY, compared to a national average of $26,270. Polshook estimated that the average overall pay at CUNY is about $19,000, compared to $18,500 elsewhere.

However, the average weekly teaching load at CUNY is 12 to 15 hours a week, according to Polshook, who called it "probably the highest workload of any quality university in this country."

And CUNY provides one teacher per 18 to 19 students, compared to a ratio elsewhere of 15.2-to-one to 17.1-to-one.

LBCC one win from State title Harris shackles Harbor, 4-1

By PAUL McLEOD

Long Beach City College baseball coach Bob Myers sent his best man to the mound Friday afternoon, and Greg Harris responded with one of his best games.

Harris, a self-proclaimed rubber-armed righthander out of Los Alamitos High, struck out eight batters, scattered six hits and four walks, and held high-powered Harbor scoreless for six innings while pitching out of jams in the final three innings to lead the Vikings to a 4-1 victory in the first game of the best-of-three California junior college baseball playoffs against Harbor College.

The teams meet again today at Harbor at 11:30 a.m. If Harbor wins, a penultimate game will follow.

Harris, in recording his 18th win of the season, received heavy support from 10 LBCC hits—two by leftfielder Brad Liebeck and second baseman Pat Estes and three by third baseman Rick Kienast.

Rod Van Lue of Carson took the loss. Van Lue entered the game with a 1.84 Southern California Conference earned run average. He struck out one and walked one.

Harbor may not have seen the last of Harris.

"We've got no one better," said Long Beach coach Bob Myers. "If we have to use him we will."

"If they get in trouble they'll bring him back. He's their best. No doubt about it," said Harbor coach Jim O'Brien about the man who held a team that averaged more than 10 runs a game during the five-day SoCal playoffs last week to a solo score in the seventh on Friday.

"I'll tell you one thing, though," offered the first-year coach from North Torrance. "We'll hit him a lot better the next time we face him."

Harbor had at least one runner on base in each of the final three innings.

Long Beach tallied three runs in the top of the second inning. A single by Vern Followell, an error on a sacrifice try by Perry Maloney and another single by designated hitter Wes Robinson loaded the bases with none out. Estes drove home Maloney and Followell with the first two Viking runs on a single to rightfield. Liebeck singled home Estes one out later, after Kienast singled Estes to third.

The Vikings added a run in the sixth when singles by Estes, Orlando Bryant and Kienast loaded the bases, and Liebeck's deep sacrifice fly to left scored Estes.

Suddenly Harbor picked up the fight against Harris.

CINCINNATI—Joe Morgan hadn't swung a bat in a week.

So it was as much of a surprise to him as it was to Don Sutton that he rammed a three-run home run in the first inning Friday night, touching off the Cincinnati Reds' 9-0 rout of the Dodgers behind Pat Zachry's five-hit pitching before 35,197 fans at Riverfront Stadium.

"I just didn't want to strike out," the National League's 1975 Most Valuable Player confessed after the game that pared the Dodgers' lead in the N.L. West to a single game.

"It's the first time I've had back trouble," Morgan said of the ailment that has idled him since Saturday. "I've played with sore arms and bad legs, but never a bad back. So the only thing I did for a week was sit in a whirlpool."

A whirlpool? It was the Fountain of Youth—and it provided recuperative powers even Morgan wouldn't have believed.

In addition to his first inning homer, his sixth of the season, the little second baseman drilled a triple in the seventh inning off reliever Mike Marshall and scored when George Foster smashed a mammoth home run, a three-run shot to center. Foster has driven in 18 runs and clubbed five homers in his last seven games.

This was the Big Red Machine at its best.

out a dozen hits, half of them for extra bases and three for home runs.

The benefactor was the 24-year-old Zachry, a 6-5 righthander from Texas who wasn't even part of the Reds' plans this spring.

He's now 4-0 with a 1.17 earned run average. Two of his victories have come at the Dodgers' expense.

"He's going to get better, too," promised his manager, Sparky Anderson. "Don't forget, this is his first year. He's just a kid. Wait until he gets his feet on the ground."

Ryan confuses barber but not Royal hitters in 3-0 setback

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

Who is the man behind the mask?

It's Nolan Ryan, that's who. Well, not a mask, actually, but a five-day growth of whiskers.

In an effort to reverse his fortunes, which have been all bad recently, Ryan has resorted to growing a beard.

"I'm hoping," he said, "that people won't recognize me as readily."

One cannot blame Ryan for wanting to hide behind cover. His personal losing streak reached five games Friday night as he surrendered 10 hits to the free-swinging Kansas City Royals and was outduelled by reliever-turned-starter Doug Bird in dropping a 3-0 verdict.

"I don't see any positive aspects," Ryan said after his outing and after his record dipped to a discouraging 3-6. "I had very average stuff."

"I'd just like to forget about this month," he sighed, cognizant of the fact he has not won a game since May 1.

Bird becalmed the Angels on a six-hitter for his fifth win and received yeoman support from third baseman George Brett.

Brett boomed a triple and single and turned in two defensive gems at third base, confessing later that he was a man with a motive.

The motive, he said, was a controversial scoring call which deprived his brother Ken of a no-hitter Wednesday night at the Big A.

"We talked about it at a luncheon today," Brett revealed, "and it gave me some extra incentive."

Brett performed like a man possessed. He deprived Lee Stanton of what looked like a sure double in the second inning when he dove behind the bag and made a backhand stab of Stanton's wicked one-hopper, throwing Stanton out at first with room to spare.

He also ranged to his left and made an exceptional play on Bobby Bonds' ground ball in the sixth.

Then, with the Royals and Bird protecting a nervous 1-0 lead, Brett opened the eighth inning with a triple into the rightfield corner, scoring easily on John Mayberry's ensuing fly to center.

"We all think we can win it," Brett said.

He was seconded by manager Whitey Herzog.

Anyone for checkered toilet seat? It's Christmas at Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Where else but Indianapolis in May could you find a black-and-white checkered toilet seat?

Or a fifth of bourbon bottled in a replica of A.J. Foyt's Coyote race car? Or a Catholic Mass celebrated in Gasoline Alley, in the midst of 33 of the most powerful racing machines in the world?

It's all part of the spring ritual that begins when the first "Welcome Race Fans" signs sprout up around the Hoosier capital and ends when the winner of the Indianapolis 500-mile race picks up a check for more than $100,000 at the victory banquet the night after the race.

But the welcome signs, the bourbon bottles and the checkered toilet seats aren't just a May version of "Hoosier hospitality." They also translate into dollar signs for the city.

"We estimate that there's between $16 million and $18 million in expenditures in the city revolving around the race and its ancillary activities in May," says John T. Watkins, executive director of the Indianapolis Convention and Visitors Bureau.

That figure is backed by a spokeswoman for the 500 Festival Associates, a non-profit corporation that coordinates race-related festivities throughout May.

"Businessmen tell us that the month of May now equals December in receipts at many of the stores," she says.

The city's 9,500 hotel and motel rooms have long since been spoken for. According to Watkins, two days before the race, only 25 to 60 rooms are available in Indianapolis—depending on last-minute cancellations—with most being rented in three-day packages at $80 to $100.

The "500" has spawned a flood of activities, most under the direction of 500 Festival Associates and upwards of 5,000 community volunteers who join them in May.

The month-long festival is now in its 20th year.

Reed came on with two on in the fifth, retired three batters in a row and went on to earn his third victory while allowing only two hits.

The Phillies erupted for six runs on five hits in the second to take a 6-2 lead, kayoing the Expos' Dave Stanhouse. Bobby Tolan led off with a walk and Jay Johnstone doubled him to third. Garry Maddox, rapped into a fielder's choice on which Tolan was gunned down at the plate.

Dick Allen doubled to right, scoring Johnstone with Maddox stopping at third. Bob Boone was given an intentional walk, but Phillie starter Tom Underwood upset Montreal's strategy with a single to center that scored Maddox and left the bases loaded.

Cash followed with the single to center, placing Allen and Boone. Stanhouse enticed Larry Bowa to hit into a fielder's choice, but he was headed for the showers after Schmidt singled home the fifth run of the frame. Reliever Fred Scherman finally ended the run-away by striking out Johnstone after an error allowed the sixth run to score.

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Hubert Green, although occasionally confronted with situations, "where you have to invent shots," manufactured a difficult round of par-72 and edged into a one-stroke lead Friday in the second round of Jack Nicklaus' new classic, the $200,000 Memorial Golf Tournament.

Green collected five more birdies—giving him 13 for two days play—on his way to a 36-hole total of 141, three-under-par on the menacing monster that is the Muirfield Village Golf Club course, a 7,072-yard layout designed and constructed by Nicklaus and almost certainly the toughest the touring pros encounter all year.

"There are some very punishing holes out there," said Hubert.

"It's a lot like the British Open. You have to manufacture shots. I had one that I had to hit under a limb, through an opening between trees, over water and play a little slice from a hook stance. It's not a shot I practice a lot. It's not one I want to practice," Green said.

"Another time I got it plugged in a bunker and had no shot. I couldn't even play my Mickey Mouse-guess shot."

The new course—featuring a rock-strewn creek that meanders through man-made hills, tiny greens slick as a frozen pond, enormous walnut trees and deep rough lining the narrow fairways—played even more difficult than usual due to a chilly, blustery wind and occasional drizzles.

77, loses LPGA lead

BALTIMORE (AP) — Sharon Miller fired a five-under-par 68, the best round of the day, and pulled into a three-way tie Friday in the Ladies' Professional Golf Association Championship.

Joining Miss Miller with 36-hole totals of 142 were Gerda Boykin, who toured the Pine Ridge course with a second consecutive 71, and Hollis Stacy, who scrambled for a 73.

First-round leader Laura Baugh jumped to 77 following an opening 68 and joined Carole Jo Skala and Murie Breer at 145.

Betty Burfeindt missed a birdie attempt on the last hole, which would have enabled her to tie the leaders, and dropped into fourth at 143 after shooting a 72 Friday. Chako Higuchi of Japan, with a 71, held fifth place at 144.

CAMPREGHER TARGETS ON SECOND TEE TITLE

Husky Tony Campregher attempts to become the first golfer in 31 years to win consecutive titles in the 52nd Long Beach Match Play Golf Championship this weekend at El Dorado.

The 20-year-old former Long Beach State University star must survive two matches today to reach the 36-hole final Sunday. He beat Keith Lopp, 8-7, in the championship match last year.

Del Walker, the reigning International Seniors champion from Virginia Country Club, is the only golfer to win two in a row. He won three in succession in 1943-44-45.

Campregher is paired against avocado rancher Les Kamm, 29, of Escondido this morning and a victory would send him against either Chuck Wallace or Randy Pallis in the afternoon match.

Roger Fagan, a former publican champion, is the favorite in the other bracket. The Torrance 20-year-old goes against Doug Peters in the morning, with the winner taking on either Gary Ballantyne or Ed McBratney.

The morning matches begin at 8 a.m. the afternoon matches at 1.

Softball tournaments at Rodgers, Mayfair

Two 16-team softball tournaments will be played over the Memorial Day weekend, one at Mayfair Park in Lakewood and the other at Joe Rodgers Field in Long Beach.

The Lakewood Jets host the Mayfair tournament, which features seven teams from the Western Softball Congress and two Northern California entries, Visalia and Fresno.

Five Pacific Coast League teams compete in the PCL tournament at Joe Rodgers Field. Oceanside is top-seeded.

The finals in both tournaments will be played Monday.

The Long Beach Nitehawks left Friday for Phoenix where they will play in a tournament beginning today against Ogden, Utah. The event is hosted by the 1974 International Softball Congress champion. The Nitehawks won the 1975 title.

In pro competition, the Southern California Stars play in the Banning Tournament beginning today.

Edles plays giant killer —again—in NCAA tennis

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — A West Coast parade led by Stanford and Poly High graduate Joe Edles highlighted the National Collegiate Athletic Association tennis tournament Friday.

Stanford kept its lead in the team race, 20-18 over Southern California. UCLA was in third with 16.

Unseeded Edles of Southern Methodist defeated No. 1 seed Billy Brock of North Carolina, 4-6, 7-6, 6-3.

"I just can't believe it," said Edles, who lost more than half his matches this year. "To think of how my year has been and have this happen. At this point, I don't know what to think. I play (UCLA's Peter) Fleming tomorrow and I have nothing to lose."

Edles ousted fifth-seeded Ross Walker of Houston Thursday.

Stanford clung to the top spot despite losses by three of its four singles entries, Bill Maze, Mark Mitchell and Matt Mitchell. Pat DuPre is the remaining Stanford singles entry.

UCLA still has two entries alive in the singles—Fleming and Ferdi Taygan. Fleming dropped Maze, 6-1, 7-5; Taygan took Mark Mitchell 4-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Joining Fleming and Taygan in today's final rounds are DuPre, Joao Soares of Pepperdine, Bill Scanlon of Trinity and Southern California's Bruce Manson, all seeded in the top eight.

The group was joined by the longshots—Edles and Tim Garcia of New Mexico, both competing without benefit of their coach or teammates.

Soares, a 1975 semifinalist, dropped a tie-breaker set to Matt Mitchell of Stanford but rallied for a 6-7, 6-2, 6-4 victory.

Scanlon blitzed Utah's Kent Crawford, Manson eliminated Big 10 champion Francisco Gonzalez of Ohio State, and DuPre walloped Steve Wedderburn of Oklahoma City.

UC Irvine to request admission in PCAA for 1977-78 season

The Pacific Coast Athletic Association will be asked next week to admit UC Irvine for the 1977-78 season.

A spokesman for the PCAA said he understood that UCI chancellor Daniel G. Aldrich, Jr. will formally ask the PCAA Council for admission at the council's annual meeting in Stockton, June 1-3.

A spokesman for UCI confirmed the report and said the Anteaters will soon apply to the National Collegiate Athletic Association for Division I status in all sports except football.

Despite the fact that UCI was established only 11 years ago, the Anteater's athletic program is competitive in most spring sports. They are among the favorites to win the Division II track and field championships.

UCI does not compete in football and plans to enter the PCAA without the sport in 1977, if approved and if granted Division I status.

The PCAA presently has six schools—Long Beach State, San Diego State, Fullerton State, Fresno State, University of Pacific and San Jose State. UC Santa Barbara rejoins the PCAA in the fall.

UCI has won 13 Division II national championships, two in baseball, five in tennis, three in swimming, and one each in cross country, golf and sailing. The Anteaters have also won a Division I title in water polo.

3 Cerritos players on team

LBCC's Harris voted all-SoCal

Long Beach City College pitcher Greg Harris and three Cerritos College Falcon stars have been voted to the all-Southern California Community College first team.

Harris had a 12-2 record with an earned run average of 1.31. Joining Harris on the mound is Cerritos pitcher Dave Patterson, who was 7-1 with a 1.90 ERA.

Also voted to the first team from Cerritos were first baseman Mike Carpenter and infielder Frank Vilorio.

At Belmont Plaza Olympic Pool

Pre-Olympic swim draws 600

The final major meet prior to U.S. Olympic team qualifying kicks off today when the Lakewood Aquatic and Long Beach Swim Clubs co-host the Olympic Development meet at Belmont Plaza Olympic Pool.

More than 600 swimmers are expected to compete.

The three-day meet begins today at 11 a.m. with qualifying in the men and women's 100-meter butterfly, 400-free-style, 100-backstroke and 200-individual medley. Finals in those events are scheduled for 6 p.m.

Sunday, at 11, qualifying is scheduled in the 200-butterfly, 100-breaststroke, 200-free-style and 400-individual medley. Finals begin at 6 p.m.

On Monday, qualifying will be held in the 100-free-style, 200-backstroke, 200-breaststroke, 800-free-style and 1,500-free-style at 11 a.m., with finals beginning a 6 p.m.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

A world series of hockey?

WINNIPEG — General manager Rudy Pilous of the World Hockey Association champion Winnipeg Jets said Friday that it is time to begin formulating plans for a challenge series against the National Hockey League.

"It's too bad it couldn't have been this year," Pilous said. "With the two best teams and the two best coaches in hockey winning, it would have made a tremendous series."

Winnipeg swept Houston in four games to win the WHA crown, and Montreal did the same to Philadelphia to capture the NHL championship.

Pilous said the leagues should get together and arrange their playoff schedules so both finals end at approximately the same time. "It would be a highly competitive series," he said.

McGlothen 'won't back off'

ST. LOUIS — The last time St. Louis Cardinal pitcher Lynn McGlothen faced the New York Mets a beanball war erupted that resulted in a five-day suspension and $300 fine for McGlothen.

McGlothen takes the mound against the Mets Sunday and says he expects more trouble, but "won't back off."

"It's all over as far as I'm concerned," McGlothen continued, "but if it starts again, it starts. If Tom Seaver throws at me, I'll throw back. If a pitch looks like it's close to me, I'll bounce one off somebody. I don't think the Mets have forgotten."

When the Mets departed Busch Stadium after the original incident in April — in which New York's Jon Madack and Del Unser were hit — manager Joe Frazier vowed, "We'll get one of their guys the next time we see them."

Suns court wins at home

PHOENIX — The Phoenix Suns are hoping that the home court advantage is more than superstition when they entertain the Boston Celtics Sunday in the third game of the National Basketball Association championship series.

"They're going out there with their backs against the wall," said Celtics coach Tom Heinsohn, observing his team's 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series.

However, Heinsohn admits that playing in Phoenix will be more difficult for his club.

"They're going to be in front of their home crowd. Their crowd will pick them up. It was a big factor in Cleveland and it will be a big factor in Phoenix," he said.

The Celtics lost a pair of games at Cleveland in the semifinals, scoring less than 90 points in both contests.

Phoenix coach John MacLeod thinks it will take more than the home court to stop the Boston steamroller.

"I don't think just because we're going home means that things will be great," he said. "We have to do better on offense and defense. We have to be more patient."

Tyrell 'six' its cars on Ferrari

MONTE CARLO, Monaco — If Tyrell's sixes roll, Ferrari won't roll a six.

The six-wheel Tyrell racers pose the greatest threat to Ferrari scoring its sixth consecutive victory in the 1976 world Grand Prix championship around the sinuous street circuit of Monte Carlo Sunday.

Early-season jibes about the eight-cylinder Tyrells needing "fewer wheels and more cylinders" to match the flat-12 Ferraris faded after first qualifying sessions saw the two dark blue cars split the flame red Italians in the race for starting line honors. However, world champion Niki Lauda of Austria took the pole position.

BRIEFLY: The body of slain Argentine boxer Oscar Bonavena remained on board an Argentina airlines jet Friday night as it passed through Lima en route to a midnight wake in Buenos Aires. Airport authorities guarded the plane after an anonymous threat in Los Angeles indicated an attempt to kidnap the body might be made. Montreal police confirmed Friday that Guy Lafleur of the Montreal Canadiens was placed under police protection during the recent Stanley Cup playoffs after an anonymous informant told them there was a plot to kidnap the star right winger. Dick Motta, coach of the NBA's Chicago Bulls for eight seasons, was appointed to the same position with the Washington Bullets Friday. Motta had many public disputes with his players but says he does not envision any problems in Washington because he will not be head of player personnel as he was in Chicago. Nine members of the NHL's Boston Bruins will become free agents next year. Besides Bobby Orr, they are forwards Johnny Bucyk, Andre Savard, Doug Gibson, Steve Langdon and Earl Anderson and defenseman Dallas Smith, Darryl Edstrand and Al Sims. Owner Irv Kosloff sold the Philadelphia 76ers of the NBA Friday to F. Eugene Dixon, who is listed as one of the 10 wealthiest men in the Philadelphia area. Willie Mays returned to Shea Stadium Friday night and said he was satisfied with the settlement of his recent dispute with the New York Mets. There had been some controversy over Mays' duties with the club as a $60,000-a-year goodwill ambassador and instructor. The U.S. Auto Club sprint races, featuring seven drivers who are in Sunday's Indianapolis 500 field, were rained out Friday at the Indiana State Fairgrounds. They were re-scheduled for Monday.

Arctic Blades host competition

Arctic Blades Figure Skating Club of Paramount will hold its annual club competition at Ice Land Arena in Paramount from 7 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. Monday.

The 175-member host team will be joined by clubs, including those from Phoenix, Las Vegas and San Diego. Admission is free though a donation bowl will be passed.

Kayakers say thanks to 'Grandma' Ritter

Four Southern California men are packing today in preparation for their trip to Salt Fork, Ohio, and the U.S. Olympic kayak trials June 5-12.

When the quartet departs Sunday, the most important items in their baggage will be "Grandma Ritter's Frontyard Kayak Team" T-shirts. "Grandma Ritter" is Mrs. Juanita Ritter and the shirts are but a small way of showing her their appreciation.

Without the use of Mrs. Ritter's Belmont Shore home, Bob Hahn, Larry Hanes, Jon Van Cleave and John Potter might not be rated the No. 1 team in the country and favored to win the trials and represent the United States in Montreal the last week in July.

Logistics was the crew's biggest obstacle when it set the Olympic K-4 class title as its goal. Hahn, a research director in environmental feasibility, lives in Newport; Hanes, a United Airlines pilot, in Playa del Rey; Van Cleave, a law student, in Laguna Beach, and Potter, a junior high biology teacher, in Costa Mesa.

Long Beach was selected as a halfway point and because of the Marine Stadium facility for training. However, there was no space to store their boat. One doesn't leave a 36-foot, 70-pound kayak, made in Denmark of imported Honduras cedar, on the beach or in an alley.

To the rescue came Mrs. Ritter, a widowed mother of three who honeymooned in Long Beach 55 years ago and has lived on the water the past 20 years. She offered them a place to eat, sleep and shower between their twice-daily workouts.

As the many weeks of training progressed, she became affectionately known as "Grandma Ritter," a fifth member of the team.

Now Hahn, Hanes, Van Cleave and Potter are properly prepared for an assault on Olympic gold. They've already discussed winning the medal and showing the world their "Grandma Ritter's Frontyard Kayak Team" T-shirts.

Solomon argues call, quits Italian Open

ROME (AP) — Harold Solomon of the United States caused a sensation in the Italian Open tennis tournament Friday when he walked off the court after a quarrel with a referee over a line call. Solomon was leading Adriano Panatta of Italy 2-6, 7-5, 5-4 in their quarter-final match.

Solomon said he had been disqualified, but the deputy referee, Carlo Nistri, said it was the player's decision to leave.

"I told him, 'Go back to play or get out,' and he left," Nistri said.

"I also told him there was no question he could play the shot over again. We spoke clear English so I am sure there was no misunderstanding."

Solomon had a slightly different version.

"The referee first told me to play or leave," he said. "I insisted on discussing the matter with him and explaining my position but he said the crowd was going berserk and I should get out. That's why I left."

A disappointed Panatta said, "I don't care to win a match like this. It is bad for me. Had I thought the shot was out I would have conceded the point, but I felt sure and so were the players in the stands that it was on the line."

AMARANTHUS: Try a fiery color

By JOE LITTLEFIELD
Amaranthus, though only an annual, is outstandingly showy when the upper leaves turn bright red with gold as though on fire. Regardless of what other colorful blossoms there are in the garden area, the amaranthus are the center of the stage attraction.

There may be several kinds of varieties, and possibly one or two of them may have disappeared from the nursery trade. The old favorite is Joseph's Coat; a newer introduction is Illumination.

Another variety that some gardeners favor is Early Splendor with younger leaves a flaming crimson color, the older mature ones a deep chocolate color and dark green. The last two varieties might not be readily available in pony packs but they grow easily from seed in sunny areas.

HERE'S A professional gardener's experience concerning possible pesticide residue build up in a garden he maintains regularly.

Jimmy Nakagawa wrote in the Gardener's Monthly bulletin:

"Beware of chemical residue in your yard. My customer's lawn, camellias, azalea, ternstroemia, and calla lilies were dying out, and the growth of the ligustrum and podocarpus seemed to be stunted. After intensive inquiry and investigation I found a chemical spray had been used around the yard for ants every three weeks for the past six years.

"It has been 14 months now since the last spraying and gradually the lawn is starting to grow back. Sixteen months ago the seeds of dichondra germinated but would fade away by the time the second or third leaf came out. Apparently the chemical that was being sprayed was doing more damage than good.

"The camellias and azalea for the first time in three or four years is showing signs of new growth. Now the ligustrum and the podocarpus need trimming every week to keep a neat appearance. It seems as though these two shrubs are trying to catch up with the growth they lost in the past years.

"Perhaps if you have the above symptoms in your garden and have tried all types of remedies without any results, then I think it would be wise to suspect chemical residue in the ground."

Azalea show

A flower show featuring satsuki (late-blooming) azaleas will be presented by the Satsuki Azalea Society of Temple City Saturday and Sunday, June 5 and 6, in the lecture hall of the Los Angeles State and County Arboretum.

Satsuki azaleas bloom from May through June and are further characterized by having multi-colored flowers on the same bush.

Show admission is free.

Plants need water?

One of the "secrets" of good gardening indoors and out is proper watering — and it's no easy matter. Most people water too much or too little, hardly ever just right, according to garden experts at Ortha.

According to tips from the company's new garden book, "Gardening Shortcuts", the reason watering is such a complex problem is because there are so many variables to consider. Proper watering for your particular plant depends on many things — the container, season of the year, amount of light received, soil, humidity, and, of course, on the plant itself.

Some plants, like the maidenhair fern, require a great deal of water to stay healthy, while others, like cacti and succulents, need very little liquid to do their best.

Size and type of container also play a very important role in watering. If the pot is small, moisture may be needed daily. If, however, you just can't seem to keep the plant moist, it probably needs re-potting into a bigger pot.

Obviously, a large container will take more water than a small one, but not so obviously, a plastic pot requires less water than one made of clay.

Clay pots allow moisture to evaporate through the walls, while glazed and plastic kinds transpire moisture only through the soil surface. Therefore, plants in them need water less often than those in clay. If you do use clay pots, be sure to soak them in water for 24 hours prior to use, or they will compete with your plant for the moisture.

The amount of water needed is also determined by the season of the year. Generally, plants need less water in winter because there is less sun and heat to dry out the soil. However, if your home is heated by dry steam, you may need to water more often in the winter months. And, if your plant is kept in direct light, you'll have to give it more water than if it's in a shady location.

Plants just love humid weather, and if there is none around, you'll have to water more often, or keep your plants on trays filled with pebbles and water.

Just make sure that the water level is below the pebbles, so that the pots rest on the pebbles and not in the water — or the roots will rot. You can also mist the plants daily with a hand mister; this will add needed humidity while cleaning the leaves for easier breathing. For less trouble, though a humidifier will work just as well.

For indoor plants, common sense is your most valuable guide in knowing when a potted pal needs water.

Indoor gardening lecture

Edward Hartnagel, assistant superintendent at South Coast Botanic Garden, will give a lecture on indoor container gardening Sunday, June 6, at 2 p.m. in the garden's new Frances Young Hall of Horticulture.

Public interest in growing plants indoors has grown tremendously in recent years bringing with it a demand for the special information needed to enable plants to grow in less than ideal environment.

Hartnagel will discuss and demonstrate the cultural requirements for many popular house plants, giving particular attention to watering, light, and soil mixes, the three areas of indoor plant growing that seem to give the most trouble.

With the recent opening of the new administrative center at South Coast Botanic Garden there is also a new public entrance at 26300 Crenshaw Blvd., about a half-mile west of Pacific Coast Highway. Parking and admission are free.

Club memos

Belmont Heights Garden Club

On Tuesday, June 1, the Belmont Heights Garden Club will hold a meeting in the Belmont Heights Methodist Church, Third Street and Mira Mar Avenue.

An installation of officers will be held and past presidents will be honored.

Fountain, Ferguson at Disneyland

Disneyland will showcase the six top stars when the park presents "Disneyland and All That Jazz" today and Sunday.

Pete Fountain, Maynard Ferguson, Freddie Hubbard, Papa John Creach, Esther Phillips and Teddy Buckner headline this traditional musical spectacular.

Making a rare West Coast appearance, The Pete Fountain Jazz Group will offer its New Orleans sound on Tomorrowland Terrace at 8:30 p.m., 10:30 p.m. and midnight. Vocalist Esther Phillips and Teddy Buckner headline the spectacular.

Trumpeters Freddie Hubbard and Maynard Ferguson will be playing on Main Street's Plaza

Market in New Orleans Square at 8:15, 9:15, 10:15 and 11:15 p.m.

Guests also will be able

Fountain Ferguson

Gardens stage. Ferguson and his orchestra perform at 8:15, 10:15 and 11:45 p.m. while Hubbard appears at 9:45 p.m., 11 p.m. and 12:30 p.m.

Papa John Creach and Midnight Sun will entertain from Frontierland's Golden Horseshoe at 8:15, 10 and 11:30 p.m.

Disneyland's own Teddy Buckner and His Jazz All-Stars. Long a favorite of park guests. Buckner will be featured at the French to enjoy "America on Parade." Disneyland's Bicentennial salute, as well as the usual adventures and attractions.

Disneyland will be open from 9 a.m. to 1 a.m. today and Sunday. Memorial and Memorial Day, 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

GREEK THEATRE LINEUP

Country-western star Charlie Rich, Three Dog Night, Melba Moore and Rufus have been added to the Greek Theatre summer entertainment lineup.

While songstress Moore joins the O'Jays in their Aug. 4-8 gig, the other three are set for Monday-night-only appearances.

Three Dog Night will appear July 26; Charlie Rich, Aug. 16; and Rufus, Sept. 6. Sammy Davis and guest stars Blood Sweat and Tears will kick off the season June 25-28.

Other attractions include Harry Belafonte, George Burns and Carol Channing and a production of Gilbert and Sullivan performed by the D'Oyly Opera Company of London.

Tickets for all events are available at the Greek Theater Box office, 2700 N. Vermont Ave., Los Angeles 90027.

By BOB THOMAS HOLLYWOOD (AP) —

The networks have announced their television schedules for the 1976-77 season, and the winner and still champion of the studios is — Universal Television.

It's no surprise. The only surprising aspect to the new schedule is how far Universal scores ahead of its competitors. The studio will have 14 hours of weekly programming in prime time, plus another hour and a half that has already been ordered for mid-season.

Next in line is Columbia Television with five hours, followed by Norman Lear's company with three and a half hours, MTM Enterprises and Quinn Martin Productions with three apiece.

HOW DOES Universal do it?

"It boils down to providing the best product," says Universal TV president Frank Price with understandable pride. "We've had interesting premises that have intrigued the networks, and in the past two or three years have done things that have set new patterns."

"For instance, 'Rich Man, Poor Man.' It was a new form for commercial television in the United States — dramatizing a novel. The networks had never presented a series that was self-cancelling."

"But because of its success, the show led to two others: 'Rich Man, Poor Man, Book II' and 'Best Sellers.'"

"We've also had success in our approach to shows that would fit into the Family Hour: 'The Six Million Dollar Man,' 'Bionic Woman' and 'Emergency.' And in the area of cop shows, we have come up with the best quality series. I'm talking about 'Kojak,' 'Baretta,' 'Columbo' and 'Rockford Files.'"

MOST critics would agree that Universal has improved its produce from the bland, factory-style series of its earlier years. Not that it doesn't still have its losers — witness this season's "Ellery Queen," "City of Angels" and "Sara." But Universal has attracted topflight producers and writers with promises of the chance to make quality shows.

Universal had the advantage of getting into TV early. When MCA was still a talent agency, bosses Jules Stein and

Lew Wasserman recognized the future value of the new medium and formed Revue Productions. Operating at the old Republic studio, Revue ground out inexpensive series.

In 1962, MCA bought control of the foundering Universal Pictures, abandoned the agency business and moved into the largest studio in town. Its huge backlog with standing sets of every locale needed for film proved ideal for television.

"There's no doubt that the history of the company plays a large part in its current success," said Price, adding that MCA chairman Wasserman and president Sid Sheinberg "thoroughly understand the television business."

Nessie, here we come...

BOSTON (AP) — The fifth annual expedition of the Academy of Applied Science to search for the Loch Ness monster gets under way Sunday, when researchers fly to Scotland.

"Really, it's like going fishing," said Harold E. Edgerton, a retired Massachusetts Institute of Technology professor who heads the mission's underwater photography team. "You don't know exactly what you're doing — but it might work."

THEY understand costs, too. Many a series star and director has complained about rigid shooting schedules at Universal. But the attention to economics has kept Universal in the forefront while studios like Warner Brothers and 20th Century-Fox have suffered huge losses on their TV operations.

Among the other majors, Paramount has two hours on the networks next season, MGM an hour and a half, Fox has only "M-A-S-H" and Warner Brothers has a new half-hour, "Alice."

Universal has long had a close relationship with

Expediting of downtown L.B. housing asked

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON
Urban Affairs Editor

The Project Area Committee for Long Beach's downtown redevelopment project has recommended that new housing construction be expedited "as the supporting backbone" for proposed commercial developments.

In other actions at their Thursday night meeting, PAC members:

- Voted to support revised plans for construction of the proposed Radisson-Perini-Carlson 542-room hotel immediately southwest of the new Pacific Terrace Convention Center.
- Accepted the resignation of PAC Vice Chairman Wheeler Ab-

bett, who is moving his downtown florist business to the Bixby Plaza area.

— Scheduled an election for the next PAC meeting, June 25, to fill two vacancies (Abbett's and another created by Allie Drazenovich's removal because of four unexcused absences).

The motion by PAC member

James B. Russell Jr., a local attorney, to encourage new housing developments downtown, passed unanimously.

Speaking for the motion, Douglas Benwell, who represents Downtown Long Beach Associates on the Project Area Committee, argued:

"The biggest gap is a lack of housing for income groups with purchasing power. This type of housing is essential as the supporting backbone for downtown revitalization.

"The housing element as it relates to downtown is still dangling unresolved. Let's ask the Redevelopment Agency to define it, locate the areas, zone for them and do whatever is deemed necessary to set the stage for seeking developers."

Benwell said he was not suggesting federal housing or subsidized housing as the answer. "That would not contribute the needed per capita purchasing power," he said.

Russell moved that city officials, at the next PAC meeting, "acquaint us with downtown areas proposed for residential uses... so we can take action to notify people in the construction industry of this availability."

A preliminary shoreline plan by the firm of Sasaki-Walker, adopted by the City Council on March 25, 1975, states: "Residential development downtown would be an essential ingredient to the area's full rejuvenation and redevelopment."

It suggests that the Pike amusement area could become the site of a major high-rise residential complex with auxiliary recreation uses and would "introduce the concept of luxury living in the downtown area."

Discussing the progress of projects in the downtown redevelopment area, Randall J. Verrue, executive assistant to City Manager John Mansell, said J. C. Penney Co. has "authorized use of its name," along with Bufile's department store, as one of three anchor stores for the proposed Ernest Hahn six-block shopping mall.

Developer Hahn has been given until Sept. 1 to present his final proposal to the city, Verrue said, adding that "there has been much interest shown for the third store."

He noted that the Pacific Terrace Convention Center is scheduled for completion by September 1977.

VERRUE presented slides showing revised plans for the proposed $25 million Radisson-Perini-Carlson hotel, supporting recreational facilities (tennis courts, ice-skating rink and swimming pool) and a boardwalk development in the Pacific Terrace area.

Similar presentations are being made to local citizens' groups for their input, he said.

Benwell spoke in favor of this and other proposed projects. "I'd like to give the city some badly needed orchids," he said. "We've seen a couple years of turn-around performance by some dedicated city people... We should give some credit where credit is due."

PAC member Murray Kramer, a downtown businessman, countered with what he called "brickbats."

"PEOPLE who go to the Building Department to try to start a business in one of the many vacant downtown stores are driven away by the vague earthquake ordinance," he said. "They're told the building may be condemned in six months, a year or a year and a half. Our downtown is becoming a ghost town."

"How do we resolve this until the Hahn project starts?" he asked.

Donovan Rodman, downtown realtor, said it is becoming more and more difficult to finalize real-estate transactions in the downtown area. He added: "We have got to get something more specific (on earthquake condemnations). As it is now, people are walking away without an answer."

In tendering his resignation from PAC, Abbett said his business "could no longer survive in the downtown area."

THREE years ago, expressing his faith in the future of downtown Long Beach, Abbett opened his Peppermint Pushcart florist shop at 19 Long Beach Blvd. and the following year won a Long Beach Beautiful Award for "helping to upgrade the neighborhood."

Since then, he said, most of his original neighbors have moved.

"We would like to stay. I love Long Beach. But we can't wait around downtown long enough to go bankrupt," he said.

"If they would dig Spade 1 of the Hahn project — if the downtown business community could get the first thing started — this could be the garden spot, the Monte Carlo, of the West Coast."

New leader

Robert Matheny, newly-elected 31st president of Downtown Long Beach Associates, will lead the organization through its 40th year. Matheny is vice-president and manager of the Bank of America's main office.

Petitions in for district elections to city council

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

Petitions calling for an amendment to the Long Beach city charter to provide that members of the City Council be elected by district instead of citywide were filed Friday with City Clerk Elaine Hamilton.

Carl H. Schiermeyer, cochairman of Citizens for District Elections, said the petitions carry signatures of 20,994 Long Beach voters. Mrs. Hamilton said 16,575 valid signatures are required to put the proposal on the Nov. 2 ballot.

Schiermeyer also announced that Councilman Ernie Kell will head the campaign to win voter approval of the proposed charter amendment.

"I have long supported the principle that council members should be elected only by the people who live in the district, as opposed to our city-at-large system," Kell said.

"This will make your council members responsible only to you, not to special interests around the city," he said.

UNDER THE present system, candidates for City Council seek nomination in a municipal primary election in March, when voting for candidates in each district is restricted to voters within that district.

The two candidates in each district who receive the largest number of votes in the primary run for election in the municipal general election in May, when citizens throughout the city vote for one candidate in each district.

The proposal by Citizens for District Elections would amend Sections 49, 50 and 53 of the city charter. It basically would provide that "candidates for the offices of members of the City Council shall be voted for by the electorate of the respective district to be represented."

If any district candidate received a majority vote in the primary election, he would be elected. This now is the case with candidates for the citywide offices of city attorney, city auditor and city prosecutor.

If no council candidate received a majority vote in his district in the primary, the leading two candidates would have a runoff in the municipal general election, but voting still would be restricted to their specific district.

Schiermeyer and Mrs. Pamela J. O'Leary, who are co-chairpersons of the Citizens for District Elections, said the initiative drive began last Dec. 5 with the filing of a notice of intention to circulate petitions. The main thrust, however, began two months ago when the City Council turned down appeals to put the issue of district elections on the June 8 ballot.

Mrs. Hamilton said the deadline for the city to submit measures to the county for inclusion on the Nov. 2 general election ballot is Aug. 20.

ONE OF THE reasons a change to district elections is needed, said Schiermeyer and Mrs. O'Leary, is that in recent elections, voters in a district selected one candidate, while an opposing candidate won office because of the citywide vote.

Highlights of L.B. area Memorial Day observances

Religious services honoring America's war dead will highlight an active three-day holiday weekend in the Long Beach area.

Topping the list of Memorial Day observances Monday will be services at the Sunnyside Memorial Gardens, at Cherry Avenue and San Antonio Drive, at 10 a.m.

The Long Beach Municipal Band, directed by Everett E. Siegrist, will provide patriotic music and the Long Beach Honor Guard will present the colors.

Rabbi Shalom Podwol of Temple Beth Shalom, Rev. Don E. Linblom, executive director of the Long Beach-area Council of Churches, and Father Girard O'Donnell of St. Anthony's Church will deliver the invocations during the services.

Forest Lawn's Memorial Day ceremonies, sponsored by the C. R. Rogers Memorial Post 947, VFW, Cypress, features an invocation by Rev. William Thompson, chaplain at the Long Beach Naval Hospital.

The Oxford Junior High School Band will provide the music. And, as part of a historical pageant, actors Bob Basso and Ronnie Morgan will portray Patrick Henry and Abraham Lincoln, respectively.

The observance will begin at 11 a.m. at Forest Lawn, which is located at 4471 Lincoln Ave., Cypress.

Tributes are also scheduled at Westminster Memorial Park, located at 14801 Beach Blvd., at 11 a.m.

Conducted by Rabbi Stephen Einstein of Temple Beth David, and Father Dan McGinn, of the Blessed Sacrament Catholic Church, Westminster, the services will include the Voices of Huntington Valley choir and the Boy Scout Troops 280 and 287 of Huntington Beach.

The weekend also will feature numerous recreational and sporting activities at Long Beach parks and recreational centers. Included on the list of activities are:

—Will Rogers Junior High School Auditorium, 365 Monrovia Ave., Ha' Penny Players present "The Flying Prince," today at 2:30 p.m. and 8 p.m.

—Belmont Plaza Olympic Pool, 4000 Olympic Plaza, the Southern Pacific Amateur Athletic Union (SPAAU) Olympic Development Swim Meet features swimmers between 15 and 21 competing in Olympic qualifying trials, today through Monday, 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Admission $1. Also recreational swimming at outdoor pool, 1-3 p.m. Admission 25 cents for youngsters under 18, and 50 cents for adults.

—Silverado Pool, 1540 W. 32nd St., recreational swimming, today and Sunday, 1-2:45 p.m.

—Marine Stadium, 5255 Appian Way, circle races, featuring Belmont Shore Lions and Southern California Speedboat Club, Monday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission $3.50, children under 12, $3.

—Bixby Park, senior citizens social dancing, tonight, 7:30-10:30 p.m. Admission $1.25. Municipal Band concert, Sunday, 2:30 p.m.

—Recreation Park, American

Softball Association Holiday Tournament, featuring 16 Pacific Coast softball teams competing in elimination play-offs, Joe Rodgers Field, 10th Street and Park Avenue, today to Monday, from 9 a.m. to dark.

Elsewhere in the Southland, the Garden Grove Strawberry Festival opens today at Euclid Park. The annual event, which starts with an 11 a.m. parade, will run through Monday.

Considerable early-morning cloudiness, clearing in the afternoons, will keep the weekend temperatures cool for the outdoor services and outings, according to the Weather Bureau. The expected highs for the weekend are not expected reach above mid-70s.

'Hello! Tom here'—Hayden in L.B. on state tour

By JOE SEGURA
Staff Writer

"Hello! Tom here!"

The middle-aged woman in the doorway of a shop near St. Joseph Avenue and Second Street in Belmont Shore, didn't recognize the youthful-looking man who called himself Tom.

"Tom Hayden," he explained.

The 36-year-old Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate walked into Long Beach Friday as part of a 1,200-mile statewide campaign swing that will include hundreds of miles on foot in an effort personally to reach potential voters.

Hayden, who is challenging incumbent John Tunney in the June 8 primary, arrived in Long Beach after starting his walk Wednesday in Los Angeles.

Stopped by the candidate on Second Street, one supporter, Jack Bockman, 24, asked Hayden why he didn't hit harder at Tunney's positions.

"Tunney hasn't put in enough effort," Bockman claimed. "We needed more concrete ideas from him instead of his just running with the flow of bureaucrats."

Hayden said he was hitting hard, and would hit harder during his tentatively scheduled June 4 debate with Tunney.

Not all Belmont Shore pedestrians, however, were receptive to Hayden and his liberal platform.

Hayden, who was arrested in 1968 for his role in organizing anti-Vietnam protests at the Chicago Democratic presidential convention, approached a male senior citizen.

"Sorry, but I'm on the wrong side of the political fence," the man said, waving Hayden off.

But many along Hayden's route waved, honked their horns, took literature from his volunteer staffers with wishes of good luck, or smiled and shook his hand.

Hayden, who started his afternoon walk in downtown Long Beach, wound up his hike with dinner at a supporter's house. He also visited several government offices and did some door-to-door campaigning during the day.

Telling supporters he would win the primary by a "small margin," Hayden said there was a 35-per cent margin of undecided and soft Tunney votes that could bring him victory.

(The most recent California Poll survey of the Democratic race for the Senate nomination showed Hayden trailing Tunney 50 per cent to 33 per cent. The survey, taken in early May, showed Hayden had pulled within 17 per cent of Tunney after being 43 per cent behind in March.)

"Tunney's vulnerable," he said. "He's not real at a time when people want real give-and-take on the issues from the people representing them."

The statewide walk, which began May 13 and is expected to end June 2.

MUSIC TEACHERS TO CONVENE ON QUEEN MARY JUNE 25-29

Eight hundred members of the Music Teachers Association of California are expected to attend the organization's 66th annual state convention aboard the Queen Mary June 25-29.

The convention, hosted by the Long Beach and Lakewood branches of the association, will feature performances each day by musicians, as well as workshops, study sessions and lectures.

Among the performers will be Marvelee Cariaga, mezzo-soprano; Dr. Maurice Hinson, pianist; the International Children's Choir of Long Beach; the Grimm Singers, a group of seven brothers and sisters, and concert pianist John Perry.

Other performers will be cellist Lucille Greco, flutist David Shostac, pianist Mary Mark Zeyen and duo-pianists Mona and Renee Golabek.

On opening night, delegates will hear two one-act operas: a musical based on a play by William Saroyan and the American folk opera "Mike Fink," performed by the Long Beach State University symphony orchestra, conducted by Dr. Hans Lampl.

Tickets will be available at the door for $2.50 per person. The state association is composed of 3,000 private music teachers.

YOUR HOROSCOPE
by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: You experience many diverse happenings that sharpen your skills for new jobs and a prosperous future. In the last three months, you pull scattered threads together. Today's natives are candid, seek novel ideas and people.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Now is a good time to travel to get information or to get away. If you can't go far, pursue hobbies you've had to neglect.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Put aside concerns on the job and make this a day of self-expression. Religious exercise or meditation opens the way for personal liberation.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Much comes to your attention if you take time to listen to others. Stick to normal schedules and go along with established habits.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Concentrate on becoming a better person and get rid of bad habits. Don't stick to old ways of doing things just because they're comfortable. Take time to rest tonight.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Avoid excess of any sort while you participate in community observances. Look your best when meeting acquaintances and newcomers.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Let yourself off the hook; You aren't expected to achieve perfection. Prepare for minor surprises, but keep your cool.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be willing to cooperate in group projects, but let others lead. Gardening, hobbies and intellectual puzzles provide a needed rest from the tensions of work.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): If you're asked to settle other people's conflicts, try to be objective. Today, don't talk shop; devote your energy to spiritual quests.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Keep a sense of humor. There's much discrepancy between promise and performance, just be sure you're not guilty in this respect.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): If you must work, do the minimum. By examining the past, you are able to make plans. Complete a list for the coming month.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Let business matters rest until the regular work week. Make the rounds, but don't linger anywhere. You idealism begins to surface in your plans.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): You come to understand more about traditional customs. Reserve today for social fun and games. Forget material concerns and on-the-job worries.

Home owners facing huge tax bite

By NOEL SWANN
From Our L.A. Bureau

Los Angeles County property owners may be facing a 12.25 per cent hike in this year's assessments making it the highest increase in almost 20 years.

County Assessor Philip Watson said Friday he would not have exact figures on the size of the assessment roll increase until July 12, but said he has told various taxing agencies there would be "a huge increase" in 1976-77.

Watson said the assessment hikes would be especially high for single-family homes because sales prices have been soaring as a result of increases in construction and land development costs.

Additionally, he said, his office has reevaluated

more property than usual this year because of a computerized data system.

In previous years only one-fifth of all property in the county was reassessed each year. This year, Watson said, his office reappraised one million of the 1.88 million taxable parcels in the county.

Generally speaking the higher than usual assessments increase percentage bodes well for various taxing agencies such as cities and school districts because the jump means increased revenue for them. This in turn gives them more elasticity in fashioning their budgets.

However, although the increased revenue might allow some taxing agencies to cut their tax rates slightly, property owners still would be faced with higher bills because of the higher assessments.

In the case of Long Beach, there appeared to be some confusion over the figures given to newsmen Friday.

While newsmen were told preliminary estimates show the Long Beach city assessment rolls would increase by only 3.5 per cent, City Manager John Mansell said estimates given his office by the assessor in mid-May predicted a seven per cent hike.

Mansell said his staff tried to check with the assessor's office Friday, but was unable to get clarification. The assessor's staff said they would look into the matter and get back to Mansell with the answer Tuesday after the holiday weekend.

Both Mansell and other officials indicated the difference in percentage increase may have something to do with the mystery ship Glomar Explorer, which had been on the tax rolls last year.

A court, however, ruled that the ship, which was used to raise part of a Russian submarine, was not taxable in Los Angeles County.

Although the Glomar had been on the assessment rolls, actual taxes were not included.

A spokesman for Mansell said his office had never taken the Glomar's valuation into account. However, it was not clear Friday whether the seven per cent figure given Mansell's office included the Glomar or not.

The city's preliminary budget for tax supported funding amounted to $107.7 million; based on a six per

No money to pay faculty

N.Y. university closed

NEW YORK (AP) — City University of New York, the nation's third largest university system, was ordered closed after defaulting on its faculty payroll Friday, shutting out some 250,000 students at the climax of their school year.

Some of the university's 20 colleges were in the midst of final examinations. Others had completed exams but had not issued grades. CUNY officials said 30,000 to 40,000 seniors had been due to graduate at commencement ceremonies between June 3 and June 16.

"They are not in jeopardy of not graduating eventually," Chancellor Robert Kibbee told a news conference Friday in announcing the midnight shutdown. But, he said,

"This act has to injure the university's reputation. It will also impress on our very fine faculty that they'd be better off and more secure and safer at some other institution."

About 16,000 faculty members and 11,000 other employees were thrown out of work by the closing of CUNY. The system is third in size only to state systems in New York, with 350,000 students, and California, with 334,000, according to the National Education Association.

CUNY, which has been tuition-free for 125 years and has some of the highest paid teachers in the nation, overspent its May budget by $15 million, according to City Hall sources, and had expected the city to bail it out.

"We do not have the money," declared Deputy Mayor John Zucor, who said the only way to meet the current $14.9 million payroll was with state funds.

Moynihan claims U.N. bribe votes

NEW YORK (AP) — Votes at the United Nations have been influenced by bribes, in one case as little as $600, according to Daniel Patrick Moynihan, America's former U.N. ambassador.

"I have never seen money change hands, but I know that money does change hands," Moynihan said Friday in an excerpt from a taped interview with CBS News Correspondent Eric Sevareid.

The excerpt was shown on the "CBS Evening News" on Friday. At that time, CBS also reported it had been told that on two occasions last fall representatives from North Korea offered money to U.N. delegates from other nations.

A spokesman for the North Korean observer mission at the U.N. denied the allegation.

Sevareid's full interview with Moynihan will not be aired until Sunday. In the portion shown Friday, the former ambassador said:

"I can tell you. Dare I tell you in public because things are bad enough, but last fall a vote changed hands for $2,000?"

Moynihan refused to identify the parties involved in the exchange.

He said, "$2,000 will usually get you ... There are the block of votes which are ... for which money changes hands, and it's in that range."

"And will you mind my saying that I'm not very shocked by it? Governments maximize their interests. I don't know that charging cash or charging wheat loans is such a different thing."

OPEC's oil price holds—for a while

BALL, Indonesia (AP) — Ministers of the world oil cartel decided Friday to hold the price line until a later meeting.

Just how long this meant the price would continue at its current level of $11.51 per barrel of standard-grade oil was not immediately clear.

The next ordinary meeting of leaders of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries was scheduled for Dec. 15 at Doha, Qatar. Oil prices would remain unchanged through the end of the year if further action is held off until that meeting.

At a news conference, however, OPEC Secretary General M.O. Feyide of Nigeria said he did not rule out the possibility of an extraordinary meeting before December.

Valentine Hernandez Acosta, spokesman for the Venezuelan delegation, told reporters, "Some countries would like another meeting in two months, others in September."

OPEC last raised prices by 10 per cent on Oct. 1 and froze them at that level through the end of June.

Some OPEC members, notably Iran and Iraq, came to Ball talking of 10 to 15 per cent increases, while Saudi Arabia, the world's largest producer, said it was opposed to any increase.

In a White House statement, President Ford said he was "encouraged by OPEC's decision." He noted that the world's economy is recovering from recession and adjusting to existing oil prices.

"In today's interdependent world, a stable and growing world economy is in every country's interest, and the United States looks toward further improvements in the relationships between oil-producing and consuming countries," he declared.

However, Ford emphasized that "this decision should not lead us to lessen our drive toward energy independence" and urged Congress again to pass his energy-legislation proposals.

Conference sources said the continuing of present prices reflected indecision on changing the entire pricing structure for oil rather than any defeat for those who want to raise prices.

Bus victims mourned

From Our State Bureau
SACRAMENTO — Efforts to present California's voters with a legislative alternative to Proposition 13, the Nuclear Power Plants Initiative, collided head-on Friday with the Los Angeles Dept. of Water and Power's efforts to block any state regulation of the nuclear industry.

The result was two parliamentary setbacks for the three-bill package and one setback for the giant utility, which would like to build what would be the world's largest nuclear-powered electricity generating plant in Kern County.

The battle will be resumed, for what is expected to be the last time, Tuesday on the Senate floor.

ONE WEEK later, voters will cast ballots on the initiative which critics contend will impose a total moratorium on construction of new nuclear plants in California and force a phase-out of existing ones.

If the three bills are approved by the Senate Tuesday and subsequently signed into law, they will be held out to voters as a milder form of the stated intent of the initiative, which is to protect the public by imposing certain restrictions on the nuclear industry.

They will go into effect next Jan. 1 if Proposition

15 is defeated. If the initiative is approved by voters, however, the three bills become null and void.

IF THE Senate declines to approve the bills Tuesday, they will probably be scrapped. Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, the upper house sponsor of the legislation, said flatly Friday he would not vote for them if Proposition 15 is defeated.

Alquist Friday offered an amendment exempting from the provisions of one of the bills the proposed San Desert nuclear plant being planned by the San Diego Gas and Electric Co. The amendment, ne-

Few real curbs seen in test pact

BERNARD GWERTZMAN
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The United States and the Soviet Union underscored again Friday the ambiguity that has marked their relations since the end of World War II.

President Ford and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev signed a treaty designed to put modest limits on underground nuclear explosions at a time when distrust runs high between the two countries and each side is spending record amounts for defense budgets aimed at deterring the other.

The cordial White House

and Kremlin signing ceremonies came against a background of sharpened attacks on the Soviet Union in the American presidential campaign, a decision by Ford to drop "détente" from his vocabulary, and a nasty increase in tension between the two sides, caused in part by Angola, and the failure to achieve a breakthrough in the deadlocked strategic arms limitation negotiations.

This duality was noticeable in the five-year treaty itself, which limits nuclear explosions for "peaceful" purposes to 150 kilotons, the equivalent of 150,000 tons of TNT, and allows on-site inspections in certain circumstances to ensure that the accords are carried out. Depending on the size of the explosion, from six to 22 observers will be permitted at test sites.

But as liberal critics already have pointed out, the 150-kiloton limit is virtually no limit at all. It is of such a magnitude — about 10 times the force of the Hiroshima bomb — that it in effect does not put any meaningful curbs on military tests for newer weapons.

And the "on-site inspection" provision, which has been widely hailed by administration officials as a breakthrough, is so restrictive as to make it possible that it will never be used.

The restrictions, in fact, reveal clearly how distrustful the Russians are of having Americans prowling around a nuclear site.

The "on-site inspection" only becomes obligatory on the Russians if they plan a "peaceful" test of more than 150 kilotons — that is a series of explosions amounting to a force of more than 150,000 tons of TNT. In recent years, neither side has tested a device of such magnitude and the United States has no plans to do so.

The Russians may explode a large device if they carry out a project of using nuclear explosions to divert fresh water to the Caspian Sea. But even that is not certain.

So for the moment, despite the wide publicity given the Soviet willingness to allow inspectors, there is a strong chance they will never see a Soviet site.

American officials, however, claim that what is important is the principle established. Even if in-

Gov. Brown talked about busing Friday — he's against it in principle — and his Republican predecessor, Ronald Reagan, talked about selling arms to mainland China — he's for it in principle.

But both men drew distinctions about how principle could be turned into practical politics as they and other Democratic and Republican contenders readied for more presidential primaries Tuesday and the following week.

During a brief appearance in the Port of Long Beach Friday, Reagan questioned the federal government's price controls on low-gravity crude oil produced in California.

"This is something that's been of concern to the State of California and the City of Long Beach for quite a long time," Reagan said near a group of Wilmington Oil Field wells at Pier D.

"I'd like to hear if there is an explanation from the government for this unequal pricing," Reagan said. The

Violence wins top prizes at Cannes despite protest

Combined News Services

CANNES, France — Films with violent themes got many of the prizes at the Cannes Film Festival on Friday, despite a condemnation from American playwright Tennessee Williams, president of the jury.

"Taxi Driver," an American production directed by Martin Scorsese, was chosen best film of the festival. In the film, a psychopathic cab driver plots the assassination of a presidential candidate and commits murder to free a 12-year-old prostitute from her pimp.

"Watching violence on the screen is a brutalizing experience for the spectator," Williams told a news conference. "Films should not take a voluptuous pleasure in spilling blood and in lingering on terrible cruelties as though one were at a Roman circus."

"Violence is an element of human character and should not be ignored, but in the future I hope the cinema will dwell less constantly on offensive values without sacrificing truth," he said.

The jury for the eumenical prize did not make an award, saying, "The 1976 festival was marked by grave and desperate films, some of which reflect a rare violence. We fear that violence will answer violence and that instead of denouncing it, these scenes will lead our society to a new escalation."

The prize for best male acting went to Jose-Luis Gomez for his role in the Spanish film "Pascual Duarte," in which a dog is shot and a mule butchered. At a news conference, director Ricardo Franco Rubio said the scenes had not been faked.

The female acting award was shared by Dominique Sanda of France for "L'Heritage de Bolognini" and Mari Toroski of Hungary for "Where Are You, Mrs. Dery?"

Ettore Scola of Italy won the prize for best direction for "Ugly, Dirty and Mean," which showed members of a Roman shantytown family trying to murder the half-blind chief of their clan.

Special jury prizes were awarded to "La Marquise d'O," a West German film directed by Eric Rohmer, and "Cria Cuervos," a Spanish film directed by Carlos Saura.

In "Cria Cuervos," an 8-year-old girl contemplates poisoning her relatives.

There was a marked drop in pornographic movies at the festival. The showing of one hard-core feature, "Suck it to Mr. Baby," was ended after a reel or two.

Women said lining up against Hays

Combined News Services

Women are expressing overwhelming support of Rep. Romano Mazzoli's demand that Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, resign and that Congress as a whole purge itself of sex-scandal taints, Mazzoli said Friday in Washington.

Mazzoli, a third-term Kentucky Democrat, said in a House speech Thursday that only a dramatic move could help restore Congress' prestige, sinking further under allegations that Hays put Elizabeth Ray on a committee payroll to act as his mistress but not to work. Mazzoli said Hays should resign his chairmanships and his House seat.

Hays, who has admitted a past liaison with Miss Ray but insisted that she was employed for her office skills, said he will not resign and will fight to vindicate himself.

"We have had (women) staffers from all over Hell's Half Acre coming into the office and telephoning to encourage us," Mazzoli said.

Sarah Luna, an aide to Mazzoli, said his Louisville office had received about 30 telephone calls and other communications, "mostly from women" and his Washington office received about 50, "largely from women," cheering him on.

Shy

Britain's publicity-shy Princess Anne says she likes visiting private homes in America, but the Soviet Union is the only place they leave her alone in public, according to the British magazine High Life.

The magazine quotes the princess as saying in an interview that she and her husband, Capt. Mark Phillips, have "never had a holiday." A week at Balmoral (her mother the Queen's Scottish home) or 10 days at Sandringham (another royal estate) is the nearest she gets.

The princess and her husband travel extensively on official visits or for horse-riding competitions, however.

"In Russia we could go anywhere in total anonymity, but everywhere else it's a problem," she said. "We enjoyed America, but always in someone's private house or garden. They were very generous — or, to use an old-fashioned word, discreet."

Longet

Lawyers for entertainer Claudine Longet want the press barred from covering hearings on a manslaughter charge filed against her in the shooting death of her lover, skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich, in Aspen, Colo.

One of Miss Longet's lawyers said the bar is necessary to prevent prejudicial news coverage. A ruling is expected Wednesday.

Miss Longet, 34, is accused of fatally shooting Sabich, 31, with whom she had lived for two years. The former wife of singer Andy Williams told investigators the shooting was an accident, but the prosecution plans to enter evidence that Miss Longet's relationship with the professional skier had been on the decline for several weeks before the shooting.

Ransom

The Belgian embassy said Friday night in Mexico City that Ambassador Andre Chaval had reached agreement with kidnapers for the release of his daughter after a compromise on ransom.

An embassy spokesman said the kidnapers reported in a telephone call that they would accept whatever money the family was able to raise. The original demand was for $800,000 ransom.

Donations from schoolchildren, diplomats and Mexican friends totaled $388,000 by Friday afternoon, but visitors were seen arriving later with more donations.

Nadine Chaval, 16, was seized from a chauffeur-driven auto Tuesday as she was going to school.

Good word

Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza Debayle returned to the U.S. Military Academy Friday and spoke up for the academy's beleaguered honor system.

As he and 312 other graduates gathered for daylong class-reunion activities, cadets charged in a recent cheating scandal were appearing elsewhere on campus, before appeals boards of officers.

The scandal, in which up to 250 cadets may have violated the code by cheating or tolerating cheating on an electrical engineering exam, has brought the honor system under criticism.

But, said Somoza, "It's as vital for a serviceman to have honor and integrity as it is for him to have courage."

Eulogized

Rep. Torbert Macdonald, D-Mass., a congressman for 21 years and Harvard roommate of John F. Kennedy, was eulogized by the former president's brother at a funeral Mass in Malden, Mass., Friday.

"His untimely death is a tragedy for us who knew him," said Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., during the service attended by more than 1,000 friends, relatives, congressmen and senators.

Kennedy said Macdonald "became a member of our family. He suffered our grief 13 years ago, and we share his family's grief today."

Macdonald, 58, hospitalized May 2 for a blood ailment, instructed doctors to turn off his life-support system so he could await a natural death.

Man power

Joseph Zinno, who last month became the first American to fly a man-powered aircraft, has given it another try and failed to get off the ground.

With a crowd of more than 200 persons watching, Zinno pushed his pedal-powered airplane, the Olympian, out onto the Quonset Point runway in North Kingstown, R.I., and began pedaling Thursday night.

He tried five times to get the aircraft into the air but was unsuccessful. He had hoped to fly longer and higher than he did on April 21, when his plane rose one foot off the ground during a five-second flight.

Zinno said he had trouble with his propeller and was not discouraged. He still hopes to fly a figure-eight pattern in July.

Frizzies

Daniel Doughty may be losing his fireman's job in Warren, Mich., because of a bad case of the frizzies.

Doughty has until Tuesday to take the curls out of his hair or face possible dismissal for disobeying an order to conform to an appearance code. Doughty says he'll defy the command and is ready to go to court if that's what it takes.

Three months ago, his wife brought home a do-it-yourself permanent kit and fuzzed his locks, and he's kept them frizzy since. The popular style has been described as looking as if the wearer just received a 250,000-volt electric shock.

The 32-year-old fireman says his friends, wife and two kids agree: "Everyone that's seen it has said it really looks good."

Well, not quite everyone — for example, not Frank Schultz, assistant chief at the station where Doughty, an 11-year veteran of the force, is stationed.

Schultz and another fire official, Wilfred Morency, called Doughty into the office Thursday and gave him five days to choose between a new hairstyle and a new job.

Symbolic

Queen Sofia of Spain attended Jewish religious services Friday in Madrid, symbolizing a bid for new freedoms in the Roman Catholic country. It was the first appearance by a Spanish monarch at a non-Catholic service in five centuries.

The 37-year-old queen was told she represented "a message of hope" as she observed the sabbath service in Madrid's synagogue.

Except for a benediction and formal welcome, the ceremony was in Hebrew. In his blessing, Rabbi Baruj Garzon wished the absent King Juan Carlos "eternal rule" and "a long life" and asked that Israel, with which Spain has no diplomatic relations, should "live in peace."

3 resign over political fund

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. — Three high-ranking executives at R.J. Reynolds Industries have resigned their offices but remain with the company in the wake of a probe of a secret political fund that may have totaled $80,000, company officials said Friday. The investigation revealed that corporate funds were used for domestic political contributions from January 1968 to early 1973, according to a statement released by Board Chairman Colin Stokes and President J. Paul Sicht. A company spokesman said the three men are still on the payroll but their salaries "will be reduced to a level commensurate with their new assignments, if any."

The company identified the three officials as David Peoples, chairman of the executive committee and vice chairman of the board; William Smith, a vice chairman of the board, and Charles Wade Jr., senior vice president.

Tax crackdown

WASHINGTON — The government is launching a program to catch suspected drug traffickers in tax violations when there isn't enough evidence to arrest them on narcotics charges, the head of the Drug Enforcement Administration said Friday. The agency will alert the Internal Revenue Service to individuals who may have evaded income taxes on money reaped in the illegal drug trade, DEA Administrator Peter Bensinger told newsmen. The agreement between the two agencies means that the government is reviving and strengthening an operation which IRS Commissioner Donald Alexander had phased out. Alexander had questioned whether it was proper to target individuals for tax investigations because they were suspected of other illegal activity.

Nuclear withdrawal

WASHINGTON — South African utility officials say they expect to withdraw from negotiations on a $1.6-billion purchase of nuclear reactors from a consortium that includes General Electric Co. Officials of the South African Electricity Supply Commission told the U.S. Export-Import Bank, which was preparing to underwrite the General Electric portion of the deal with a loan guarantee of $25.5 million, that they will withdraw from the negotiations next week. The decision to withdraw was attributed by other officials to mounting criticism in Congress and the Netherlands against the proposed deal.

U.N. extends Golan force

UNITED NATIONS — The Security Council voted Friday to extend for six months the presence of an international peacekeeping force between Israeli and Syrian armies on the Golan Heights. Israel and Syria had agreed earlier to continue the mandate for the U.N. force, which would have expired Monday. The council vote was 13-0, with China and Libya not participating in the vote although their representatives were present. A resolution adopted by the council called on all parties concerned in the Middle East to resume negotiations under "appropriate auspices aimed at establishing a just and durable peace." The 1,194-man U.N. Disengagement Observer Force has manned the buffer zone since Secretary of State Henry Kissinger negotiated a 1974 agreement between Israel and Syria. Another U.N. contingent of 4,000 men is stationed between Egyptian and Israeli lines in the Sinai desert. Its current authorization runs until October.

Guerrilla sanctuary

MPUWE, Zambia — President Kenneth Kaunda said Friday his government plans to allow black nationalist guerrillas to use Zambian territory for attacks against white-ruled Rhodesia. The president, who until recently gave strong backing to efforts for a negotiated Rhodesian solution and was considered a moderate in African racial affairs, also said he saw virtually no future in the long

Rich, poor disagree

NAIROBI, Kenya — Delegates from rich and poor nations failed Friday night to reach compromise agreements on world economic policies at the month-long U.N. Conference on Trade and Development. The conference was to have ended Friday, but it was extended for at least one more day for final efforts to resolve differences. Participants hoped to approve resolutions providing technological know-how to developing countries and to encourage manufacturing in countries dependent on the exports of raw materials.

Cease-fire talks

BEIRUT — Cease-fire talks were under way Friday to halt tank battles between renegade Muslim and Christian units of the former Lebanese army in northern Lebanon, government officials said. Some 75 persons were killed in a 24-hour period, according to security-force and hospital estimates.

Narrowly misses apartments 4 die as plane crashes near UCI

A light plane narrowly missed a cluster of two-story apartments when it lost a wing and crashed on the University of California's Irvine campus Friday, killing its four occupants.

"It was very lucky" that the plane missed the Verano Apartments 300 yards from the crash site, a police spokesman said.

The spokesman said the rented Beechcraft Bonanza slammed into a field about 7:40 a.m., shortly after takeoff from nearby Orange County Airport.

Killed instantly were the pilot, Dr. Roger L. Jensen, 38; his wife, Marlys, 38; Peter C. Pardo, 29, and his wife, Deborah, 28, all of San Clemente.

Federal Aviation Administration authorities said no flight plan had been filed but they believed the plane was headed for Mexico.

Sleeping bags, snorkels, wet suits and camping gear were scattered in the wreckage, which was strewn over a quarter of a mile.

There was no fire.

"We saw it come spiraling down, nose first, out of the clouds. One of the wings was missing," said Eric MacDonald, 31, UCI librarian. He did not see the plane hit the ground because of trees and buildings.

Dr. William Yarwood, a pilot who lives nearby, was driving by while the craft was still aloft.

"I heard the plane engine sputter, and then here was a surge of power, apparently, as the pilot tried to clear the carburetor," he said. "I could tell that he'd had it. The crash followed by seconds."

Nancy Wilcox, 30, who lives in the Verano housing complex, said she had just put her two children on a school bus when she saw the plane flying low.

"Its engine cut out. Suddenly there was like an explosion and a wing fell off," she recalled.

Investigators said the plane was owned by Harold Hayes of Mission Viejo and had been leased to Newport Air Associates, a chartering firm at Orange County Airport.

The wreckage was scattered between the Irvine City Hall and the police station, near Campus Drive and California Avenue at the edge of the campus.

Authorities said the plane apparently was flying low when the left wing separated from the fuselage.

Associated Press

Ronald Noday, the alleged mastermind of a scheme to loot $10 million from a downtown vault, was sentenced Friday in Los Angeles in U.S. District Court to 10 years in federal prison.

Noday, 31, of Palos Verdes Estates, pleaded guilty earlier this month to one count of interstate transportation of stolen property.

Noday's codefendant, Steven Duane Jones of Redondo Beach, also was sentenced by Real. Jones, who pleaded guilty to one count of conspiracy to loot the safe deposit boxes in the Van Nuys Building, was sentenced to six months in jail, fined $3,000 and placed on probation for five years.

The defendants originally were indicted on charges that they plotted to loot values from safe deposit boxes stored in the basement of the building.

A subsequent indictment was returned when authorities discovered that more than $485,000 in mint-condition gold coins had been stolen. Until that time, authorities thought nothing had been taken.

Authorities said Noday and Jones admitted they obtained a lease for the building's vault area last March 23 in the name of First Safe Deposit Box Co.

Woman given 10-to-life

Associated Press

Maria Messenger, 59, was sentenced to 10 years to life in prison Friday in connection with what authorities said was one of the largest heroin seizures in local history.

Los Angeles Superior Court Judge E. Talbot Callister imposed consecutive sentences of five years to life for charges of conspiracy to sell heroin and heroin possession.

Mrs. Messenger was convicted April 16, at which time she was acquitted of a charge of selling heroin.

She and three other persons, including her husband, were arrested last Nov. 5 as police seized 27½ pounds of heroin with an estimated street value of $8 million.

Her husband, Penfilo Salinas Espinoza, 40, is awaiting a pretrial hearing June 11.

Two others also were implicated. Humberto Marquez Reynoso, 24, was sentenced to prison for five years to life. Rolando Martinez, 21, is serving a six-month sentence.

Suspect of rape to be arraigned

One of three college students accused of raping a young woman in a Long Beach fraternity house three weeks ago will be arraigned June 3, police said Friday.

David Alan Foy, 21, who gave his address as the Sigma Pi fraternity house, 4121 E. Fourth Street, is free meanwhile on $5,000 bail.

The two others arrested with Foy, Glenn Alan Nesbit, 25, who lives at the same fraternity house, and Robert Gregory Richards, 21, 851 E. Palm Drive, are still in custody.

Police said the three were arrested at noon Thursday in a parking lot at Long Beach State University.

Foy and Richards are students at LBSU. Nesbit attends Long Beach City College.

6 Hughes cousins file suit

Associated Press

Six cousins of Howard Hughes — three from each side of his family — filed suit Friday in Los Angeles Superior Court, contesting Hughes' purported will that names Noah Dietrich executor.

The three paternal cousins of Hughes, who filed papers first, are Barbara Cameron of Los Angeles, and Agnes Roberts and Elspeth dePoull, both of Cleveland. They allege that the purported will found last April 29 in Salt Lake City was not written by Hughes.

The three, grandchildren of Hughes' paternal uncle, Rupert Hughes, said they believe several other wills, with later dates, will be found.

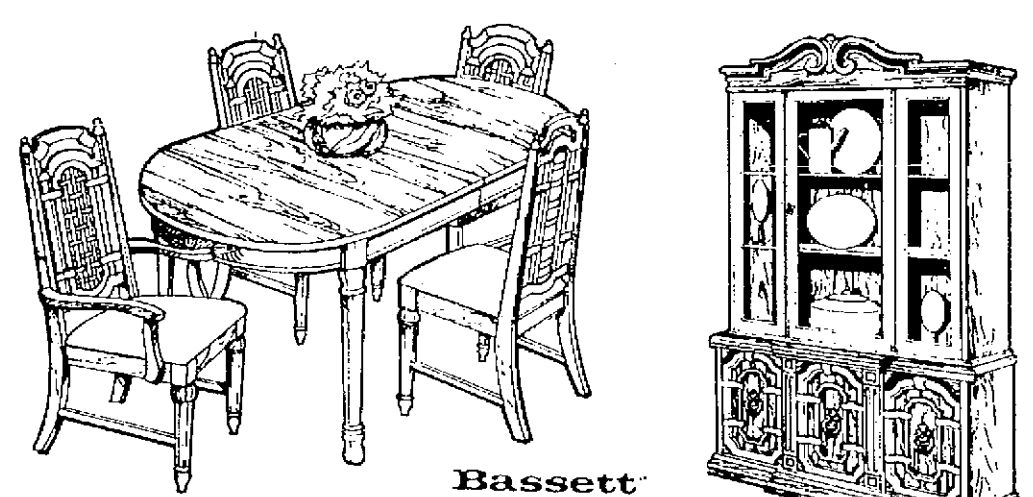

AN ATTORNEY representing Hughes' first cousins on his mother's side — Allene Lummis Russell, Anette Gano Neff and Frederick Rice Lummis Jr. — filed suit alleging that the will, on file in Las Vegas, Nev., is a fraud.

Both suits, as well as other matters including the admittance of the so-called Dietrich will, are scheduled to be discussed at a hearing before Superior Court Judge Neil Lake.

However, the massive probate battle over all the purported wills so far discovered is scheduled for a July 30 hearing in Las Vegas, and that led to speculation that next Tuesday's hearing over the cousins' suits may be postponed.

Airport parking

We are planning to take a flight out of Los Angeles International Airport on our vacation and we'd like to know how long we can leave our car parked at the airport. How much does it cost to park there and is any security provided? J.M., Long Beach.

You can park your car at the airport for as long as you want, but it's expensive. The cheapest rates are at the VSP lot near the intersection of 111th Street and Aviation Boulevard: 50 cents for the first six hours, 25 cents for each additional three hours or $1.50 for each 24-hour period. The parking fees at Lot A at East Way and 96th Street are 50 cents for the first three hours, 25 cents for each additional three hours, or $2 for 24 hours or $12 a week. You can park in Lot C, which is near Sepulveda Boulevard and 96th Street, for 50 cents for each three hours or $2 per 24 hours. Tram service is available from these lots to each of the airline terminals. The rates at the central parking lots near the terminals are 50 cents for each two hours or $5 a day. A spokeswoman for the Los Angeles Department of Airports said the parking lots are patrolled regularly by airport security personnel.

SOUND OFF!

I wish to pass along my congratulations to the contractors and subcontractors who have been rebuilding East Spring Street from Studebaker Road to Bellflower Boulevard. Working against odds and heavy traffic, they have done a good job. Now that the end appears near, I think someone should thank them for such a fine and fast job. J.S., Long Beach.

Invokes Fifth Amendment

Patty foils surprise call

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

Patricia Hearst calmly invoked the Fifth Amendment in Los Angeles Superior Court Friday under surprise questioning by an attorney for her one-time underground companions, William and Emily Harris.

Her testimony, which was unexpected, came about because of a legal maneuver from the Harris' chief lawyer, Leonard Weinglass, and lasted just 10 minutes before Judge Mark Brandler.

Weinglass' maneuver came after he disclosed the prosecution had told him it has no plans to call Miss Hearst as a witness against the Harrises.

In her brief testimony, the heiress and convicted bank robber claimed her constitutional right against self-incrimination five times.

Her attorney, Albert Johnson, stood beside her as Weinglass inquired about events stemming from her arrest in San Francisco last September and her whereabouts on May 16, 1974.

That day, the prosecution alleges, the Harrises were thwarted in a shoplifting attempt in Mel's Sporting Goods Store, 11425 Crenshaw Blvd., Inglewood, and escaped under cover of automatic rifle fire by Miss Hearst.

The two Symbionese Liberation Army members, and later Miss Hearst, are scheduled for trial before Judge Brandler on 11 felony counts which each of them face in connection with that incident.

It once was expected the three, who spent much of 18 months together as fugitives, would be tried together.

But during her San Francisco trial Miss Hearst implicated the Harrises in SLA actions and she reportedly cooperated with Berkeley authorities who subsequently indicted the couple for her kidnapping.

Friday marked the second time the heiress and the couple have met in the Los Angeles courtroom. Each time, they have treated each other as strangers.

Miss Hearst's testimony came after she had refused to speak at all when asked her plea to the charges.

She also stood mute two weeks ago when prosecutor Sam Mayerson asked for her plea.

That time, the pleading was postponed after Johnson successfully argued that a defense psychologist should affirm her mental competency to make such a decision.

Friday, however, Johnson reported he'd been unable to arrange a psychological examination. Judge Brandler responded by entering pleas of innocent on Miss Hearst's behalf.

Johnson, citing the fact that the competency question was unresolved, also told the court he was advising the 22-year-old defendant to remain silent when asked for a routine waiver of her right to a speedy trial.

The judge then set July 26 as the tentative start of Miss Hearst's trial. At the same time, he indicated that no one should expect her trial to begin that day.

The heiress could remain in federal custody in the fall, pending her sentencing in the bank robbery case, the judge noted.

Weinglass' unexpected move to put Miss Hearst on the stand came at 10:15 a.m., a moment after Judge Brandler had declared a 15-minute recess.

Miss Hearst, whose part in the hearing seemed ended, was walking out a side door in the courtroom surrounded by federal marshals when the judge hastily called court back into session.

In March, Weinglass reminded the judge, he had argued that evidence seized at Miss Hearst's San Francisco apartment, where she was arrested by FBI agents last Sept. 18, should be banned from the Harris trial.

The judge then ruled against him but left Weinglass the option of reopening the issue because Miss Hearst then was on trial in San Francisco and hadn't been available to testify.

Since Miss Hearst apparently was not going to be called as a prosecution witness during the trial, and since she was in court, why not review the question now, Weinglass asked the judge.

Johnson objected vigorously. It would be "inconsistent with the reason she was brought here and would be completely inappropriate," Johnson said. "I think that should end it."

He first said he'd continue to advise Miss Hearst to remain silent. But after a brief recess, Johnson changed his mind. She took the stand and he stood at her right shoulder.

No rebuttal for San Quentin Six

SAN RAFAEL (AP) — Prosecutors in the San Quentin Six murder-conspiracy trial surprised the courtroom Friday by announcing they will call no rebuttal witnesses, ending testimony in California's longest criminal trial.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Jerry Herman made the announcement in a court session without the jury present.

Five convicts and one ex-convict are accused of the Aug. 21, 1971, killings of three San Quentin Prison guards and two honor inmates during what authorities described as an aborted escape attempt.

Black revolutionary George Jackson was killed at the same time.

The defense rested Tuesday, and since then lawyers have been meeting with Judge Henry Broderick of Marin County Superior Court to discuss instructions the jury will receive before it begins deliberations.

Broderick said he will call the jury back Thursday to inform them of certain exhibits received and to instruct them on the probable schedule for the rest of the proceedings.

He said it was agreed among the attorneys that before final arguments the jury should be given a second tour of the part of the prison where the killings occurred. The judge tentatively set June 15 for that tour and said closing arguments may begin later that day.

The trial began March 26, 1975, behind the bullet-proof glass of a tightly secured courtroom. The six defendants began presenting their cases one at a time last January.

Panama frees ship after bill 'settled'

WASHINGTON (AP) — An American yacht whose seizure by Panamanian national guardsmen prompted State Department protests, was released Friday after settlement of a court case, White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said.

Nessen said the U.S. Embassy in Panama City reported that the Sea Wolf was freed after its owner, General Electric Credit Corp., a financing arm of the General Electric Co., posted a bond covering a disputed repair bill.

The vessel had been boarded and seized Sunday, reportedly within the U.S.-run Panama Canal, under an order issued by a Panamanian court, said State Department press officer John Ordway.

Such seizures are not legally permitted within the canal.

Ordway said Panamanian authorities contended that the seizure took place outside the canal.

Disclosure of the incident came in a speech on the Senate floor Friday by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., a critic of the administration's move to renegotiate the 1933 treaty which gave the United States sovereignty over the Canal Zone.

Helms contended that the State Department has been "shockingly negligent" in handling what "can properly be described as an act of piracy."

"The U.S. State Department is implicated in this act of piracy by failing to make a public announcement of the act, and by thus appearing to tolerate this trespass upon our sovereignty," Helms added.

Helms is a supporter of Ronald Reagan, President Ford's challenger for the Republican presidential nomination, who has made the U.S. position in Panama a major campaign issue.

Helms said the Panamanian troops fired upon the vessel with large-caliber automatic weapons and carbines from a gunboat before the seizure.

Ordway said the State Department's position on the Sea Wolf's location when seized was based

Lockheed aides face court rule

Associated Press

Three subpoenas were issued Friday in Los Angeles for depositions from Lockheed Aircraft Corp. executives allegedly involved in the firm's multimillion-dollar payoffs in Japan.

The subpoenas were signed by Chief U.S. District Judge Albert Lee Stephens on a request from the Justice Department. The Japanese government, in a highly unusual move, previously had asked the U.S. government for cooperation in obtaining information on the payoffs and the request was turned over to the Justice Department.

Stephens did not name the Lockheed officials involved.

The judge set up a special panel to preside over the taking of the depositions. Retired Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Kenneth Chantry was named to head the panel, with Justice Department Special Attorney Robert Clark and Asst. U.S. Atty. Carolyn Reynolds serving as co-commissioners.

Castro retaliation studied

Knight News Service

WASHINGTON — Senate Intelligence Committee investigators have come across documents showing that shortly before the assassination of President Kennedy, U.S. officials secretly studied the possibility that Fidel Castro might retaliate against American leaders for their attacks on Cuba.

According to informed sources, the existence of this study was kept secret from the Warren Commission which investigated the possibility of a Cuban connection in the Kennedy slaying, and, until recently, from the Senate Intelligence panel.

Committee investigators came across documents relating to the study in the course of their probe into the performance of the CIA and the FBI before and after the Nov. 22, 1963, assassination, these sources said. The committee's findings are to be made public in the next two weeks.

In an article in the current issue, The New Republic magazine says the team that performed the study was set up by former Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy and it was known as the "Cuban Coordinating Committee."

One member of the Cuban panel was the late Desmond Fitzgerald, a top CIA officer who was involved in a plot to kill Castro that was in progress on the day JFK was shot.

All members of the group, which included representatives of the FBI, CIA, State and Defense departments, were aware of the U.S.-sponsored commando raids on Cuba by anti-Castro Cubans, but apparently only Fitzgerald knew about the assassination plot against Castro.

Traffic toll to near 400

CHICAGO (AP) — Motorists took to the highways Friday for Memorial Day weekend travel that the National Safety Council estimated may result in 340 to 400 traffic deaths. The traffic fatality count started at 6 p.m. local time Friday and will end at midnight Monday.

Last year, during the same three-day holiday, 425 persons were killed in traffic accidents.

VW chooses site in Pennsylvania

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Volkswagen has settled on a partially finished Chrysler Corp. plant near Pittsburgh as the preferred site for its first assembly plant in the United States, Pennsylvania and Ohio officials said Friday.

The decision, announced in letters to the governors of the two states, ended a sharp bidding contest between them for the plant, its 5,550 new jobs and multimillion-dollar-a-year payroll.

Volkswagen selected a site owned by Chrysler in New Stanton, a town of 3,500 near the Pennsylvania Turnpike. From that location it hopes to rebuild its position in the U.S. auto market.

A Chrysler spokesman in Detroit said the firm is "pleased with Volkswagen's selection of the New Stanton plant."

The spokesman said Chrysler is not negotiating the sale of the plant directly with Volkswagen but rather through Pennsylvania officials.

David Brown, special assistant to Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp, said the West German automaker's board of management indicated its intentions in letters to Shapp and Gov. James A. Rhodes of Ohio.

"We will be negotiating with Volkswagen over the next several weeks. We hope to reach a final agreement in late June," Brown said.

He said Volkswagen listed several requirements Pennsylvania would have to meet before final agreement but declined to elaborate.

The 1,466-acre plant site consists of an exterior shell that Chrysler built in the late 1960s for about $35 million. Chrysler dropped plans to install $100 million worth of assembly machinery when the company nosedived financially.

In Ohio, Rhodes said Volkswagen had informed him that the automaker's second choice was a former tank plant in Brook Park, a Cleveland suburb. Columbus, the state capital, had been ruled out.

New ventures keep economy growing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Commerce Department economists peered into the government's economic crystal ball Friday and predicted increased business activity in the coming months.

But the economic seers reported a slight bit of haze clouded the crystal, a sign of possible economic trouble.

Nevertheless, said Maynard S. Comiez, Commerce's acting chief economist, the statistics continue "to show the economy is moving in the direction of expansion, although not as strongly."

Comiez based his analysis on the index of future activity. It consists of a dozen components and is designed to forecast economic trends.

The index climbed 1.1 per cent in April. Under normal circumstances, this would be regarded as a good portent. But the index failed to include the so-called "work week indicator," which measures the hours worked by production workers.

If the work week indicator is included in the overall index, the index would have risen only one-tenth of one per cent.

Officials explained the omission by saying the work week statistic was taken during a week that included both Passover and Easter, a time when many production workers took time off from their jobs. Thus, it was not representative of the entire month, they said.

"This is part of our attempt to make this index more representative of what's going on in the economy," said Beatrice N. Vaccara, associate director for national analysis and projection in the Commerce agency that prepares the leading indicators.

Comiez stood by his earlier forecast of a 7 per cent growth in the economy for the entire year, citing the index of future activity and April's Gross National Product.

The Gross National Product figures for April, released earlier this week, expanded at an annual rate of 8.5 per cent. The Gross National Product includes all goods and services.

The growth in the money supply was the biggest factor in boosting the index of future activity, Commerce officials said. Other positive influences cited were an increase in the number of new businesses formed, higher stock prices, price hikes for key commodities and slower deliveries by suppliers. The latter is interpreted as a signal of increased demand. Downward influences included an increasing number of persons laid off in manufacturing, a smaller volume of new orders for consumer products and a drop in the number of building permits issued.

FCC studies CB problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission announced Friday it has formed a planning group to look into the future of personal radio services, such as the popular citizens band radio.

The Personal Radio Planning Group, composed of FCC staff personnel, will suggest possible modifications to existing radio services or possibly the creation of an alternative personal radio service.

Fido getting more dry meal

Pets feeling economical pinch

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press

Consumers trying to save money by cutting food budgets are extending the thrift to family pets. While the family is eating fewer steaks and more hamburger, Fido is nibbling less canned meat and more dry meal.

Americans still are spending more than $2 billion to buy over 7 billion pounds of dog and cat food annually. But the rate of increase from 1974 to 1975 was smaller than in the previous year and there were indications that people were switching from canned foods to cheaper, dry varieties.

"With the canned-food units down and the dry units up, the trend seems to suggest a consumer compromise for the higher prices of all pet foods," said John C. Maxwell Jr. of Maxwell Associates, Wheat First Securities, Richmond Va.

Writing in the trade publication, Advertising Age, Maxwell said that dog and cat food sales totaled just under $2.7 billion in 1975. That was an increase of 8.2 per cent from 1974, compared to a rise of almost 24 per cent in the previous year.

There are three basic kinds of pet food: canned, moist and dry. The major difference is in the amount of water each kind contains, rather than in nutritional value.

Maxwell said sales of dry dog foods were up 7 per cent by volume from 1974 to 1975. Canned dog-food sales dropped 10 per cent in the same period and sales of moist dog foods dropped 3 per cent. Dry cat food was up 12 per cent, moist cat food was up 10 per cent and canned cat food was down 3 per cent.

The Pet Food Institute says most pet food is composed of meat, poultry or fish and their by-products and grains. In 1974, the latest year for which statistics are available, the pet food industry used 2.2 billion pounds of meat, poultry, fish and their by-products; 2.5 billion pounds of feed grains and by-products; and 801 million pounds of soybean meal.

The Food and Drug Administration has certain standards for pet food labels, just as it does for the labels on products for humans. Manufacturers must list ingredients in decreasing order of prominence although they do not have to list exact amounts.

"The wholesome nutritious ingredients should appear at the top of the list," said Ben E. Sheffy, a professor of nutrition at the Veterinary Virus Research Institute of Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y. "Anything that appears after the first few ingredients is likely to be present in very small quantities."

One exception is water. Some manufacturers simply use the statement, "water sufficient for processing," and put it at the end of the ingredient list. The FDA has now ruled that water used for processing must be listed in its proper order and has given manufacturers until Oct. 12 to comply with the new standard or face regulatory action.

Figuring out what to feed your dog or cat isn't always easy. The National Research Council of the National Academy of Sciences makes periodic studies and issues recommended daily allowances of different nutrients, but the specifics can get complex. One veterinary expert, who declined to be quoted by name, said most of the commercial pet foods do provide a balanced diet.

In an article on the nutritional needs of dogs, Sheffy said that deciding whether to use canned, dry or moist food "is not so much a matter of nutrition, but one of palatability, convenience, economics and the preferred type of feeding plan."

Pastor raps TM Called non-Christian

By DARRELL SIFFORD

Knight Newspapers Writer

The Rev. David H. Paulsen ended the interview by saying:

"As pastor of your church and as a Christian, I must tell you that I believe you did wrong in starting transcendental meditation. You are practicing something that really contradicts Christian belief."

In a nutshell Paulsen is telling me that the contradiction comes because the theory on which transcendental meditation is based holds that man has within himself "divine glory" and that meditation can enable him to tap into this and enjoy the good life. On the other hand, he's saying, Christianity teaches that man experiences fulfillment not by diving into himself but by accepting Jesus Christ.

Paulsen is 35, a one-time college instructor in philosophy, associate pastor of the Lutheran Church, of which I am a member.

I arranged the interview with Paulsen after someone told me Paulsen had delved into transcendental meditation (TM) and concluded that it is religious in nature and not compatible with Christian doctrine.

I began meditating two years ago and have written several columns about it, saying generally that I've found it works as a way to relax and feel better.

Essentially TM involves the repetition of a sound that seems to have a soothing effect on the nervous system, brings a slowdown in the body's metabolic rate — according to Harvard University studies — that is twice what you experience during deep sleep.

Paulsen said he arrived at his conclusions about TM after attending one lecture and after "reading all the books." TM instructors said he needed to read to understand TM.

Two of the half-dozen books he read, he said, were written by Maharishi Mahesh Yogi, the bearded and robed Hindu guru who is regarded as the primary teacher and chief proponent of TM and the Science of Creative Intelligence, the theory on which TM is based.

On the basis of his reading, Paulsen is saying, he finds the fundamental contradiction with Christianity to be in the theory behind TM — rather than in the practice of TM.

"I have no doubt that TM benefits many people who practice it. The medical documentation about lowering blood pressure and reducing metabolic rate can't be disputed."

"But I don't believe it's possible to separate the practice from the doctrinal beliefs behind the practice. By paying your $125 to take TM you're supporting the spread of its philosophy and this philosophy simply isn't compatible with Christianity."

Question: What are the things that most bother you about TM?

Answer: The initiation ceremony causes me big problems, as a Christian. There are references to a specific Hindu deity. The whole ceremony has Hindu overtones.

Lord, how oft shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? till seven times? Matthew 18:21.

POSITIVE THINKING

by Norman Vincent Peale

How To Handle A Handicap

I receive a great many letters a day and they contain all manner of fascinating human stories. Just recently, however, there came in the mail one of the most interesting I ever had.

"My letter will be a bit different from the ones you usually receive," it read. "I have everything to make life wonderful, good, and beautiful. God and I are very personal friends. I can do all the things I love to do for others because of His blessed help. I have a fine, kind husband, a very beautiful daughter, and I also enjoy a host of wonderful friends. I sing, play the piano, and give talks of a devotional nature. I pray that I am a blessing to those who need a blessing. What more could anyone ask of life than this?"

"Incidentally, I am without sight..."

A very different letter indeed! "Incidentally I am without sight!" Here is a woman who certainly knows how to handle a handicap. She seems actually to disregard it. She hasn't her thoughts fixed on the fact that she is blind. She does not concentrate on her difficulties nor complain about them. She does not dwell on the hazards of life, but rather upon the positive values. She fixes her thoughts on God and the welfare of others, overcomes her handicap, and so lives joyously.

Fortunately, very few of us are born sightless or become blind. But all of us do grow older — and age seems a big handicap to many. Here is another letter from the pile on my desk, a letter showing how one man handles the age and retirement problem, which becomes such a difficult experience for some.

"I reached the retirement age of 65, and against my wishes, was compelled to retire by the bank I had been with for 24 years. I won't go into detail as to how I felt. This happened on a dismal and rainy night — I was walking through Rector Street, and I never felt more depressed or useless in all my life.

"Suddenly, it happened! I had not prayed, but felt I was not alone. A voice within me said over and over again, 'God is good; God is good.' I immediately felt uplifted. Every drop of rain broke the puddles into tinselled lights. It was beautiful! I went home, greatly comforted, and

"About two weeks later I had a call from another bank asking me to organize a credit department for them... It, too, has the 65 year limit, but they have made an exception of me..."

"I am 69, and in good health. I am young, I know, because I feel the best is still ahead... The good Lord is giving me the opportunity, the strength, and the courage to keep on."

Here is expressed that same dauntless, positive spirit. "I am young... because I feel the best is still ahead!" This man is not handicapped by his 69 years. He has fixed his mind on the Source of eternal youth.

When a person really develops the ability to put his faith in God into actual practice, he can face any handicap at any time of his life and overcome it. I got letter after letter giving specific examples like these and therefore I am sure that such victorious living is possible, not only because I happen to believe in it, but because I can document it with innumerable case histories.

Missionary

Loreene Bell, recently commissioned by First Lutheran Church, leaves tonight for her assignment in Ukarumpa, Papua New Guinea. She will serve in the high school operated by Wycliffe Bible Translators. She has served for years as teacher, vice principal and reading tutor in Long Beach schools. She has visited the Far East on several occasions. She was commissioned last Sunday by Rev. Ronald J. Kusel, pastor, and her former pastor, Rev. E.H. Schroeder. She will participate in translation programs.

GOINGS ON

Kim Wickes, a concert singer, will present a program Sunday, 6:30 p.m., at the First Baptist Church of Lakewood, 5336 Arbor Road. Kim was blinded and almost died in the Korean War. She achieved a master's degree at Indiana University and has sung in many parts of the world. She has sung for Billy Graham. On Sunday, 9 and 10:30 a.m., the church will hear the Grace Generation, a youth choir from Tempe, Ariz.

Branch 43, Fleet Reserve Association, will hold a Memorial Day service at the Navy Family Chapel, 2014 W. Hill St., Monday at 11 a.m. Chaplain Ward D. McCabe (Ret.) will be the principal speaker.

Mrs. Barbara West, a third generation Baha'i whose children and grandchildren are also Baha'is, will speak at the Baha'i Center, 914 E. Broadway, Sunday at 8 p.m.

Four bell choirs and various other instruments will be presented in concert Sunday, 8 p.m., at the Garden Grove Community Church, 12141 Lewis St.

Ben Bibb, a retired naval officer, will tell of his experiences as a healer Sunday, 9:30 a.m., at the North Long Beach United Methodist Church, 5600 Linden Ave. He is teaching classes today through June 11 at the church.

Gary Fredricks, a Campus Crusade for Christ minister in Kenya, will preach Sunday, 9 and 10:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m., at Our Redeemer Lutheran Church, 12301 Magnolia Ave., Garden Grove. Gary, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fredricks, is a graduate of Jordan High, Long Beach City College, and UC Berkeley.

Rev. Kenneth Wells, a Bible scholar, will speak at the Norwalk Nazarene Church, 15000 Studebaker Road, Sunday, 10:45 a.m. and 6 p.m.

"Devil at the Wheel," a film, will be shown at Christian Life Church, Pacific Avenue and Wardlow Road, Sunday, 6 p.m. The event is sponsored by Doxa Unlimited, a group which helps young people with drug and other problems.

"The Joy of Sexuality" will be the topic of Pastor Bill E. Burch Sunday, 9:30 and 11 a.m., at First Nazarene Church, 2280 Clark Ave. It concludes a series called "The Marriage Affair," which Pastor Burch reports is the most successful series ever held in the church.

Father Luke Zimmer, S.S.C.C., will preside at the Catholic Day of Renewal, today, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on board the S.S. Princess Louise, Berth 236, Terminal Island.

"Crime and Punishment" is the topic of a public lecture by Dr. Robert Bonnell, sponsored by the Theosophical Society of Long Beach, Wednesday, 7:45 p.m., at the YMCA, Long Beach Boulevard at Sixth Street.

Parable, a Christian folk-rock group, will give a concert Sunday, 2 p.m., in Recreation Park, Seventh Street and Park Avenue. It is sponsored by the Good News Ministries.

Rev. Ted Hard, a missionary from Korea, will preach Sunday, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., at the First Orthodox Presbyterian Church, 500 E. San Antonio Drive.

Church Women United invites all who wish to know more about CROP to attend the Forum Friday, 9:30 a.m., at Wesley Methodist Church, 1100 Freeman Ave. Rev. Harry W. Hixon, CROP associate director, will be the speaker.

The Christian Singles will hear Madame Bilquis Sheikh next Saturday, 6:30 p.m., at a dinner at St. Timothy's Lutheran Church, 4645 Woodruff Ave.

"How to Lose Weight With the Help of the Lord" will be conducted by Joan Cavanaugh next Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., at Trinity Chapel, 5512 Woodruff Ave., Lakewood. Joan weighed 230 pounds but lost 90 of them.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The "Goings On" column is for the announcement of events of general community interest. We are not interested in strictly intramural activities like church dinners or church elections. The events should be free except for nominal charges for food and for free-will offerings.

LETTERS

Not modern

I don't see how a Christian can condone Capital Punishment when Christ prayed for his executioners. After the death of Christ many Christians were executed in a public and cruel manner, but this did not deter the growth of Christianity.

Where the death penalty is asked many juries will exonerate the guilty because of the small amount of doubt that exists in the back of everyone's mind.

Society must protect itself from the dangerous person. Capital Punishment, barbarous as it is, must be used where there are inadequate jails. In view of the conditions of some jails, Capital Punishment could be considered humane.

Capital Punishment, at best, is nothing more than an instrument of revenge. It belongs to the Middle Ages, not to modern enlightened society.

New revolt?

Well, I guess you might call this a thank-you letter because for a long time I have intended to write and just say "thank you" for the Religion Pages every Saturday. I always look forward to reading them. Enjoy your editorial (and commentary) column and always like to read the opinions of the folks in the community regarding various topics in the letters they write you pro and con various issues.

An idea for a future discussion would be: what would your readers think of the idea of the best way to celebrate our Nation's Bicentennial would be to have a Spiritual and Moral Revolution in this country? Perhaps they don't think one is necessary — or perhaps like myself would not know where to start even if you think this is a good idea. My personal opinion is that our hard fought Revolution 200 years ago — to secure freedom and justice, etc. and which gave birth to a really great country will be for naught if people in all walks of life — all levels — do not make an honest effort to establish integrity in their lives, their businesses — learn to listen to that voice of conscience again. Or is this an out of fashion idea like it sometimes seems patriotism is?

Well, I know I can start with me, but the bigger issues like crime and corruption and the rest are what I feel helpless about. Thanks again for "your" pages and I think you do a good job of dealing with some difficult and controversial topics.

Not Christian?

I am writing concerning the letter of R.W. Bissailon (May 22). I would like to set some basic truths before Jehovah's Witnesses about Christianity and about what the Bible says. He stated that it was "absurd" that the doctrines of the Jehovah's Witnesses differ from basic Christian doctrines. I most strongly disagree.

First of all, the Bible and Christianity claim that Jesus Christ is God come in the flesh. When the angel appeared to Joseph in a dream, he quoted a prophecy from the Old Testament concerning the Christ, "And she will

Greeks seek new format

CHICAGO. (AP) — Archbishop Iakovos, primate of the Greek Orthodox Church in North and South America, has initiated steps here for decentralizing authority in the body of 2 million members.

The plan, already tentatively approved by the Ecumenical Patriarchate of Constantinople under which the church functions, would shift from collective overall direction to provincial administration under eight regional bishops, in accordance with joint guidelines.

A report of the change, expected to be implemented by Jan. 1, 1977, will be made at the church's biennial Clergy-Laity Congress in Philadelphia July 2-9.

Ministry of laity

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The National Federation of Priests' Councils says the Roman Catholic Church must rely "far more on the common responsibility of all the people" in its ministry, and not just on the clergy.

"For too long the Church has given clergy the primary role in ministry," the federation's House of Delegates said in a convention resolution, adding that Jesus's ministry shows it is carried out by all members, at every level.

bear a Son; and you shall call His name Jesus, for it is He who will save His people from their sins." Now all this took place that what was spoken by the Lord through the prophet might be fulfilled, saying, "Behold, the virgin shall be with child, and shall bear a Son, and they shall call His name Immanuel," which translated means, "God with us." (Isaiah 7:14, Matthew 1:21-23)

Ignorance not bliss

NEW YORK (AP) — Some people wrongly think that "the less you know, the easier it will be" to maintain faith in God, says the Rev. William J. O'Malley, a Jesuit high school teacher in Rochester, N.Y.

This attitude equates belief with ignorance, and thereby demeans belief, he writes in a new Paulist Press book, "The Roots of Unbelief." He says modern challenges demand an even more rigorously intellectual approach to faith.

Seminarians are saner

CINCINNATI (AP) — The head of a psychological unit which evaluates applicants for religious orders and the ministry says candidates are healthier and more stable than they were 10 years ago.

William C. Wester, director of the Behavioral Science Center which conducts evaluations for 42 religious groups around the country, says that only about one in 10 applicants is found to be considered unacceptable, although this finding may be disregarded by the group involved.

Problems in Paraguay

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Six Paraguayan staff members of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) have been imprisoned in Paraguay without charges, the church says.

It says reports reaching church headquarters here were that the arrests came in April during a government crack-down on organizations it labeled "subversive." Three other church workers were deported or have sought asylum, the church says.

First Christian fires its elders

By an overwhelming majority the congregation of First Christian Church, 125 E. Fifth St., voted on May 23 to recall the Board of Elders. The vote was 127 to 3.

This unusual action seems to have come from a conflict concerning the right way to be conservative.

"I consider myself very conservative in the tradition of our founder, Alexander Campbell," said the young pastor, Michael E. Dixon, "but I have to live in the modern world. When I came here I told the board there would be no more 'Episcopalian' music. I think our music should reach people. And I think we should reach out to all kinds of people."

Pastor Dixon has been doing this. In the two years or so he has been here the congregation has more than doubled in size. But some of the newcomers apparently didn't fit the staid format.

The recall, Dixon pointed out, didn't amount to a total censure of the board.

Under the bylaws, the entire board, not just some members, must be recalled. There will be an election of elders.

The Christian Church is democratic and congregational in structure. The people elect three boards — the elders, who are expected to give spiritual guidance; the deacons, who serve in the church's work, and the trustees, who handle the business. The minister is hired by the boards and the congregation.

The bitterness has been rather intense with the elders voting to fire Dixon. That apparently is not what the congregation wanted.

First Christian was during the 1920s, 1930s and 1940s was an extremely dynamic church. It conducted the world's largest men's Bible class. In recent years it has declined. Pastor Dixon is trying to reverse the trend. With special events he has seen the huge church nearly full on a couple of occasions.

Blessing for thieves

DUNBA, Calif. (AP) — The Gideons have a problem with people stealing Bibles they place on motel, hotel and hospital nightstands all over the world, but it doesn't bother them too much.

"We figure if one is gone, the guy who took it really needed it, so the purpose is served," says Dave Hofer Jr., president of Gideons International. He notes that sometimes persons who take Bibles later send letters to Gideon headquarters in Nashville, with a $5 or $10 donation for it.

The Gideons have distributed 150 million Bibles or New Testaments since the group was founded 77 years ago — about one million copies a month last year.

"About 20 per cent are taken home from motels and hotels each year and about 35 per cent are taken from hospitals," he says. "Local members go around ... to see if they are missing and to replace them."

Ministry for gays

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — A new organization to work with homosexuals, Evangelicals Concerned, was formed at a meeting here of conservative Christians.

Its president, Brad Wilson, a "gay" social worker and a minister of the Church of God, Anderson, Ind., says the step opens "a new era in the life of the evangelical church ... We shall seek dialogue between the thousands of gay believers and the historic church."

First Indian

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time, an Indian has been named to the staff of the United Methodist Commission on Religion and Race in the appointment of the Rev. Kenneth J. Deere of Muskogee, Okla., a Creek, as the agency's associate executive secretary.

Soviet clergy visit U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — A delegation of high-ranking clergymen of the Soviet Union, including Jewish representatives for the first time as well as Christians, has ended a 10-day visit with U.S. religious leaders with mutual expressions of friendship and cooperation.

It "has opened new possibilities for further work together in the future," said Metropolitan Juvenaly of Moscow's Russian Orthodox Patriarchate, chairman of the nine-member delegation. It also included Roman Catholic, Baptist and Lutheran representatives.

Episcopalians set record

NEW YORK (AP) — Episcopalians gave a record amount of $2.7 million in 1975 to their presiding Bishop's Fund for World Relief, the highest in its 35-year history.

A Church report attributed the upsurge to "an awakening consciousness to the urgency of the world hunger problem." In distributing $3 million for such projects — including a carry-over from 1974 — the report said administrative costs were held to only 5 per cent.

'Nothing dull,' pastor says

NASHVILLE (AP) — In the past four years, buildings of the Woodmont Baptist church here have twice been struck by lightning, suffered $400,000 damage in a major fire in 1971, and the choir room was looted during a recent worship service.

"There's nothing dull about being a pastor here," observes the pastor, the Rev. Bill Sherman.

Lutherans give

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The Lutheran World Federation on World Service and the U.S. Lutheran World Relief have donated $200,000 for purchase of foodstuffs for Vietnam.

Nine priests to be ordained

Nine new priests for the Los Angeles archdiocese will be ordained today at 9:30 a.m. in St. Vibiana's Cathedral by Cardinal Timothy Manning.

All are graduates of St. John's Seminary, the archdiocesan major seminary in Camarillo.

The ordinands are Rev. Alfred S. Burnham of Long Beach; Rev. Michael J. Carcerano, Long Beach; Rev. Gregory A. Cox, Claremont; Rev. Edward J. Dober, Westlake Village; Rev. Thomas Q. Fitzpatrick, Westchester; Rev. Perry D. Leiker, North Hollywood; Rev. Richard A. Loomis, Pacific Palisades; Rev. Mario J. Pacheco, Los Angeles; and Rev. George R. Sullivan, Ventura.

Another member of the St. John's class, Father James M. Farris of Santa Ana, was ordained May 23 in his home parish, St. Barbara's, Santa Ana, by Bishop William R. Johnson, bishop-designate of Orange. He will serve in the new Orange diocese.

Other members of the 1976 St. John's Seminary class include Rev. Charles F. Smith, who was ordained for the Fresno diocese May 15 in his home parish, St. Mary's, Visalia, and Rev. Joseph C. Ladensack, Chandler, Ariz., who will be ordained June 5 in Phoenix for the Phoenix diocese.

Jewish growth

NEW YORK (AP) — An upward trend in Jewish religious affiliation was indicated in 1975 statistics for Reform Judaism, with membership in its 720 congregations growing from 1 to 3 per cent.

Also, 27 new congregations applying for admission is the largest number in more than a decade.

American people are being deprived of up to 69,000 barrels of oil a day," he added, pointing to a group of "shut in" (closed) wells.

"Right over there is a tanker filled with Arab oil that sells for $13 a barrel," Reagan said, motioning toward a huge ship. "It's ridiculous for Americans to buy foreign crude while domestic wells sit idle."

Reagan said he came to Long Beach at the invitation of California Independent Oil Producers, who asked him to "assess the oil situation."

The nonprofit organization, which represents about 170 of the state's 360 active independent oil producers, has been fighting the oil price ceiling since it was placed on low-gravity crude oil by the Federal Energy Administration three years ago.

The national average selling price for domestic oil is about $5.25 per barrel, but California oil can sell for only $4.21 per barrel because of the federal price ceiling.

A spokesman for the oil producers' association said President Ford had been invited to tour the oil field but declined.

Later Friday, Reagan was feted at a $100-a-plate fund-raising dinner at the Golden Sails Inn. About 400 persons attended.

NEXT TUESDAY'S primaries are in Rhode Island, Montana and South Dakota, but several of the candidates were paying more attention to primaries June 8 in larger states, California, Ohio and New Jersey.

In Los Angeles, Brown was asked during the taping of a television program whether he ruled out mandatory busing.

"If I were asked, I would rule it out," he said. "If the courts want to rule it in, then certainly we're going to follow the rules."

Asked later what he had meant, Brown was quick to add: "It's not given to me to rule it in or out. It's for the courts to deal with."

He also said American society must be integrated racially if it is to survive. "If we don't integrate society, I don't think society over the long run will make it," he said.

Brown said that as president he would not file an antibus brief with the U.S. Supreme Court in the Boston busing case. Such a brief would be "jumping into troubled waters," he said. He added, "My hunch is that the courts may give a certain amount of latitude to local school districts, which I think would be a very good thing."

Brown said he had "serious questions" about whether busing will improve the equality of education and integration.

REAGAN ALSO WAS in Los Angeles, where he said sale of U.S. arms to mainland China would be "a natural development" in America's developing relationship with China.

"I happen to believe myself that, yes, we should promote relations with mainland China," Reagan said at a news conference.

But he attacked the Ford administration for its foreign diplomacy. "There seems to be a developing pattern of secrecy on the part of the administration with regard to the American people and what they are entitled to know," Reagan said.

Reagan also said he was concerned that the Ford administration might cut off relations with Taiwan after the presidential election in November.

"There are the rumors, the reports (of) the leaks of sacrificing Taiwan, a long-time ally and friend, but we won't do that until after the election," he said.

REAGAN SAID HE based his comment on reports from a congressman and from journalists who took part in an off-the-record background briefing about a month ago with a high State Department official. He said a plan was outlined in the briefing which "if carried out, would mean yielding to their demand that we sacrifice Taiwan."

Reagan said in connection with the possible sale of weapons to mainland China that he hoped "an effort would be made to see that those would not be used aggressively against non-Communist neighbors."

Asked about reports that the administration was close to approving conditional sales of arms to China, Reagan said: "The mutual interest of mainland China and the United States is the Soviet Union. So I accept that (arms sales to China) as a natural development."

Late tally nets Brown two more delegates

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — New figures from News Election Service on Friday gave Gov. Brown of California an additional two Democratic delegates from Oregon's primary election.

The late count of Brown's write-in votes, still not complete, took one delegate away from Jimmy Carter and one from Sen. Frank Church.

The new, unofficial count was Church 14, Carter 11 and Brown 9. NES figured the breakdown on the basis of the statewide vote in Tuesday's election.

In fact, however, delegates are allotted by congressional district, so the final count may differ.

The vote percentage also changed. Church and Carter each lost 1 per cent, and Brown gained 2. The new figures were Church 34 per cent, Carter 27 per cent and Brown 25 per cent.

Brown's new vote total was 102,671, the highest ever recorded for a write-in candidate in Oregon.

TAX BITE

cent assessment increase. That would call for a tax rate hike of about nine cents per $100 assessed valuation.

The estimated average countywide assessment increase of 12.25 per cent however could represent a major blessing to county government, which is in the throes of a massive financial crunch.

Chief Administrative Officer Harry Hufford has proposed a $3.2 billion budget which calls for a 41-cent county general fund tax rate increase. If it were to be passed in its present form, 38 cents of the increase would lift the current county tax rate to its legal limit and supervisors would have to vote to raise a further three to four cents as a special override.

Despite the projected 41-cent tax rate increase, Hufford's budget called for numerous service cuts—including a number of health care cutbacks in the Long Beach area.

Hufford's tax rate estimate, however, was based on the countywide tax rolls increasing by only 10 per cent. If the 12.25 per cent increase holds up, it will have the effect of reducing his tax rate hike by about 10 cents.

This means the Board of Supervisors could finance the entire spending package proposed by Hufford with only a 31-cent instead of a 41-cent tax rate increase.

Alternatively the additional assessment hike could provide up to about $15 million in additional revenue, which could be used to leave the tax rate at its legal limit and yet finance those projects which Hufford recommended should be cut.

spectors are not used in this treaty, the door has been opened for the United States to argue in future arms control negotiations — such as the next stage of strategic arms talks — for the right of "on-site inspection."

Up to now, the United States has agreed that through photo satellites in the sky and other intelligence-gathering devices it can adequately verify that the Soviet Union is living up to accords putting limits on strategic weapons.

But if the current deadlock in the strategic arms talks is broken and an accord is reached, the next stage of such negotiations — aimed at reducing each side's levels of missiles — may require on-site inspectors to verify compliance. American officials said Friday.

Thus, the United States might want to check that missiles were not in a depot being stored when they should have been destroyed, an official said.

Random checks of missile warheads might be sought to verify multiple warhead limits, he said.

But the Russians, up to now, have resisted any "on-site" inspection of their military hardware. And the care with which the verification procedures, even for the fairly harmless "peaceful" tests, have been drawn, indicates the wariness that still exists between the two sides.

The latest agreement, hailed by Ford as "an historic milestone," will probably be approved without much enthusiasm by the Senate if the White House pushes for it. That remains to be seen, given Ford's own ambiguity on dealing with the Russians.

POWER PLANTS

gotiated by Assemblyman Charles Warren D-Los Angeles, and representatives of the San Diego utility, induced the firm to withdraw its opposition and brought one and possibly two San Diego senators on the list of supporters.

BUT THE Los Angeles utility cried "foul," and enough Los Angeles senators withheld their votes that the amendment failed, 14-16.

Alquist then moved that the bills be made a special order of Senate business next Tuesday at 2 p.m.

Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, offered a substitute motion that consideration of the bills be put off until June 9, the day after the election.

"We are being asked to be made a party to influencing the outcome of the vote on Proposition 13," Deukmejian said. "I do not think it is proper for this body to thwart the efforts of the people who qualified that initiative for the ballot."

Sen. Arlen Gregorio, D-San Mateo, responded that it was "entirely proper for the people of this state to know what their Legislature is going to do on this subject."

"WHATEVER" we do will have an influence," Gregorio said. "If we do nothing, if we duck it, that clearly tells the people something."

Deukmejian's motion, needing only a majority of those present and voting, failed on an 18-18 vote.

Then a vote was taken on Alquist's original motion. It, too, failed. The vote was 17-17.

Alquist said he would seek permission Tuesday to have the bills considered out of order. They are far back in the daily file, and would not ordinarily be acted on for days, possibly for weeks.

If he is granted permission — he will need 21 votes — he will then reoffer the amendment which failed Friday, only in an altered form which will allow the Los Angeles utility's proposed Kern County plant to be exempted.

Child-molesting

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A judge said Friday he will rule Thursday on the guilt or innocence of Joe C. Ortega, former Agricultural Labor Relations Board member charged with child-stealing and molesting a 14-year-old boy.

D.A. pressing L.B. 'corruption' probe

An investigation into possible corruption in Long Beach city government is continuing, but "it's a little too early to say" if charges will be filed against more municipal officials or civilians, a member of the district attorney's office said Friday.

Bruce Campbell, head of the district attorney's special investigations division, said members of his staff are conducting daily interviews with persons who might provide information about possible illegal activities in the city.

His investigation stems in part from the May 14 arrest of Long Beach Planning Director Ernest Mayer Jr., who has been charged with two counts of solicitation and bribery.

Mayer allegedly was paid more than $50,000 over a four-year period by Long Beach architects James Coppedge and Clavin A. Ballance in exchange for his help in pushing six multimillion-dollar projects through the city's planning department.

Coppedge and Ballance have been granted immunity from prosecution as a result of their cooperation with the district attorney's office.

Campbell said one of the persons interviewed this week in connection with the case was Long Beach developer William T. Dawson. Dawson was scheduled to talk with representatives from the district attorney's office last week, but changed his plans until his attorney could be present.

He said Friday he was asked to meet with investigators because two of his real estate developments allegedly were pushed through the city planning department by Mayer in exchange for payoffs from Coppedge and Ballance.

Dawson developed Marina Pacifica, and acquired the land for the construction of the Harbor Bank branch at Ocean Boulevard and Alamitos Avenue.

He said he discussed those projects with investigators last Tuesday. He has denied previous knowledge of payoffs to Mayer by the two architects.

Investigators who searched Mayer's penthouse apartment at the International Towers said they found a $20,000 IOU signed by Dawson.

Campbell refused to reveal the content of his conversation with the developer.

Monday, Long Beach City Councilman Wallace Edgerton spoke to district attorney's staff members in connection with the charges against Mayer.

The content of that conversation was not revealed, either.

Edgerton has called for the retirement of City Manager John Mansell and suggested that all council members take lie-detector tests on questions regarding possible corruption in city government.

The Second District Councilman has admitted taking dates to a Marina Pacifica condominium apartment owned by Mayer but said he had no knowledge of the planning director's other affairs.

end of the Memorial Day holiday, unless paychecks were issued. But his mandate became academic when Kibbee announced the closing.

"The funds currently available to the university have been exhausted and I am prevented by law from spending money in advance," Kibbee said.

"Therefore it is with deep regret and sorrow that I order the closing of the university at midnight."

Kibbee, like city officials, said he had looked to the state legislature for financial assistance to enable CUNY to complete the school year. A bill currently before the legislature would provide $24 million in state funds for the current term and $171 million for future operations.

But Democratic leaders in the State Assembly were unable to marshal enough support Thursday to pass the measure. Said one metropolitan area assemblyman: "Nobody wants to go home and find people saying you voted for tuition."

Although the bill does not mention tuition, behind the funding package is a mandate that CUNY end its free tuition policy.

Democratic Gov. Hugh Carey has urged CUNY to impose the same tuition as the state university system, $750 a year for freshmen and sophomores and $900 a year for juniors and seniors.

Kibbee denied reports that he had been urged to close the university "as an attempt to goad the legislators into appropriating the necessary funds."

Although CUNY's professors are highly paid, they have possibly the heaviest teaching load in the nation, according to a survey by the American Association of University Professors.

Salaries and fringe benefits range from $32,400 to $38,000 for full professors at CUNY, compared to a national average of $26,270. Polshook estimated that the average overall pay at CUNY is about $19,000, compared to $18,500 elsewhere.

However, the average weekly teaching load at CUNY is 12 to 15 hours a week, according to Polshook, who called it "probably the highest workload of any quality university in this country."

And CUNY provides one teacher per 18 to 19 students, compared to a ratio elsewhere of 15.2-to-one to 17.1-to-one.

LBCC one win from State title Harris shackles Harbor, 4-1

By PAUL McLEOD
Staff Writer

Long Beach City College baseball coach Bob Myers sent his best man to the mound Friday afternoon, and Greg Harris responded with one of his best games.

Harris, a self-proclaimed rubber-armed righthander out of Los Alamitos High, struck out eight batters, scattered six hits and four walks, and held high-powered Harbor scoreless for six innings while pitching out of jams in the final three innings to lead the Vikings to a 4-1 victory in the first game of the best-of-three California junior college baseball playoffs against Harbor College.

The teams meet again today at Harbor at 11:30 a.m. If Harbor wins, a penultimate game will follow.

Harris, in recording his 18th win of the season, received heavy support from 10 LBCC hits—two by leftfielder Brad Liebeck and second baseman Pat Estes and three by third baseman Rick Kienast.

Rod Van Lue of Carson took the loss. Van Lue entered the game with a 1.84 Southern California Conference earned run average. He struck out one and walked one.

Harbor may not have seen the last of Harris.

"We've got no one better," said Long Beach coach Bob Myers. "If we have to use him we will."

"If they get in trouble they'll bring him back. He's their best. No doubt about it," said Harbor coach Jim O'Brien about the man who held a team that averaged more than 10 runs a game during the five-day SoCal playoffs last week to a solo score in the seventh on Friday.

"I'll tell you one thing, though," offered the first-year coach from North Torrance. "We'll hit him a lot better the next time we face him."

Harbor had at least one runner on base in each of the final three innings.

Long Beach tallied three runs in the top of the second inning. A single by Vern Followell, an error on a sacrifice try by Perry Maloney and another single by designated hitter Wes Robinson loaded the bases with none out. Estes drove home Maloney and Followell with the first two Viking runs on a single to rightfield. Liebeck singled home Estes one out later, after Kienast singled Estes to third.

The Vikings added a run in the sixth when singles by Estes, Orlando Bryant and Kienast again loaded the bases, and Liebeck's deep sacrifice fly to left scored Estes.

Suddenly Harbor picked up the fight against Harris.

Dodgers see Red...and more Reds Cincy gets 9 runs, Zachry hurls blanks

CINCINNATI—Joe Morgan hadn't swung a bat in a week.

So it was as much of a surprise to him as it was to Don Sutton that he ramed a three-run home run in the first inning Friday night, touching off the Cincinnati Reds' 9-0 rout of the Dodgers behind Pat Zachry's five-hit pitching before 35,197 fans at Riverfront Stadium.

"I just didn't want to strike out," the National League's 1975 Most Valuable Player confessed after the game that pared the Dodgers' lead in the N.L. West to a single game.

"It's the first time I've had back trouble," Morgan said of the ailment that has idled him since Saturday. "I've played with sore arms and bad legs, but never a bad back. So the only thing I did for a week was sit in a whirlpool."

A whirlpool? It was the Fountain of Youth—and it provided recuperative powers even Morgan wouldn't have believed.

In addition to his first inning homer, his sixth of the season, the little second baseman drilled a triple in the seventh inning off reliever Mike Marshall and scored when George Foster smashed a mammoth home run, a three-run shot to center. Foster has driven in 18 runs and clubbed five homers in his last seven games.

This was the Big Red Machine at its best.

out a dozen hits, half of them for extra bases and three for home runs.

The benefactor was the 24-year-old Zachry, a 6-5 righthander from Texas who wasn't even part of the Reds' plans this spring.

He's now 4-0 with a 1.17 earned run average. Two of his victories have come at the Dodgers' expense.

"He's going to get better, too," promised his manager, Sparky Anderson. "Don't forget, this is his first year. He's just a kid. Wait until he gets his feet on the ground."

Ryan confuses barber but not Royal hitters in 3-0 setback

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

Who is the man behind the mask?

It's Nolan Ryan, that's who. Well, not a mask, actually, but a five-day growth of whiskers.

In an effort to reverse his fortunes, which have been all bad recently, Ryan has resorted to growing a beard.

"I'm hoping," he said, "that people won't recognize me as readily."

One cannot blame Ryan for wanting to hide behind cover. His personal losing streak reached five games Friday night as he surrendered 10 hits to the free-swinging Kansas City Royals and was outduelled by reliever-turned-starter Doug Bird in dropping a 3-0 verdict.

"I don't see any positive aspects," Ryan said after his outing and after his record dipped to a discouraging 3-6. "I had very average stuff."

"I'd just like to forget about this month," he sighed, cognizant of the fact he has not won a game since May 1.

six-hitter for his fifth win and received yeoman support from third baseman George Brett.

Brett boomed a triple and single and turned in two defensive gems at third base, confessing later that he was a man with a motive.

The motive, he said, was a controversial scoring call which deprived his brother Ken of a no-hitter Wednesday night at the Big A.

"We talked about it at a luncheon today," Brett revealed, "and it gave me some extra incentive."

Brett performed like a man possessed. He deprived Lee Stanton of what looked like a sure double in the second inning when he dove behind the bag and made a backhand stab of Stanton's wicked one-hopper, throwing Stanton out at first with room to spare.

He also ranged to his left and made an exceptional play on Bobby Bonds' ground ball in the sixth.

Then, with the Royals and Bird protecting a nervous 1-0 lead, Brett opened the eighth inning with a triple into the rightfield corner, scoring easily on John Mayberry's ensuing fly to center.

"We all think we can win it," Brett said.

He was seconded by manager Whitey Herzog.

Anyone for checkered toilet seat?

It's Christmas at Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Where else but Indianapolis in May could you find a black-and-white checkered toilet seat?

Or a fifth of bourbon bottled in a replica of A.J. Foyt's Coyote race car? Or a Catholic Mass celebrated in Gasoline Alley, in the midst of 33 of the most powerful racing machines in the world?

It's all part of the spring ritual that begins when the first "Welcome Race Fans" signs sprout up around the Hoosier capital and ends when the winner of the Indianapolis 500-mile race picks up a check for more than $100,000 at the victory banquet the night after the race.

But the welcome signs, the bourbon bottles and the checkered toilet seats aren't just a May version of "Hoosier hospitality." They also translate into dollar signs for the city.

"We estimate that there's between $16 million and $18 million in expenditures in the city revolving around the race and its ancillary activities in May," says John T. Watkins, executive director of the Indianapolis Convention and Visitors Bureau.

That figure is backed by a spokeswoman for the 500 Festival Associates, a non-profit corporation that coordinates race-related festivities throughout May.

"Businessmen tell us that the month of May now equals December in receipts at many of the stores," she says.

The city's 9,500 hotel and motel rooms have long since been spoken for. According to Watkins, two days before the race, only 25 to 60 rooms are available in Indianapolis—depending on last-minute cancellations—with most being rented in three-day packages at $80 to $100.

The "500" has spawned a flood of activities, most under the direction of 500 Festival Associates and upwards of 5,000 community volunteers who join them in May.

The month-long festival is now in its 20th year.

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Hubert Green, although occasionally confronted with situations "where you have to invent shots," manufactured a difficult round of par-72 and edged into a one-stroke lead Friday in the second round of Jack Nicklaus' new classic, the $200,000 Memorial Golf Tournament.

Green collected five more birdies—giving him 13 for two days play—on his way to a 36-hole total of 141, three-under-par on the menacing monster that is the Muirfield Village Golf Club course, a 7,072-yard layout designed and constructed by Nicklaus and almost certainly the toughest the touring pros encounter all year.

"There are some very punishing holes out there," said Hubert.

"It's a lot like the British Open. You have to manufacture shots. I had one that I had to hit under a limb, through an opening between trees, over water and play a little slice from a hook stance. It's not a shot I practice a lot. It's not one I want to practice," Green said.

"Another time I got it plugged in a bunker and had no shot. I couldn't even play my Mickey Mouse-guess shot."

The new course—featuring a rock-strewn creek that meanders through man-made hills, tiny greens slick as a frozen pond, enormous walnut trees and deep rough lining the narrow fairways—played even more difficult than usual due to a chilly, blustery wind and occasional drizzles.

The course and elements took their toll. Even Nicklaus fell victim to his creation. He had only one birdie on his way to a three-over-par that left him five strokes off the pace at 146.

77, loses LPGA lead

BALTIMORE (AP) — Sharon Miller fired a five-under-par 68, the best round of the day, and pulled into a three-way tie Friday in the Ladies' Professional Golf Association Championship.

Joining Miss Miller with 36-hole totals of 142 were Gerda Boykin, who toured the Pine Ridge course with a second consecutive 71, and Hollis Stacy, who scrambled for a 73.

First-round leader Laura Baugh jumped to 77 following an opening 68 and joined Carole Jo Skala and Murle Breer at 145.

Betty Burfeindt missed a birdie attempt on the last hole, which would have enabled her to tie the leaders, and dropped into fourth at 143 after shooting a 72 Friday. Chako Higuchi of Japan, with a 71, held fifth place at 144.

CAMPREGHER TARGETS ON SECOND TEE TITLE

Husky Tony Campregher attempts to become the first golfer in 31 years to win consecutive titles in the 52nd Long Beach Match Play Golf Championship this weekend at El Dorado.

The 20-year-old former Long Beach State University star must survive two matches today to reach the 36-hole final Sunday. He beat Keith Lopp, 8-7, in the championship match last year.

Del Walker, the reigning International Seniors champion from Virginia Country Club, is the only golfer to win two in a row. He won three in succession in 1913-14-15.

Softball tournaments at Rodgers, Mayfair

Two 16-team softball tournaments will be played over the Memorial Day weekend, one at Mayfair Park in Lakewood and the other at Joe Rodgers Field in Long Beach.

The Lakewood Jets host the Mayfair tournament, which features seven teams from the Western Softball Congress and two Northern California entries, Visalia and Fresno.

Five Pacific Coast League teams compete in the PCI tournament at Joe Rodgers Field. Oceanside is top-seeded.

The finals in both tournaments will be played Monday.

The Long Beach Nitehawks left Friday for Phoenix where they will play in a tournament beginning today against Ogden, Utah. The event is hosted by the 1974 International Softball Congress champion. The Nitehawks won the 1975 title.

Edles plays giant killer —again—in NCAA tennis

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — A West Coast parade led by Stanford and Poly High graduate Joe Edles highlighted the National Collegiate Athletic Association tennis tournament Friday.

Stanford kept its lead in the team race, 20-18 over Southern California. UCLA was in third with 16.

Unseeded Edles of Southern Methodist defeated No. 1 seed Billy Brock of North Carolina, 4-6, 7-6, 6-3.

"I just can't believe it," said Edles, who lost more than half his matches this year. "To think of how my year has been and have this happen. At this point, I don't know what to think. I play (UCLA's Peter) Fleming tomorrow and I have nothing to lose."

Edles ousted fifth-seeded Ross Walker of Houston Thursday.

Stanford clung to the top spot despite losses by three of its four singles entries, Bill Maze, Mark Mitchell and Matt Mitchell. Pat DuPre is the remaining Stanford singles entry.

UCLA still has two entries alive in the singles—Fleming and Ferdi Taygan. Fleming dropped Maze, 6-1, 7-5; Taygan took Mark Mitchell 4-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Joining Fleming and Taygan in today's final rounds are DuPre, Joao Soares of Pepperdine, Bill Scanlon of

UC Irvine to request admission in PCAA for 1977-78 season

The Pacific Coast Athletic Association will be asked next week to admit UC Irvine for the 1977-78 season.

A spokesman for the PCAA said he understood that UCI Chancellor Daniel G. Aldrich, Jr. will formally ask the PCAA Council for admission at the council's annual meeting in Stockton, June 1-3.

A spokesman for UCI confirmed the report and said the Anteaters will soon apply to the National Collegiate Athletic Association for Division I status in all sports except football.

Despite the fact that UCI was established only 11 years ago, the Anteater's athletic program is competitive in most spring sports. They are among the favor-

3 Cerritos players on team LBCC's Harris voted all-SoCal

Long Beach City College pitcher Greg Harris and three Cerritos College Falcon stars have been voted to the all-Southern California Community College first team.

Harris had a 12-2 record with an earned run average of 1.31. Joining Harris on the mound is Cerritos pitcher Dave Patterson, who was 7-1 with a 1.90 ERA.

Also voted to the first team from Cerritos were first baseman Mike Carpenter and infielder Frank Vilorio.

At Belmont Plaza Olympic Pool Pre-Olympic swim draws 600

The final major meet prior to U.S. Olympic team qualifying kicks off today when the Lakewood Aquatic and Long Beach Swim Clubs co-host the Olympic Development meet at Belmont Plaza Olympic Pool.

More than 600 swimmers are expected to compete.

The three-day meet begins today at 11 a.m. with qualifying in the men and women's 100-meter butterfly, 400-free-style, 100-backstroke and 200-individual champion. The Nitehawks won the 1975 title.

In pro competition, the Southern California Stars play in the Banning Tournament beginning today.

Trinity and Southern California's Bruce Manson, all seeded in the top eight.

The group was joined by the longshots—Edles and Tim Garcia of New Mexico, both competing without benefit of their coach or teammates.

Soares, a 1975 semifinalist, dropped a tie-breaker set to Matt Mitchell of Stanford but rallied for a 6-7, 6-2, 6-4 victory.

Scanlon blitzed Utah's Kent Crawford, Manson eliminated Big 10 champion Francisco Gonzalez of Ohio State, and DuPre walloped Steve Wedderburn of Oklahoma City.

ites to win the Division II track and field championships.

UCI does not compete in football and plans to enter the PCAA without the sport in 1977, if approved and if granted Division I status.

The PCAA presently has six schools—Long Beach State, San Diego State, Fullerton State, Fresno State, University of Pacific and San Jose State. UC Santa Barbara rejoins the PCAA in the fall.

UCI has won 13 Division II national championships, two in baseball, five in tennis, three in swimming, and one each in cross country, golf and sailing. The Anteaters have also won a Division I title in water polo.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

A world series of hockey?

WINNIPEG — General manager Rudy Pilous of the World Hockey Association champion Winnipeg Jets said Friday that it is time to begin formulating plans for a challenge series against the National Hockey League.

"It's too bad it couldn't have been this year," Pilous said. "With the two best teams and the two best coaches in hockey winning, it would have made a tremendous series."

Winnipeg swept Houston in four games to win the WHA crown, and Montreal did the same to Philadelphia to capture the NHL championship.

Pilous said the leagues should get together and arrange their playoff schedules so both finals end at approximately the same time. "It would be a highly competitive series," he said.

McGlothen 'won't back off'

ST. LOUIS — The last time St. Louis Cardinal pitcher Lynn McGlothen faced the New York Mets a beanball war erupted that resulted in a five-day suspension and $300 fine for McGlothen.

McGlothen takes the mound against the Mets Sunday and says he expects more trouble, but "won't back off."

"It's all over as far as I'm concerned," McGlothen continued, "but if it starts again, it starts. If Tom Seaver throws at me, I'll throw back. If a pitch looks like it's close to me, I'll bounce one off somebody. I don't think the Mets have forgotten."

When the Mets departed Busch Stadium after the original incident in April — in which New York's Jon Matlack and Del Unser were hit — manager Joe Frazier vowed, "We'll get one of their guys the next time we see them."

Suns court wins at home

PHOENIX — The Phoenix Suns are hoping that the home court advantage is more than superstition when they entertain the Boston Celtics Sunday in the third game of the National Basketball Association championship series.

"They're going out there with their backs against the wall," said Celtics coach Tom Heinsohn, observing his team's 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series.

However, Heinsohn admits that playing in Phoenix will be more difficult for his club.

"They're going to be in front of their home crowd. Their crowd will pick them up. It was a big factor in Cleveland and it will be a big factor in Phoenix," he said.

The Celtics lost a pair of games at Cleveland in the semifinals, scoring less than 90 points in both contests.

Phoenix coach John MacLeod thinks it will take more than the home court to stop the Boston steamroller.

"I don't think just because we're going home means that things will be great," he said. "We have to do better on offense and defense. We have to be more patient."

Tyrell 'six' its cars on Ferrari

MONTE CARLO, Monaco — If Tyrell's sixes roll, Ferrari won't roll a six.

The six-wheel Tyrell racers pose the greatest threat to Ferrari scoring its sixth consecutive victory in the 1976 world Grand Prix championship around the sinuous street circuit of Monte Carlo Sunday.

Early-season jibes about the eight-cylinder Tyrells needing "fewer wheels and more cylinders" to match the flat-12 Ferraris faded after first qualifying sessions saw the two dark blue cars split the flame red Italians in the race for starting line honors. However, world champion Niki Lauda of Austria took the pole position.

BRIEFLY: The body of slain Argentine boxer Oscar Bonavena remained on board an Argentine airlines jet Friday night as it passed through Lima en route to a midnight wake in Buenos Aires. Airport authorities guarded the plane after an anonymous threat in Los Angeles indicated an attempt to kidnap the body might be made. . . Montreal police confirmed Friday that Guy Lafleur of the Montreal Canadiens was placed under police protection during the recent Stanley Cup playoffs after an anonymous informant told them there was a plot to kidnap the star right winger. . . Dick Motta, coach of the NBA's Chicago Bulls for eight seasons, was appointed to the same position with the Washington Bullets Friday. Motta had many public disputes with his players but says he does not envision any problems in Washington because he will not be head of player personnel as he was in Chicago. . . Nine members of the NHL's Boston Bruins will become free agents next year. Besides Bobby Orr, they are forwards Johnny Bucyk, Andre Savard, Doug Gilmour, Steve Langdon and Earl Anderson and defenseman Dallas Smith. Darryl Edestrand and Al Sims. . . Owner Irv Kosloff sold the Philadelphia 76ers of the NBA Friday to F. Eugene Dixon, who is listed as one of the 10 wealthiest men in the Philadelphia area. . . While Mays returned to Shea Stadium Friday night and said he was satisfied with the settlement of his recent dispute with the New York Mets. There had been some controversy over Mays' duties with the club as a $50,000 per year goodwill ambassador and instructor. . . The U.S. Auto Club sprint races, featuring seven drivers who are in Sunday's Indianapolis 500 field, were rained out Friday at the Indiana State Fairgrounds. They were re-scheduled for Monday.

Arctic Blades host competition

The 175-member host team will be joined by clubs, including those from Phoenix, Las Vegas and San Diego. Admission is free though a donation bowl will be passed.

Kayakers say thanks to 'Grandma' Ritter

Four Southern California men are packing today in preparation for their trip to Salt Fork, Ohio, and the U.S. Olympic kayak trials June 5-12.

When the quartet departs Sunday, the most important items in their baggage will be "Grandma Ritter's Frontyard Kayak Team" T-shirts. "Grandma Ritter" is Mrs. Juanita Ritter and the shirts are but a small way of showing her their appreciation.

Without the use of Mrs. Ritter's Belmont Shore home, Bob Hahn, Larry Hanes, Jon Van Cleave and John Potter might not be rated the No. 1 team in the country and favored to win the trials and represent the United States in Montreal the last week in July.

Logistics was the crew's biggest obstacle when it set the Olympic K-4 class title as its goal. Hahn, a research director in environmental feasibility, lives in Newport; Hanes, a United Airlines pilot, in Playa del Rey; Van Cleave, a law student, in Laguna Beach, and Potter, a junior high biology teacher, in Costa Mesa.

Solomon argues call, quits Italian Open

ROME (AP) — Harold Solomon of the United States caused a sensation in the Italian Open tennis tournament Friday when he walked off the court after a quarrel with a referee over a line call.

Solomon was leading Adriano Panatta of Italy 2-6, 7-5, 5-4 in their quarter-final match.

Solomon said he had been disqualified, but the deputy referee, Carlo Nistri, said it was the player's decision to leave.

"I told him, 'Go back to play or get out,' and he left," Nistri said.

"I also told him there was no question he could play the shot over again. We spoke clear English so I am sure there was no misunderstanding."

Solomon had a slightly different version.

"The referee first told me to play or leave," he said. "I insisted on discussing the matter with him and explaining my position but he said the crowd was going berserk and I should get out. That's why I left."

A disappointed Panatta said, "I don't care to win a match like this. It is bad for me. Had I thought the shot was out I would have conceded the point, but I felt sure and so were the players in the stands that it was on the line."

Long Beach was selected as a halfway point and because of the Marine Stadium facility for training. However, there was no space to store their boat. One doesn't leave a 36-foot, 70-pound kayak, made in Denmark of imported Honduras cedar, on the beach or in an alley.

To the rescue came Mrs. Ritter, a widowed mother of three who honeymooned in Long Beach 55 years ago and has lived on the water the past 20 years. She offered them a place to eat, sleep and shower between their twice-daily workouts.

As the many weeks of training progressed, she became affectionately known as "Grandma Ritter," a fifth member of the team.

Now Hahn, Hanes, Van Cleave and Potter are properly prepared for an assault on Olympic gold. They've already discussed winning the medal and showing the world their "Grandma Ritter's Frontyard Kayak Team" T-shirts.

Disneyland will showcase the six top stars when the park presents "Disneyland and All That Jazz" today and Sunday.

Pete Fountain, Maynard Ferguson, Freddie Hubbard, Papa John Creach, Esther Phillips and Teddy Buckner headline this traditional musical spectacular.

Making a rare West Coast appearance, The Pete Fountain Jazz Group will offer its New Orleans sound on Tomorrowland Terrace at 8:30 p.m., 10:30 p.m. and midnight. Vocalist Esther Phillips and Teddy Buckner headline the spectacular.

Market in New Orleans Square at 8:15, 9:15, 10:15 and 11:15 p.m.

Guests also will be able to see:

Fountain Ferguson

Gardens stage. Ferguson and his orchestra perform at 8:15, 10:15 and 11:45 p.m. while Hubbard appears at 9:45 p.m., 11 p.m. and 12:30 p.m.

Papa John Creach and Midnight Sun will entertain from Frontierland's Golden Horseshoe at 8:15, 10 and 11:30 p.m.

Disneyland's own Teddy Buckner and His Jazz All-Stars. Long a favorite of park guests, Buckner will be featured at the French to enjoy "America on Parade." Disneyland's Bicentennial salute, as well as the usual adventures and attractions.

Disneyland will be open from 9 a.m. to 1 a.m. today and Sunday. Memorial and Memorial Day, 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Universal Television is No. 1 again and no one's surprised

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The networks have announced their television schedules for the 1976-77 season, and the winner and still champion of the studios is — Universal Television.

It's no surprise. The only surprising aspect to the new schedule is how far Universal scores ahead of its competitors. The studio will have 14 hours of weekly programming in prime time, plus another hour and a half that has already been ordered for mid-season.

Next in line is Columbia Television with five hours, followed by Norman Lear's company with three and a half hours. MTM Enterprises and Quinn Martin Productions with three apiece.

HOW DOES Universal do it?

"It boils down to providing the best product," says Universal TV president Frank Price with understandable pride. "We've had interesting premises that have intrigued the networks, and in the past two or three years have done things that have set new patterns."

"For instance, 'Rich Man, Poor Man.' It was a new form for commercial television in the United States — dramatizing a novel. The networks had never presented a series that was self-cancelling."

"But because of its success, the show led to two others: 'Rich Man, Poor Man, Book II' and 'Best Sellers.'"

"We've also had success in our approach to shows that would fit into the Family Hour: 'The Six Million Dollar Man,' 'Bionic Woman' and 'Emergency.' And in the area of cop shows, we have come up with the best quality series. I'm talking about 'Kojak,' 'Baretta,' 'Columbo' and 'Rockford Files.'"

MOST critics would agree that Universal has improved its produce from the bland, factory-style series of its earlier years. Not that it doesn't still have its losers — witness this season's "Ellery Queen," "City of Angels" and "Sara." But Universal has attracted topflight producers and writers with promises of the chance to make quality shows.

Universal had the advantage of getting into TV early. When MCA was still a talent agency, bosses Jules Stein and

Nessie, here

BOSTON (AP) — The fifth annual expedition of the Academy of Applied Science to search for the Loch Ness monster gets under way Sunday, when researchers fly to Scotland.

"Really, it's like going fishing," said Harold E. Edgerton, a retired Massachusetts Institute of Technology professor who heads the mission's underwater photography team. "You don't know exactly what you're doing — but it might work."

Universal has long had a close relationship with

Lew Wasserman recognized the future value of the new medium and formed Revue Productions. Operating at the old Republic studio, Revue ground out inexpensive series.

In 1962, MCA bought control of the foundering Universal Pictures, abandoned the agency business and moved into the largest studio in town. Its huge backlog with standing sets of every locale needed for film proved ideal for television.

"There's no doubt that the history of the company plays a large part in its current success," said Price, adding that MCA chairman Wasserman and president Sid Sheinberg "thoroughly understand the television business."

THEY understand costs, too. Many a series star and director has complained about rigid shooting schedules at Universal. But the attention to economics has kept Universal in the forefront while studios like Warner Brothers and 20th Century-Fox have suffered huge losses on their TV operations.

Among the other majors, Paramount has two hours on the networks next season, MGM an hour and a half. Fox has only "M-A-S-H" and Warner Brothers has a new half-hour, "Alice."

Expediting of downtown L.B. housing asked

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON
Urban Affairs Editor

The Project Area Committee for Long Beach's downtown redevelopment project has recommended that new housing construction be expedited "as the supporting backbone" for proposed commercial developments.

In other actions at their Thursday night meeting, PAC members:

- Voted to support revised plans for construction of the proposed Radisson-Perini-Carlson 542-room hotel immediately southwest of the new Pacific Terrace Convention Center.
- Accepted the resignation of PAC Vice Chairman Wheeler Ab-

bett, who is moving his downtown florist business to the Bixby Plaza area.

- Scheduled an election for the next PAC meeting, June 25, to fill two vacancies (Abbett's and another created by Allie Drazenovich's removal because of four unexcused absences).

The motion by PAC member

James B. Russell Jr., a local attorney, to encourage new housing developments downtown, passed unanimously.

Speaking for the motion, Douglas Benwell, who represents Downtown Long Beach Associates on the Project Area Committee, argued:

"The biggest gap is a lack of housing for income groups with purchasing power. This type of housing is essential as the supporting backbone for downtown revitalization.

"The housing element as it relates to downtown is still dangling unresolved. Let's ask the Redevelopment Agency to define it, locate the areas, zone for them and do whatever is deemed necessary to set the stage for seeking developers."

Benwell said he was not suggesting federal housing or subsidized housing as the answer. "That would not contribute the needed per capita purchasing power," he said.

Russell moved that city officials, at the next PAC meeting, "acquaint us with downtown areas proposed for residential uses... so we can take action to notify people in the construction industry of this availability."

A preliminary shoreline plan by the firm of Sasaki-Walker, adopted by the City Council on March 25, 1975, states: "Residential development downtown would be an essential ingredient to the area's full rejuvenation and redevelopment."

It suggests that the Pike amusement area could become the site of a major high-rise residential complex with auxiliary recreation uses and would "introduce the concept of luxury living in the downtown area."

Discussing the progress of projects in the downtown redevelopment area, Randall J. Verrue, executive assistant to City Manager John Mansell, said J. C. Penney Co. has "authorized use of its name," along with Buffums' department store, as one of three anchor stores for the proposed Ernest Hahn six-block shopping mall.

Developer Hahn has been given until Sept. 1 to present his final proposal to the city, Verrue said, adding that "there has been much interest shown for the third store."

He noted that the Pacific Terrace Convention Center is scheduled for completion by September 1977.

VERRUE presented slides showing revised plans for the proposed $25 million Radisson-Perini-Carlson hotel, supporting recreational facilities (tennis courts, ice-skating rink and swimming pool) and a boardwalk development in the Pacific Terrace area.

Similar presentations are being made to local citizens' groups for their input, he said.

Benwell spoke in favor of this and other proposed projects. "I'd like to give the city some badly needed orchids," he said. "We've seen a couple years of turn-around performance by some dedicated city people... We should give some credit where credit is due."

PAC member Murray Kramer, a downtown businessman, countered with what he called "bricksbats."

"PEOPLE who go to the Building Department to try to start a business in one of the many vacant downtown stores are driven away by the vague earthquake ordinance," he said. "They're told the building may be condemned in six months, a year or a year and a half. Our downtown is becoming a ghost town."

"How do we resolve this until the Hahn project starts?" he asked. Donovan Rodman, downtown realtor, said it is becoming more and more difficult to finalize real-estate transactions in the downtown area. He added: "We have got to get something more specific (on earthquake condemnations). As it is now, people are walking away without an answer."

In tendering his resignation from PAC, Abbett said his business "could no longer survive in the downtown area."

THREE years ago, expressing his faith in the future of downtown Long Beach, Abbett opened his Peppermint Pusheart florist shop at 19 Long Beach Blvd. and the following year won a Long Beach Beautiful Award for "helping to upgrade the neighborhood."

Since then, he said, most of his original neighbors have moved.

"We would like to stay. I love Long Beach. But we can't wait around downtown long enough to go bankrupt," he said.

"If they would dig Spade 1 of the Hahn project — if the downtown business community could get the first thing started — this could be the garden spot, the Monte Carlo, of the West Coast."

New leader

Robert Matheny, newly-elected 31st president of Downtown Long Beach Associates, will lead the organization through its 40th year. Matheny is vice-president and manager of the Bank of America's main office.

Petitions in for district elections to city council

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

Petitions calling for an amendment to the Long Beach city charter to provide that members of the City Council be elected by district instead of citywide were filed Friday with City Clerk Elaine Hamilton.

Carl H. Schiermeyer, co-chairman of Citizens for District Elections, said the petitions carry signatures of 20,994 Long Beach voters. Mrs. Hamilton said 16,575 valid signatures are required to put the proposal on the Nov. 2 ballot.

Schiermeyer also announced that Councilman Ernie Kell will head the campaign to win voter approval of the proposed charter amendment.

"I have long supported the principle that council members should be elected only by the people who live in the district, as opposed to our city-at-large system," Kell said.

"This will make your council members responsible only to you, not to special interests around the city," he said.

UNDER THE present system, candidates for City Council seek nomination in a municipal primary election in March, when voting for candidates in each district is restricted to voters within that district.

The two candidates in each district who receive the largest number of votes in the primary run for election in the municipal general election in May, when citizens throughout the city vote for one candidate in each district.

The proposal by Citizens for District Elections would amend Sections 49, 50 and 53 of the city charter. It basically would provide that "candidates for the offices of members of the City Council shall be voted for by the electorate of the respective district to be represented."

If any district candidate received a majority vote in the primary election, he would be elected. This now is the case with candidates for the citywide offices of city attorney, city auditor and city prosecutor.

If no council candidate received a majority vote in his district in the primary, the leading two candidates would have a runoff in the municipal general election, but voting still would be restricted to their specific district.

Schiermeyer and Mrs. Pamela J. O'Leary, who are co-chairpersons of the Citizens for District Elections, said the initiative drive began last Dec. 5 with the filing of a notice of intention to circulate petitions. The main thrust, however, began two months ago when the City Council turned down appeals to put the issue of district elections on the June 8 ballot.

Mrs. Hamilton said the deadline for the city to submit measures to the county for inclusion on the Nov. 2 general election ballot is Aug. 20.

ONE OF THE reasons a change to district elections is needed, said Schiermeyer and Mrs. O'Leary, is that in recent elections, voters in a district selected one candidate, while an opposing candidate won office because of the citywide vote.

Highlights of L.B. area Memorial Day observances

Religious services honoring America's war dead will highlight an active three-day holiday weekend in the Long Beach area.

Topping the list of Memorial Day observances Monday will be services at the Sunnyside Memorial Gardens, at Cherry Avenue and San Antonio Drive, at 10 a.m.

The Long Beach Municipal Band, directed by Everett E. Siegrist, will provide patriotic music and the Long Beach Honor Guard will present the colors.

Rabbi Shalom Podwol of Temple Beth Shalom, Rev. Don E. Linblom, executive director of the Long Beach-area Council of Churches, and Father Girard O'Donnell of St. Anthony's Church will deliver the invocations during the services.

Forest Lawn's Memorial Day ceremonies, sponsored by the C. R. Rogers Memorial Post 8847, VFW, Cypress, features an invocation by Rev. William Thompson, chaplain at the Long Beach Naval Hospital.

The Oxford Junior High School Band will provide the music. And, as part of a historical pageant, actors Bob Basso and Ronnie Morgan will portray Patrick Henry and Abraham Lincoln, respectively.

The observance will begin at 11 a.m. at Forest Lawn, which is located at 4471 Lincoln Ave., Cypress.

Tributes are also scheduled at Westminster Memorial Park, located at 14801 Beach Blvd., at 11 a.m.

Conducted by Rabbi Stephen Einstein of Temple Beth David, and Father Dan McGinn, of the Blessed Sacrament Catholic Church, Westminster, the services will include the Voices of Huntington Valley choir and the Boy Scout Troops 280 and 287 of Huntington Beach.

The weekend also will feature numerous recreational and sporting activities at Long Beach parks and recreational centers. Included on the list of activities are:

Considerable early-morning cloudiness, clearing in the afternoons, will keep the weekend temperatures cool for the outdoor services and outings, according to the Weather Bureau. The expected highs for the weekend are not expected reach above mid-70s.

'Hello! Tom here'—Hayden in L.B. on state tour

By JOE SEGURA
Staff Writer

"Hello! Tom here!"

The middle-aged woman in the doorway of a shop near St. Joseph Avenue and Second Street in Belmont Shore, didn't recognize the youthful-looking man who called himself Tom.

"Tom Hayden," he explained. The 36-year-old Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate walked into Long Beach Friday as part of a 1,200-mile statewide campaign swing that will include hundreds of miles on foot in an effort personally to reach potential voters.

Hayden, who is challenging incumbent John Tunney in the June 8 primary, arrived in Long Beach after starting his walk Wednesday in Los Angeles.

Stopped by the candidate on Second Street, one supporter, Jack Bockman, 24, asked Hayden why he didn't hit harder at Tunney's positions.

"Tunney hasn't put in enough effort," Bockman claimed. "We needed more concrete ideas from him instead of his just running with the flow of bureaucrats."

Hayden said he was hitting hard, and would hit harder during his tentatively scheduled June 4 debate with Tunney.

Not all Belmont Shore pedestrians, however, were receptive to Hayden and his liberal platform.

Hayden, who was arrested in 1968 for his role in organizing anti-Vietnam protests at the Chicago Democratic presidential convention, approached a male senior citizen.

"Sorry, but I'm on the wrong side of the political fence," the man said, waving Hayden off.

But many along Hayden's route waved, honked their horns, took literature from his volunteer staffers with wishes of good luck, or smiled and shook his hand.

Hayden, who started his afternoon walk in downtown Long Beach, wound up his hike with dinner at a supporter's house. He also visited several government offices and did some door-to-door campaigning during the day.

Telling supporters he would win the primary by a "small margin," Hayden said there was a 35-per cent margin of undecided and soft Tunney votes that could bring him victory.

(The most recent California Poll survey of the Democratic race for the Senate nomination showed Hayden trailing Tunney 50 per cent to 33 per cent. The survey, taken in early May, showed Hayden had pulled within 17 per cent of Tunney after being 43 per cent behind in March.)

"Tunney's vulnerable," he said. "He's not real at a time when people want real give-and-take on the issues from the people representing them."

The statewide walk, which began May 13 and is expected to end June 2.

MUSIC TEACHERS TO CONVENE ON QUEEN MARY JUNE 25-29

Eight hundred members of the Music Teachers Association of California are expected to attend the organization's 66th annual state convention aboard the Queen Mary June 25-29.

The convention, hosted by the Long Beach and Lakewood branches of the association, will feature performances each day by musicians, as well as workshops, study sessions and lectures.

Among the performers will be Marvelee Cariaga, mezzo-soprano; Dr. Maurice Hinson, pianist; the International Children's Choir of Long Beach; the Grimm Singers, a group of seven brothers and sisters, and concert pianist John Perry.

Other performers will be cellist Lucille Greco, flutist David Shostac, pianist Mary Mark Zeyen and duo-pianists Mona and Renee Golabek.

On opening night, delegates will hear two one-act operas: a musical based on a play by William Saroyan and the American folk opera "Mike Fink," performed by the Long Beach State University symphony orchestra, conducted by Dr. Hans Lampl.

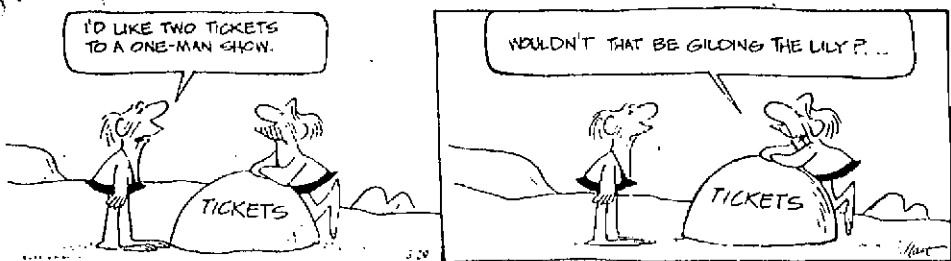

Tickets will be available at the door for $2.50 per person. The state association is composed of 1,000 private music teachers.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: You experience many diverse happenings that sharpen your skills for new jobs and a prosperous future. In the last three months, you pull scattered threads together. Today's natives are candid, seek novel ideas and people.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Now is a good time to travel to get information or to get away. If you can't go far, pursue hobbies you've had to neglect.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Put aside concerns on the job and make this a day of self-expression. Religious exercise or meditation opens the way for personal liberation.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Much comes to your attention if you take time to listen to others. Stick to normal schedules and go along with established habits.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Concentrate on becoming a better person and get rid of bad habits. Don't stick to old ways of doing things just because they're comfortable. Take time to rest tonight.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Avoid excess of any sort while you participate in community observances. Look your best when meeting acquaintances and newcomers.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Let yourself off the hook. You aren't expected to achieve perfection. Prepare for minor surprises, but keep your cool.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be willing to cooperate in group projects, but let others lead. Gardening, hobbies and intellectual puzzles provide a needed rest from the tensions of work.

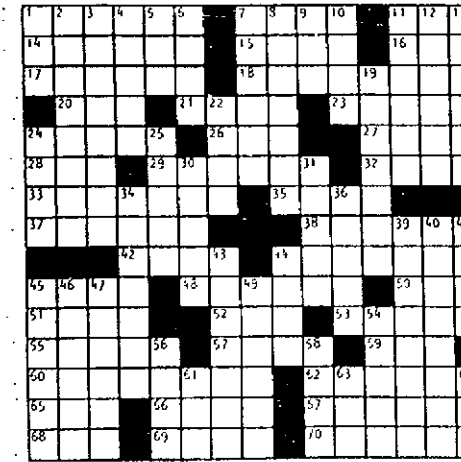

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): If you're asked to settle other people's conflicts, try to be objective. Today, don't talk shop; devote your energy to spiritual quests.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Keep a sense of humor. There's much discrepancy between promise and performance. Just be sure you're not guilty in this respect.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): If you must work, do the minimum. By examining the past, you are able to make plans. Complete a list for the coming month.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Let business matters rest until the regular work week. Make the rounds, but don't linger anywhere. You idealism begins to surface in your plans.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): You come to understand more about traditional customs. Reserve today for social fun and games. Forget material concerns and on-the-job worries.

Oil price stall hikes mart

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, encouraged by word of no price increase from the oil-exporting nations, recovered some of its recent losses with a road rally Friday.

Trading remained light, however, on the eve of the three-day Memorial Day weekend.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks climbed 9.66 to 975.23, reducing its loss for the week to 15.52 points.

The widely recognized average finished May with a net decline of 21.62 points—its worst monthly showing since last September, when it gave up 41.46.

Gainers topped losers by better than a 2-1 margin in the daily tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Big Board volume came to 16.86 million shares, up just slightly from 15.31 million on Thursday.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed stocks, including trades in those issues on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, came to 19.78 million shares at the close in New York.

More than half the Dow's gain for the day came after the early-afternoon word that a meeting of oil-exporting nations in Bali had ended without any decision on a price increase.

Many of the nation's largest banks announced increases in their prime lending rates from 6 3/4 to 7 per cent.

But there had been considerable advance warning that a rise in the prime was in the offing because of recent credit tightening moves by the Federal Reserve.

And traders given to interpreting weekly Fed statistics seemed to be hoping that a drop in the money supply which showed up in the latest data might encourage the Fed to ease off now.

Standard & Poor's 500 stock index recorded a .80 gain to 100.18, and the NYSE's composite index rose .42 to 53.31.

Texaco, the day's most active issue, eased a fraction in trading marked by a 117,700-share block. Most other oils moved up.

F.W. Woolworth added more than a point after Upjohn, discussed as an "interesting play" in a Business Week magazine article, gained nearly a point.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market rose .26 to 88.04.

Small-business men's common errors cited

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK — Many small-business men think their best customers are the ones who purchase the most when, in fact, such customers might be the worst.

This comment is contained in Commercial Credit Co.'s list of common mistakes by small business men, gathered by its representatives in the course of making $1.8 billion a year in sales —

to businessmen.

What often makes such customers the worst, says CCC, is that they often take two months or more to pay their bills, thus costing the small-business man the use of his money during that time.

"Smaller companies frequently do not keep the right kind of records to track their accounts receivable," the commentary continues.

"In many instances the receivables are not even aged, and small-business men frequently don't even know how much they have in receivables on their books.

"Often the difference between success and failure is very slim, and the balance is tipped in a positive direction if the small-business man has had a course in practical accounting, or uses smart accounts receivable techniques."
